Families And Grazing

Avid readers Arden and Carolyn Landis became staunch believers in rotational grazing as a way to a more stable financial base and to a less stressful lifestyle. After five years under their tutelage, the 140-acre farm has been transformed from a conventional dairy into rotational grazing and the 84 head dairy is certified organic. The seasonal dairy is shut down in January. Read more about their work in Foraging Around, included this issue. Photo by Lou Ann Good

Lancaster Farming's Family Farm Survival Seminar Nov. 13

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster Farming has scheduled an event for the entire family.

On Tuesday, Nov. 13, Lancaster Farming is hosting its first "Family Farm Survival Seminar" at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster.

The farm population has reached an age that retirement planning is crucial. The USDA indicates the average farm age is about 55 years, according to 1997 statistics, up from 50 in 1982.

"More than ever, farmers must begin to more fully market their farm products to stay alive," said Andy Andrews, editor of Lancaster Farming. "And more importantly, they must consider strategies to help turn the operations and ownership of the farm over to their children."

For this reason, according to Andrews, Lancaster Farming believes it is imperative to "educate the older, transitioning farmer, as well as the young farmer to some of the benefits of estate planning. Along with this, farm operators must understand the marketplace and what the future of farming, and product marketing, will mean."

Scheduled speakers are Dr. John Lord, a well-respected and widely known product marketing expert from St. Joseph's University in Philadelphia. Lord spoke at the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland's Conference at Grantville in March of 2000 and again at a Berks County Ag Survival conference

Bloomsburg Fair: 10,000 Entries, 1,000 Exhibitors

VIRGINIA HECKERT
Northumberland Co. Correspondent

BLOOMSBURG (Columbia Co.) — What coordinators call "Pennsylvania's largest fair" will exhibit approximately 10,000 entries from about 1,000 exhibitors who hope to earn top premiums at the 147th Bloomsburg Fair, Sept. 22-29, here at the fairgrounds.

Last week fair officers and directors conducted a press conference to highlight this year's special features, which include entertainment, displays, and plenty of food. Fair President Frederick Trump said, "It seems the scene of fairs is changing, but the Bloomsburg Fair was established as an agricultural fair and that is what it will stay."

"It is very gratifying to me to see that the agriculture department is busting out at the seams," said Agriculture Superintendent Kent Shelhamer. "Bloomsburg Fair has the best herb display on the East Coast and we do a fantastic job with the vegetable display."

Entries are due by Sept. 20 at 10 p.m. and will be judged in the Agriculture Hall Sept. 21.

Ag Community Responds To Terrorist Attacks

DAVE LEFEVER

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In the wake of Tuesday's terrorist attacks on the U.S., the nation has joined together in a tremendous spirit of support for victims and others involved in the tragedies.

Across the country, countless people have lined up to donate blood and other resources for the rescue efforts, gathered in prayer vigils, and expressed their solidarity in words.

That support is also being conveyed from other countries around the world.

Canadian agricultural journalist Lorraine Stevenson affirmed this message found Wednesday wrapped around a candle at a U.S. embassy in Europe: "They made you the target, but all of us have been hit. You have never been less alone."

While the majority of Americans have returned, in a sense, to going about their business, they continue to be absorbed in the aftermath as rescue efforts continue and our national response

Boards Discontinue Merger Discussions

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — Land O'Lakes, Inc., Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc., Lone Star Milk Producers, Inc., and Arkansas Dairy Cooperative Association announced late last week that they have discontinued merger discussions. In August, the boards of the four cooperatives approved the signing of letters of intent to develop a merger plan.

"While it is essential that cooperatives develop ways to work together to remain competitive in today's rapidly consolidating dairy industry, those expanding relationships must be developed cautiously and with an intense focus on member concerns," Land O'Lakes President and Chief Executive Officer John E. Gherty said. "The feedback we were receiving from Maryland

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

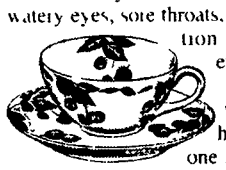
HONEY, DO

One of September s many bountiful harvests is honey, so it's no surprise September is National Honey Month On Rosh Hashanah eve (Sept 18 this year), it is customary to dip challah in honey to bring a new year of sweetness and prosperity Herbalists use honey as a home remedy for bed-wetting, weight control, insomnia watery eyes, sore throats, asthma diarrhea and constipation Because honey works as an effective antiseptic and disinfectant, it was once used on wounds and burns Giving honey to babies under the age of one is not recommended because of the risk of infant botulism poisoning A teaspoon of honey in hot water or tea is said to promote sleep If you dream of bees success is prognosticated



He that has no honey in his pot, let him have it in his mouth.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If on Sept 19th there is a storm from the south, a mild winter may be expected

If bees remain in their hive, expect rain.

TIP OF THE WEEK

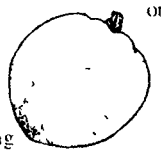
HONEY-GLAZED ACORN SQUASH

1/4 cup olive oil
4 medium acorn squash, seeded and halved
1/2 cup honey
1/4 teaspoon ground allspice
salt and pepper to taste

Brush the inside of each acorn squash half with oil, prick with a fork and place in a baking pan (If bottoms are too pointy slice a bit off to allow them to stand) Drizzle honey inside each, sprinkle with allspice, and roast at 375°F for about one hour or until soft Season with salt and pepper



Makes 8 servings

Slow, Steady Farm Transition

Lancaster Farming has spent many months in the planning of our first-ever conference, this one about farm family survival, as outlined page one this issue.

We're doing this because we recognize how important it is to start planning for transition of the farm NOW.

We emphasize now, because waiting and refusing to discuss the issue with your family can prove detrimental. We've heard too many stories where families refuse to communicate, and as a result, transitioning the farm to the next generation can be traumatic.

Of course there are issues to be addressed in transitioning the farm. In a multigenerational, multimember family, who will own it? Where will the responsibilities lie?

But one saying is appropriate for family farm transition planning: "early and often." Speak with your family, sit down with a professional farm transition consultant, look at the options, and plan ahead. Start the transition now — it's never too early.

And for some real advice, attend our first conference on Tuesday, Nov. 13, at the Farm and Home Center. We believe you will learn quite a bit about the realities of transitioning the farm, about what it takes to survive as a farm, and whom to contact for answers.

To Evaluate Your Pumpkin Fields For Virus Damage

Aphid-borne viruses are causing problems in some Pennsylvania pumpkin fields. According to Dr. Alan MacNab, department of plant pathology, symptoms can be mild to severe on foliage and the fruit.

Mild mottling can occur on both the leaves and the fruit. The major problem, however, is that normal ripening is delayed, resulting in the need to harvest over an extended period. This delay can result in the loss of opportunity to sell the fruit. If the infection is severe, new leaves will be stunted and distorted and fruit will be bumpy with distinct dark green and orange patches on mature fruit.

According to MacNab, there are five distinct viruses that can infect pumpkins. These are the cucumber mosaic virus (CMV), papaya ringspot virus (PRSV), squash mosaic virus (SqMV), watermelon mosaic virus-2 (WMV-2), and zucchini yellows mosaic virus (ZYMV). In Pennsylvania pumpkins, WMV-2, ZYMV, and PRSV were detected during a recent survey. WMV-2 accounted for 94 percent of infections, and was the most prevalent and widespread virus. In addition, ZYMV was detected in southeastern Pennsylvania, and PRSV was detected in southwestern Pennsylvania.

These viruses overwinter in biennial and perennial plants, including many weeds. Aphids are the major vectors that pick up the viruses from virus-infected weeds and other plants and then inoculate the pumpkin plants when they probe and feed on the plants. Some aphids are very efficient at inoculating plants. The time needed for an aphid to transmit a virus has been determined to be about 30-seconds! Considering the fact that aphids sometimes fly, and can be carried long distances by wind, it is not surprising that aphid-borne viruses sometimes are a severe problem.

None of the viruses detected during the recent survey of Pennsylvania pumpkins is seed-borne. The only virus of the five listed above that is seed-borne is SqMV.

Control programs for this problem focus on the source, the vector, and plant resistance.

The first step is to eliminate or control the source of the virus. This can be done by controlling weeds in and around plantings. Some weeds are a source of viruses, and also harbor the aphid vectors. For some fields, where viruses are severe yearly, it may be necessary to rotate production to fields where less inoculum is present around the fields.

The next step in a control program is to eliminate or minimize the number of aphids that land on crop leaves. Use of aphicides does not provide adequate control of the virus, presumably because at least some aphids transmit the virus before the aphids are controlled (since aphids can transmit the virus in less than a minute). In some crops, it is possible to "repel" aphids by growing plants on reflective mulch; however, this is not effective for crops such as pumpkins which produce extensive vines that quickly cover the ground. In some crops, floating row-covers can minimize number of aphids that land on plants; however, this technology is not feasible for large commercial pumpkin fields.

The best control in the future will likely be resistance. Some seed companies are working on this now and are making some progress with ZYMV. Eventually, resistance to multiple viruses should be available.

To Evaluate Feeding Value Of Your Corn Silage

The nutritive value of your corn silage can vary greatly based on a number of different factors. According to Dr. Jud Heinrichs, the agronomic factors include soil fertility, weeds, plant population, and the plant hybrid. An additional factor which has substantial impact on the feeding value of the silage is the moisture content of the crop at harvest. This will affect both the dry matter content of the silage and the digestibililty.

The silage moisture at harvest is the biggest single factor affecting the fermentation of the crop. Provided there are ample sugars in the crop and adequate bacteria present to digest these sugars, moisture determines the type and amount of fermentation that occurs. Moisture content will also determine how well the silage packs and eliminates oxygen.

If the silage is harvested drier than desirable, there will be a decrease in forage digestibility in addition to packing problems. This means silage that is too dry will not be suitable for high-producing dairy cows because of the lowered digestibility. However it still will be acceptable feed for far-off dry cows or older heifers, provided that it is not moldy and it is fed as a part of a well-balanced ration.

Because your silage could vary in feeding value greatly based on all these factors, have your silage tested to determine how best to use it in your program.

Quote of The Week:

In light of the tragic events in our nation this week, I offer these appropriate words by the Apostle Paul:

"I urge, then, first of all, that prayers, intercession, and thanksgiving be made for everyone — for kings and all those in authority, that we may live peaceful and quiet lives in all godliness and holiness."

— (I Timothy 2:1-2)

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor:

Terrorism coverage, like kids' cartoons, has become addictive. Many hours of TV bring the horrors of terrorism into our home. Parents need to be concerned about the possible effect this non-stop coverage might have on children. Even more importantly, what can parents do to ease a child's fear?

Not long ago, the National Association for the Education of Young Children issued a warning about media violence. They went on record as condemning violent television programming, movies, videotapes, and computer games.

What is particularly dangerous in the present situation is the apparent innocence or matter-of-factness of the TV programming. The nightly news or the network news brief carries the violent programming. It's not the hour long sitcom or weekly shoot-em-up program.

Research has shown time and time again that violence on TV is not healthy for developing children. Three problems are associated with heavy viewing of violence on television.

1. Children may become less sensitive to the pain and suffering of those around them. Simply put, children who view heavy doses of violence just "get used to it."

2. Children may become more

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHAT MAKES JESUS ANGRY?

Background Scripture:
Mark 3:1-16; John 9:1-12.
Devotional Reading:
John 4:46-54.

"And he looked around him at them with anger; grieved at their hardness of heart . . ." (Mark 3:5).

Although we might conclude that Jesus was angry when he drove the money changers out of the temple (Mt. 21;12; Mk 11:15; Jn. 2:14,15), the only place in the gospels that specifically stated he was angry is Mark 3:5. I imagine there were, in fact, other times when Jesus was angry, but the evangelists do not tell us about them.

Some people we know have the capacity to get angry over almost anything. To try to avoid angering them is virtually impossible. But there are others whose anger shows only on rare occasions and we cannot help but note what it is that moves them to anger. In relating to these people, it is helpful to know how to keep them from becoming angry.

So, what was it that made Jesus angry? Mark 3 indicates that it was the hardness of heart of some of the people who witnessed his healing of the man with "a withered hand." Without needing to hear his detractors say so, Jesus knew that "they watched him, to see whether he would heal on the sabbath, so that they might accuse him" (8:2). The Jewish faith was the most compassionate religion in the world at the time, so, if these men were faithful Jews, they would be focusing with compassion and joy on this man whose withered hand was being healed by Jesus.

But they did not care about the plight of this man; their minds were set only upon accusing Jesus of wrongdoing in healing on the sabbath. But Jesus put it to them in a way they couldn't answer: " 'Is it lawful on the sabbath to do good or to do harm; to save life or to kill?' But they were silent'" (3:4).

Instead Of Rejoicing

This may seem an incredible situation today, but I think this attitude is still much with us. Some Christians, instead of rejoicing when other name-brand Christians do something good and worthwhile, get "bent out of shape" and look for something they can criticize or even condemn. They may overlook a good result because, according to them, it wasn't done the "right way" — "right," of course, as they define it.

We find a similar situation in John 9 and even some of the disciples run the risk of incurring Jesus' righteous anger. Seeing the man who was blind from birth, they ask, "Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?" (9:2). What audacity!

Because of their theology, they assume that his blindness is the result of sin and they want to know whose sin it was. Job's "friends" had asked him a similar question and for their impudence they earned God's censure. People are still likely to ask a downtrodden "friend": what did you do to get yourself into all this trouble?

Many of those who saw Jesus heal the man born blind, instead of rejoicing that at long last he could see, were more concerned just how his sight had been restored. They seemed to suspect that Jesus had done something wrong, not something right: "Then how were your eyes opened?" they asked the healed man. But, most odious of all, were the Pharisees: "This man is not from God, for he does not keep the sabbath" (v.16).

Hell's Temperature

Someone once said, "Beware of those who think they know the furniture of heaven and the temperature of hell!" The same may be said of those who are too sure they know what is "of God" and what is not. That is an attitude of arrogance, not humility, and it leads some people to substitute their own judgment for the judgment of God.

Even though the evangelists record only one clear incident of Jesus' anger, they also suggest other occasions in which his response was anything but benign. There are 21 times in the gospels of Mark, Matthew, and Luke in which Jesus refers to "hypocrite," "hypocrites," and "hypocrisy." Each of these suggest an angry response to that which could make Jesus angry: hypocritical hardness of heart.

So, knowing what angers Jesus — do we?

tearful of the world around them if they view lots of TV violence.

3. Viewing large amounts of TV violence leads many children to act in an aggressive or harmful manner. Meanness and fighting tend to increase.

Sometimes the effects of TV violence are immediate. A few years ago one mother told of her 13-year-old son who sat watching the news from the Gulf. He observed the close-up bombing raids and the effects of the high-tech bombs. Immediately he switched on a video game and proceeded to continue the "bombing raids." 'It was frightening" the mother said. "It was almost like the Gulf and his game were the same."

Parents have a tough job. On the one hand most parents want their children to be interested. Most want their children to have human concern. This is best achieved by keeping up-to-date and watching the news programs. On the other hand, children can get too much real-life violence and suffer some of the problems mentioned before, like being fearful of the world. Balancing these two is difficult. If different age children are present it's even touchier.

Parents can help their children understand and understanding will help minimize the effect of violence on TV.

View the news together. Talk about what is happening. Often children have incomplete or false ideas about what they are seeing. They don't understand the newsperson who is explaining an event. Get out a globe or large map. Most libraries have a globe, so do schools. Use the globe to show your child where the terrorism was and where he lives. A child may fear a plane will drop on his house.

If the child is afraid, and many are, talking helps. Allow the child to talk. Parents should make time to listen. Try to figure out what the child is afraid of. Help the child understand what she is afraid of and help her find the difference between fantasy and reality. One child, whose house is near an airport, screamed out when an airplane came over his house. His father calmly admitted that the sound of an airplane could be scary. They also talked about all the hundreds of planes that had gone over before. "They are landing at the airport. This one you heard landed just like all the others. Tomorrow, you and I will drive by the airport and try to see the plane that landed. Now, you go back to sleep."

Parents also need to monitor the amount of news watching children actually do. If parents allow children to freely turn on the television, then careful monitoring is necessary.

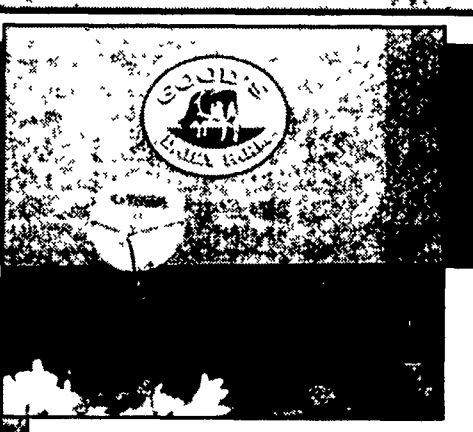
"WAFFLE SLAT" Syri-Con Corporation

"The biggest benefit is the labor savings."



"My only regret is that I wish I had made the pit under the barn deeper."

"In my previous barn, I scraped two times a day; and I was tired of it, not to mention the danger to the cows if a cable snapped. I thought I would not be able to justify the additional cost until my builder suggested a design change which brought the cost down relatively close to the original design.

The biggest benefit to me is the labor savings. Two people can handle all the chores for our herd. I save money not only on labor but also on repairs.

The cows' hooves are healthier, and they show heat better because they are not afraid of slipping. During the five years with slats, I have not lost a single heifer from slipping. The cows stay much cleaner, even with my misting system for cooling them. The water has a place to escape."

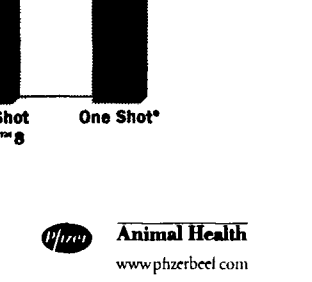
When calves MOVE OUT, don't give PNEUMONIA time to move in.

When calves move out of the hutch, stress gives pneumonia a door to move in. So act fast to protect them, with One Shot®. One Shot is the only Pasteurella vaccine that builds a significant leukotoxin response to the most common cause of bacterial pneumonia within just 7 days[1]. A response that's faster and stronger than Pyramid®4/Presponse®[1]. That means less lung damage[2]. And healthy animals are more productive. Ask your veterinarian or animal health supplier about One Shot or One Shot Ultra™, the only Pasteurella/blackleg combination.



Get ahead of the clock— take your best shot before pneumonia does.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State

Sept. 13, 2001

Terrorist Attack Creates Financial Uncertainty

- Attack could spark a global recession.
- Consumer confidence shaken.
- Impact on the dairy industry less certain.
- Dairy as "comfort food."

The simultaneous terrorist attacks on New York and Washington had two intended targets: the U.S. financial markets and the U.S. Defense Department. The loss of life on U.S. soil is unprecedented, and the ultimate impacts on the U.S. economy are unknown.

There is concern that the attack will result in pushing an already shaky U.S. economy into a full-blown recession. Consumer confidence and spending were already showing signs of weakness. American consumers may react by postponing major expenses such as automobiles and houses.

Sectors of the economy most vulnerable would be travel — particularly the airlines, insurance and banking, large consumer items such as automobiles, and retail.

The financial markets were literally shut down because of the crisis. The New York Stock Exchange (NYSE), the Nasdaq Stock Market, the American Stock Market, and the Chicago Board of Trade and Chicago Mercantile Exchange were all shut down for three days. The Wall Street Journal reports that these exchanges haven't been shut down for this long since 1914, when the NYSE was closed for four months in response to the war in Europe.

Economists have little to go on when comparing this human tragedy to past events. We do know that the 1990 Gulf War drove up oil prices, depressed consumer confidence, and resulted in an economic slowdown.

That event began on August 2, 1990 with the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and continued until the military conflict ended on March 5, 1991. The conflict affected the U.S. economy during the last half of 1990, as well as the first quarter of 1991.

The impact of the Gulf War on the U.S. dairy industry was mixed. Demand for American cheese and pizza cheese was strong during the last two quarters of 1990. A lot of people stayed home, ate pizza, and watched CNN news. However, demand for butter fell significantly before and after the event, and demand for American cheese fell the first half of 1991.

Consumers today may react the same way. They may spend less money eating out, traveling, and going to celebrations over the next few months. However, dairy products are a staple as well as a comfort food. Consumers may spend more money eating dairy products within the confines of their homes. There is no doubt that U.S. policymakers will upgrade efforts to stave off an economic slowdown. Again, the Wall Street Journal quoted a leading economist who cited possible antidotes to a recession as a quick move to cut taxes, more federal spending, and easier monetary policy. Spending for defense and intelligence will likely increase. The Bush Administration has sent a $20 billion request to the Congress today for emergency spending measures.

The health of the U.S. economy is a very important factor in determining demand for U.S. dairy products. We do have a dairy price support program that is poised to purchase surplus dairy products in the event markets weaken. But that program only kicks into full gear once Class III milk prices fall to $9.80 per CWT. (Class III prices are more than $15 per CWT.) Thus, U.S. dairy farmers are very dependent on selling their products to eager consumers.

American consumers will likely remain positive about our country's future, and any economic slowdown will, we hope, be short lived. The problem is we don't yet understand the full human and economic implications of what has transpired. There is no precedent. Analysts I spoke with are citing the impact of these events on the dairy industry to be neutral to only slightly negative. It's very possible that consumers will look to dairy foods as a source of comfort in these trying times, and as a symbol of what is good and pure in America.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week ending Sept 7, 2001. Receipts this week 169,800, last week 160,200; year ago 139,000. Feeder steers and heifers sold mostly steady again this week, according to USDA Livestock and Grain Market News Service. A few more numbers sold on the plus side than lower as calf country of the Southeast was steady to 2 00 higher. Their marketings were sharply under a year ago as late summer rains put some life in the pastures in the Southeast and Southwest. However, some other places showing seasonally increased receipts even with the holiday this week The slaughter market was a little weaker this week but still mostly 70.00 live and 111 00 in the beef Box beef cutouts made a comeback and closed on top of 118.00. Definitely, best demand for Choice and this grade selling at an 8.50 premium to Select. The good news in the wholesale beef trade this week was the huge volume that moved. Consumer beef demand remains healthy, despite further losses in the financial markets. Nearby futures at a 2.50 premium to the live trade and February at 75.75 does not hedge out at current yearling prices. Supply this week 47 percent over 600 lbs.

Oklahoma National Stockyards - Weekly Cattle Summary Compared to last week: Feeder steers 2.00 higher, feeder heifers steady. Demand very good for feeder cattle. Steer calves steady, heifer calves steady to 3.00 lower. Demand very good for steer calves, moderate for heifer calves. Farmers have turned their attention to field work and interest in receiving and caring for new crop calves is moving to the back burner. Quality of feeder supply plain to average, calves mostly average. Feeder cattle in medium flesh. Calves in medium to mostly fleshy condition and this an increase in fleshy unweaned calves over past two weeks. Weigh-ups mostly average.

Compared to last Tuesday: Slaughter cows 1.50-2.50 lower. Slaughter bulls steady. Demand light to moderate for slaughter cows, good for bulls. Decline in slaughter cow prices a direct function of the market as increased numbers are available at auctions following the holiday shortened week. Several packer buyers affirmed that their prices had not changed since Monday evening. Bred cows and pairs a different matter as these considerably lower. Stifled replacement market could be related to farmers busy with field work in this area or they could be nervous over current situation but this latter thought is unsubstantiated. Total of 795 cows and bulls sold with 60 percent to packers.

Receipts this week 11,760; last week 1614, last year 10,645

Supply consisted of 52 percent yearlings and calves over 600 lbs; 41 percent calves, 7 percent cows and bulls. Heifers comprised 39 percent of feeder and calf supply

Franklin County Beef Club Begins Scholarship

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Ronnie and Deb Hartman, Chambersburg, are announcing the start of a scholarship to be given each year to Franklin County baby beef club participants.

The award is in honor of their son, Aaron, or "AJ," a junior at Chambersburg Area High School when he passed away on April 23 in an automobile accident.

AJ owned both a project and companion steer that will be sold at the Franklin County 4-H Roundup's sale September 29 at Greencastle Livestock Auction.

Thirty-three head will be sold at the auction. Money from the sale of the steers will go into the scholarship fund, according to Deb.

Additionally, funds from possible re-sales of the animals would also go to the scholarship account if the buyer prefers. Donations to the club in AJ's memory will be forwarded to the scholarship.

Interest from the fund will be the scholarship money that is awarded each year to an eligible baby beef club participant who is going to a college or trade school.

AJ showed steers and heifers, which were exhibited by members of the beef club during this year's show season.

The steers have been at the nearby Conner residence. The Conner family has taken care of and exhibited the animals during the show season.

The scholarship is to be awarded in AJ's memory.

"He always had a smile," said Deb.

Vector Tobacco Tops 3,000 Acres In Lancaster County

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Despite a persistent drought, tobacco continues to be a domineering crop in southeastern Pennsylvania.

This year, Vector Tobacco's contracted growing operations encompass about 3,000 acres in the county, according to Vector representative Larry Weaver, New Holland.

"For as little rain, we've gotten along pretty good this season," said Weaver. About 70 percent of the tobacco is cut in the area.

Vector has about 600 growers in the county, making up about half the tobacco grown.

"For us, it was a banner year," said Jerry Winstead, president of Trileaf, an agent for Vector Tobacco in Pennsylvania. "Tobacco turned out really well. Most growers are really, really pleased."

According to Dennis Hess, president of the Pennsylvania Tobacco Marketing Association, production of Maryland 609 is way down, he said. However, production of Pennsylvania Type 41 tobacco is up, with about 1,000 acres in, "more year than last," said Hess. Many Pa. 41 contracts were signed with Lancaster Leaf.

Pa. Type 41 makes up about 35 percent of the tobacco grown in Lancaster County, the number one county in the state in terms of tobacco production. Maryland 609 makes up only about 15 percent of the total tobacco grown.

Online Beef Record Service Helps Commercial Cattle Producers

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The American Angus Association has the solution for those cattle producers who are looking for a way to capitalize on today's information-driven, value-based marketing systemthe Beef Record Service (BRS).

BRS provides a system for commercial producers to keep performance records on their animals, regardless of breed composition. These records can be used as valuable decision-making tools to enhance ranchers' profitability.

Once producers submit their data, it is then converted into more comparative numbers according to Standardized Performance Analysis (SPA) guidelines. This information can help producers make selection decisions on their cowherd, while it supplies information to help market the calf progeny as steers and replacement heifers.

Continued enhancements of the BRS program include BRS Online, which makes data more accessible to its users. Now, BRS Online users can submit a variety of information online at www.angusbrs.com, including sire and dam enrollment, sire group enrollment, breeding, weaning and yearling weights, and feedlot and carcass information.

The online service allows the commercial cattle producers access to their information 24 hours a day, seven days a week. In addition to submitting information online, the producer can view his or her data, and create reports that help track a herds' performance.

The data can also be downloaded into personal software applications already used on his or her personal computer.

"These continued enhancements give the cattle producers the ability to view and sort data within 24 hours of submission of data to the American Angus Association and its industry-leading one-day processing time," says Matt Perrier, assistant director of the commercial relations department.

"We are constantly working to make additions and improvements to this dynamic Association program."

The BRS program provides a tool for serious producers who wish to link the end product to the producing factory by identifying genetics that work in their operation.

By using individual animal identification (either electronic ID tags or traditional methods), comprehensive report forms, and reports generated by the American Angus Association to evaluate and compare the data, cattle producers can characterize their commercial cowherds, and have a higher-quality, more marketable product for their customer.

There is no fee to enroll in BRS; however, a $2 per head fee is charged for each weaning weight submitted.

For more information about BRS, contact the American Angus Association's commercial relations department at (816) 383-5100 or log onto www.angusbrs.com.

Dairy Workshop Planned

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Dairy managers are encouraged to enroll in a unique workshop opportunity for dairy operations.

On Oct. 23-24, Dr. Tom Fuhrman will be presenting a two-day DairyWorks management seminar in Chambersburg. The workshop will be conducted at the Quality Inn in Chambersburg from approximately 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Oct. 23-24. The Quality Inn is located just off Rt. 81 and the telephone number is (717) 263-3400.

Fuhrman has consulted with dairy businesses throughout the U.S. and around the world to help them reach new levels of organization and performance. The DairyWorks seminar is designed to help managers organize their businesses and employees for optimum productivity and efficiency.

Several areas of emphasis are covered in DairyWorks, including building teamwork, developing systems in the dairy operation, establishing objectives for each management team, organizing work, and recording and monitoring the results achieved by each team. As dairy managers have more hired employees on their farms, the need to develop repeatable, systematic approaches to farm responsibilities increases. This program will help managers develop a blueprint for how the dairy should be organized and provide guidelines on how to train and implement the program with employees.

Because of the generous support of several industry sponsors, we are able to offer a reduced fee to a limited number of participants. The reduced fee is $450 per person and includes materials, breaks, and lunches. Evening meals and hotel accommodations are on your own.

After the available reduced seats are filled, individuals can still register at the full rate of $825. Make checks payable to Extension Service Special Fund (ESSF) and send to Penn State Cooperative Extension, 112 Pleasant Acres Road York, PA 17402-9041. For questions about registration, contact Tim Beck at (717) 840-7408 or e-mail tbeck@psu.edu.

For more information, visit www.dairyworks.com to learn more about the program, or contact Tim Beck for a brochure with more details.

Farm Production Expenditures Up 2.4 Percent In 2000

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. farm production expenditures totaled $188.5 billion in 2000, up 2.4 percent from the revised 1999 total of $184.1 billion, according to the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS).

The largest contributors to the increase were: fuels, up 32.0 percent; farm improvements and construction, up 18.0 percent; livestock and poultry purchases, up 7.1 percent; and other farm machinery, up 2.9 percent.

The increases were partially offset by decreases in: farm supplies and repairs, down 1.6 percent; farm services, down 1.2 percent; and ag chemicals, down 1.2 percent.

The largest two expenditure categories were farm services which accounted for 13.5 percent of the U.S. total production expenses, and feed which accounted for 13.0 percent of the U.S. total production expenses.

The farm services category includes expense items such as custom work, utilities, marketing charges, veterinary services, transportation costs, and miscellaneous business expenses.

The average expenditures per U.S. farm in 2000 were $87,035 compared to $84,195, as revised for 1999.

On the average, U.S. farm operations in 2000 spent $11,728 on farm services; $11,312 on feed; $9,142 on labor; $8,311 on livestock and poultry purchases; and $7,434 on rent.

Revised estimates for 1999 indicated that U.S. farms spent an average of $11,757 on farm services; $11,208 on feed; $9,012 on labor; $7,685 on livestock and poultry purchases; and $7,274 on rent.

The Northeast Farm Production Region (Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont) contributed $11.9 billion or 6.2 percent of the 2000 U.S. total for farm production expenditures.

The regions with the highest total expenditures were: the Corn Belt (IL, IN, IA, MO, OH) at $35.3 billion; Pacific Region (CA, OR, WA) at $31.2 billion; Northern Plains (KS, NE, ND, SD) at $24.2 billion; Lake States (MI, MN, WI) at $19.4 billion; and the Southern Plains (OK, TX) at $16.0 billion.

Cattle File Through Ring At Carbon County Fair

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

PALMERTON (Carbon Co.) — In a county not generally known for an abundance of cattle, either dairy or beef, the numbers to file through the ring at the Carbon County Fair recently was encouraging.

Carbon County sits at the threshold of the Poconos and has its southern end nestled between Schuylkill, Lehigh and Northampton counties — each having far more cattle numbers than Carbon. This year saw 39 dairy beef alone run through the sale ring at the Schuylkill County Fair.

Six years ago two Carbon 4-H members started the dairy beef project tailored after the program used by Schuylkill County. That first year was all it took to spark the interest of other members to complete the fast growing popular project. The dairy beef project is a perfect introduction for members who may have thoughts of someday going on to complete the market steer project.

The project involves the member taking possession of a neutered male dairy calf — no beef crosses — under the age of one week between Jan. 1 and Jan. 31 of the project year. The calf and member "grow" together in age, maturity and experience. The calf is raised to go into a feedlot and sold at weights between 500 and 700 pounds at the 4-H livestock sale that summer.

Since some families are not actively involved with raising beef animals it is much safer for their children to start with a week old calf than a 500-pound beef calf. The confidence the child gains by working with a young calf such as in the dairy beef project will prepare them to someday move onto the market steer project.

The project has grown over the past six years to the point where there were 13 dairy beef entered in the competition in Carbon County this year. The calves are purchased from dairies in Carbon, Schuylkill, Berks and Northampton counties.

Wendall Landis, director of beef quality assurance (BQA) for the Pennsylvania Beef Council, recently judged the entries of the dairy beef show at the Carbon County Fair.

Landis selected intermediate fitter Lee Shoenberger as his champion fitter with senior fitter Shanna Simmons taking the reserve champion fitter title. Simmons went on to be named the champion showman with junior member Christiana Graver selected as the reserve champion showman.

Graver's 651-pound Holstein, Oreo, was later named grand champion dairy beef of the show. The reserve champion title went to the 513-pound entry of Simmons. Hometown Farmers' Market purchased Graver's champion at the 4-H livestock sale for $850 with the reserve champion of Simmons selling to Gap View Farms, Lehighton, for the final bid of $800.

Members completing the dairy beef project often move on to the market steer project. Such is the case in Carbon County. Justin Cunfer, 17, one of the two members to start the dairy beef project six years ago, was Landis' selection for champion fitter and champion showman of the market steer competition.

Reserve fitter honors went to Josh Kemmerer, 17, with Simmons being named reserve champion showman. Both Cunfer and Kemmerer are seniors in the Lehighton school district.

Cunfer has started his own herd of breeding beef with one of his home-bred calves being named the champion market steer. Landis described the 1,316-pound Angus cross of Cunfer as being a stout and ruggedly-made steer with great depth and dimension. Moses, the champion market steer, sold to Chas. S. Snyder Inc., Tamaqua, for $1,425.

Simmons then saw her 1,224-pound Carbon bred Limousin steer rise to the reserve champion market steer spot. Simmons, a recent graduate of Lehighton High School, has started her freshman year at Bloomsburg University studying accounting. The reserve champion of Simmons sold for $1,200 to Albright's Mill, Kempton.

In the 4-H breeding beef competition, Cunfer was also named the champion fitter and champion showman. In the Angus division Cunfer's junior heifer calf, NDF Blackbird Bridget 101, a Jan. 2001 GAR Commitment daughter, was named the champion heifer calf as well as taking first place in the bred and owned heifer class.

His Jan. 2000 OCC Anchor 771A daughter, Weaverland Scaara Chafie, took the champion yearling heifer title and later moved on to the champion heifer spot of the 4-H and open breeding competition. Reserve champion heifer honors went to NDF Blackbird Bridget 101, the champion heifer calf.

In the open beef breeding competition Cunfer's Angus junior bull calf, the March 2001 son of Twin Valley Precision E161, NDF Precision Magnum 103, was named the grand champion bull calf and later the grand champion beef bull of the show by Landis. Cunfer's Nov. 2000 son of Keifer's Fullback, NDF Prince Fullback 003, took the reserve bull championships of the show.

In the first open dairy show of the newly-reorganized Carbon County Fair, Mike Swartley, herdsman in the bull production facility at Select Sires, selected the winter yearling heifer of Shelly Rex, Andreas, as his grand champion female of the Holstein show.

Swartley described Den-Al Fred Brook, who was first named the junior champion female, as a long bodied heifer. As his reserve junior champion and reserve champion female he selected the fall heifer, Ruch Durham Casey, owned by Caitlyn Ruch, also of Andreas.

The fair posted the following results.

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

MOORESTOWN (Northampton Co.) — Ken Brubaker, Womelsdorf, breeder of commercial sheep and coach of the Berks County 4-H judging team, reviewed the entries of the market goat and market sheep shows at the Northampton County 4-H Community Roundup recently.

Brubaker selected Amber Buttner as the junior fitter of the market goat portion of the roundup. Buttner went on to become the champion fitter with senior fitter, Diana Holder, being named the reserve champion fitter.

In the showmanship competition, Buttner and Holder switched places with senior Holder being named champion showman and junior showman Buttner receiving the reserve showman honors. Buttner was also named the champion fitter and champion showman of the dairy goat fitting and showmanship competition of the roundup.

Reserve champion fitter of the dairy goat show was Jamie Osborn with Derick Stenlake being selected as the reserve champion showman.

In the weight classes Buttner's 80-pound entry from the heavyweight class was selected as the champion market goat. Julie Blackadar's 62-pound winner of the medium weight class went on to be named reserve champion of the market goat show.

TRADING CORN SILAGE

Traditionally, farmers traded corn as dry shelled or dry ear and priced it by the bushel, either 56 or 70 pounds. This is simple when the commodities are in these stable and uniform forms. But in the Capitol Region of Pennsylvania, now more than half of all corn acres are harvested as corn silage and high-moisture grain. This creates some pricing challenges.

Some Questions To Be Answered

- How do growers and feeders arrive at a price which is fair? If there were an auction where willing buyers could meet willing sellers of silage and high moisture corn, then that market could establish a "going price" at that location. But these commodities are unstable and subject to rapid spoilage, so they cannot practically be run through an auction. This characteristic reduces the market options and value for corn in these forms. Then there is the transport cost of all that water. Also, there is no standard or required moisture content for these products, so they need to be reduced to a dry matter (DM) basis and traded accordingly. But there is also an ideal moisture range outside of which feed quality suffers.

The "market price" for dry shelled corn should be an important component of any silage pricing calculations. But which "corn price" to use can also be debated. Should it be the local mill price on the day of harvest or should it be the contract price for grain delivery to the mill in November or December? Then this raises the question of how the added value of cob and/or stem in the product will be valued? Also, how will price be adjusted for droughted silage or long-stem, low-energy silage?

- How is quantity to be measured? Weighing an occasional wagonload and doing one moisture test can be very misleading when applied to the entire harvest. Using reliable dry matter capacity tables for silo or bag storages are usually more accurate over the normal ranges in moisture.
- How are adjustments to value to be computed? If the buyer pays for harvest and delivery to storage, how much less should the grower get than if grower harvests and delivers?

Roland P. Freund

Corn Silage Spreadsheet

We can do the complex calculations to answer many of these questions quickly using a spreadsheet to arrive at values for corn silage. To illustrate, here are some expected figures for 2001 based upon the following input assumptions:

	Normal	Droughted
Shelled Corn yield (Bu./ac.)	120	20
Corn Silage yield (Tons / acre)	20	7
Corn Silage Moisture %	65	58.0
Corn Silage NEL	0.74	0.68
Shelled corn harv. cont. $/Bu	$2.20	$2.20
Grass hay price / Ton	$80	$80
Field to Grain Mill - miles	5	5
Field to Silage Silo - miles	3	3
Grower harvests and delivers	Yes	Yes

Normal Silage

Grower's viewpoint. After harvesting, hauling, and drying the shelled, the corn grower could be left with $211 per acre. But his silage harvest and hauling costs, plus his stover losses, add up to $120 an acre. To break even with shelled corn, the grower needs $331 per acre or $16.57 per ton of 35 percent DM corn silage.

Buyer's viewpoint. It would cost the buyer $608 for ear corn and hay to furnish the feed equivalents from one acre of corn silage. But buyer has ensiling costs and losses estimated at $83 which makes an acre of the delivered silage worth $525. This calculates to $26.26 per ton for the 35 percent DM of silage. Buyers need to realize that if this material were 30 percent DM (70 percent moisture), the value would be $22.51, while at 40 percent DM it would be worth $30.

Price negotiation. In this case, the parties have a range between $16.57 and $26.26. This suggests that a price of $21 per ton green delivered 35 percent DM silage would be a good deal for both. If the buyer absorbs the cost of harvesting and hauling, he/she should get it for $4 per ton less or $17 in this example.

Droughted Silage

In a droughty situation, the field might return $16 per acre for shelled corn after costs. To break even on corn silage, the grower should get $78 per acre or $11.11 per ton. However, the buyer gets silage which has only 77 percent of normal feed value. This is based on NEL and DM according to the latest Penn State adjustment tables.

After ensiling costs and losses, this calculates to a maximum price for the buyer of $24.23 for 58 percent moisture silage. The range for negotiation is now wider. The supply and demand for such silage will determine what the price will be. If buyers have the option to buy good silage, they should do so. Otherwise seek to get droughted silage for $14 rather than $24.

Corn Silage Whole-Plant Dry Down Rates[a]

Tim Beck, Capital Region Dairy Program Coordinator

Corn silage harvest proceeds at a rapid rate throughout the region as corn dries down quickly. Even the later planted corn tested has progressed past desirable moisture levels for bunker silos.

Sugar levels in the well-eared, later planted corn are in the expected range of 8%--30% for corn. Sugar levels vary with the dry matter content of the corn and are considered sufficient above 4% of DM when the corn is 60% moisture. Wetter corn would be expected to have higher soluble sugar content. The early planted samples are low in sugar content based on this guideline, while the later planted corn shows desirable sugar content.

Low sugar content could result in incomplete fermentation due to poor microbial growth or sugars may be depleted by bacterial growth during fermentation, resulting in low energy silage with reduced feeding value. We'll continue to monitor sugar levels for the planting dates over the coming weeks.

LANCASTER FARMING SCHEDULES FAMILY FARM SEMINAR

With holidays approaching, families can take time to discuss farm transition and marketing. Lancaster Farming will provide a forum to begin those types of discussion with our "Family Farm Survival Seminar: Management and Marketing," Tuesday, Nov. 13, at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster. Watch the paper for details, including schedule of events.

Conservation Districts Host 'Ag Days'

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — In an effort to educate municipal officials about the ever-changing face of agriculture, conservation districts in Pennsylvania have hosted "Ag Days" for municipal officials and their families. The free program included a family dinner and children's activities.

The Chester County Conservation District hosted 100 township officials and their families at the Brandywine Valley Association Myrick Environmental Center on Aug. 21, and the Berks County program took place at Blue Falls Grove, Leesport, Aug. 31.

Entitled "Agricultural Growth In the New Millennium — A Fresh Look At the Changing Family Farm and How it Affects the Local Municipality," the program offered tools to township officials to deal with agriculture in their communities.

At the Ag Day programs, Dr. Christine Kellett, professor of law at Penn State Dickinson Agricultural Law Research and Education Center, spoke on "Agricultural Law — Zoning, Farmland Preservation, Nutrient Management, and Local Ordinances."

Kellett encouraged township officials to consult the agricultural community, the conservation district, and township solicitors when formulating agricultural ordinances to stay within the realm of the law and avoid conflict. She informed officials on a recent decision by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in June 2001: Kneeler v. Township of Hellam, determining that a township had no actual or incidental power to impose a moratorium on building approvals. This particular decision could affect townships considering moratoriums on large-scale agriculture.

At the Chester County program, Matthew Hickey, with the Chester County Economic Development Council, spoke about the growth and change of agriculture while farms attempt to stay prosperous; and Kevin Baer, speaking for the County Agricultural Preservation Board, addressed the role of the municipal agriculture security area advisory committee. The event concluded with a panel of officials discussing the role of agriculture in their communities.

At the Berks County program, Donald Reinert, nutrient management specialist, encouraged townships to work with the conservation district on agricultural issues to prompt better understanding of agriculture and its changes. Concluding the program was a panel discussion on water quality led by moderator John Ravert, manager of Berks CD. Panelists were Tom Sweeney, soil scientist, Pennsylvania DEP SCRO; Jineen Boyle, watershed manager, Pennsylvania DEP SCRO; Dr. Christine Kellett; and Donald Reinert.

Ag Community Responds

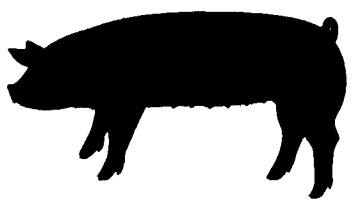
In a statement Thursday, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau President Guy Donaldson extended sympathy and prayers to families affected by the "senseless acts of violence."

"Our nation experienced a terrible reminder of the fragility of life. The spirit embodied by the thousands of volunteers who have come forward to provide whatever aid and comfort they can, is one that is familiar to America's farm families. We have faith that the spirit and unified purpose of the American people will thwart any threat to our freedom and liberties. And we have faith that our elected leaders will join together to protect and defend our way of life. We join all fellow citizens in giving our hearts to all those affected by this tragedy."

Although economic concerns — including agriculture — have been secondary to the human toll of the attacks, some analysts and leaders in the ag community have commented on the broader implications.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Samuel Hayes, Jr., said in a statement Thursday, "In addition to the physical threat, Tuesday's terrorism has already had an impact on Pennsylvania's role in the global marketplace. The Department of Agriculture was contacted on Wednesday by a buyer from Singapore to indefinitely cancel his business trip to Pennsylvania later this month because of Tuesday's terrorism. Without any doubt, the threat of terrorism will have a negative impact."



Penn State agricultural economist Jim Dunn spoke Wednesday on the potential impact on ag commerce, even while waiting news on the fate of several of his colleagues that had been employed at the World Trade Center (WTC).

"I'm a lot more concerned about the people involved," he said.

According to Dunn, some significant outcomes of the attack that could affect our agriculture are that the New York Commodity Exchange and a dairy futures trading center were located in the WTC.

"A lot of brokerage offices in the trade center included those that trade ag commodities," Dunn said.

Also located in the WTC were many firms that provide financial services such as loans and bonds to agribusinesses.

"There will be very difficult times (for the companies involved)," he said.

Although the destruction of ag trading and financial centers creates "an information problem," and will disrupt transactions, Dunn pointed out that the actual production and flow of ag products should not be greatly affected.

"Agriculture is ultimately determined by what is done on the farm," he said.

Hayes issued this warning in his statement: "Society should not believe our agriculture will always be spared from the actions of terrorists and their guerrilla attacks. Agro-terrorism is a threat. Our livestock, crops, and food supply can be seriously harmed by terrorists and unconventional combatants."

Michael Swanson, an ag economist for Wells Fargo bank, commented on the destruction.

"This is one more thing that complicates our trade relations with countries around the world," he said. "Trade is based on so much more than dollars and sense. It's based on relationships between governments and ordinary things like the ability of people to jump on a plane and travel from one place to another. Our farmers are really hooked up to this worldwide network of trade. If a market is closed to us, it has a deep impact."

At Lancaster Farming, we sympathize with all victims and families affected by Tuesday's tragedies, and stand behind national and worldwide efforts to bring justice to those responsible. All of us are proud to be Americans.

Merger Discussions

and Virginia members indicated it would be counterproductive to continue merger discussions."

"The meetings we have held with our Maryland and Virginia members indicate there is a significant level of member concern regarding a full merger," Maryland and Virginia General Manager Robert Shore said. "With that in mind, we agreed that it would be appropriate to discontinue merger discussions. We will, however, continue to explore ways our cooperatives can work together to benefit members."

Gherty said the initial merger discussions, and continuing discussions regarding future business relationships, are based on shared cooperative commitments and the increasing importance of size, scale and geographic reach to dairy industry success.

"All four cooperatives involved in these discussions share a commitment to preserving and expanding market access for members' milk, adding value to that milk and generating positive returns for members," Gherty said. "We will continue to explore ways that we can work together to achieve those goals. Our focus will be to develop business relationships that generate new efficiencies and enhanced market strength, putting our farmer-owned cooperatives in a better position to compete effectively and deliver maximum value to members and customers."

Officials of the four cooperatives voiced a commitment to continuing the work of Advantage Dairy Group, an East Coast milk-marketing joint venture established in January 2000 and involving Maryland and Virginia, Land O'Lakes, Lone Star, Arkansas Dairy, and Southeast Milk, Inc. (which was not involved in the merger discussions).

Lone Star Milk Producers General Manager Jim Baird added that Advantage Dairy Group is a prime example of cooperatives working together to compete more effectively, and it was a common desire to expand on that successful relationship that spurred interest in a merger plan.

"We have a proven record of working together," Baird said, "and we will continue the successful efforts of Advantage Dairy Group."

Land O'Lakes (www.landolakesinc.com) is a national, farmer-owned food and agricultural cooperative, with sales approaching $6 billion.

Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association (http://www.mdvamilk.com) is a milk marketing and processing cooperative which markets milk for nearly 1,600 dairy farmers in 10 states from Pennsylvania to Alabama.

Lone Star Milk Producers, Windthorst, Texas, markets 700 million pounds of milk for 130 dairy farmers in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. Arkansas Dairy Cooperative Association, Damascus, Ark., represents 300 million pounds of milk and 185 producers in Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma.

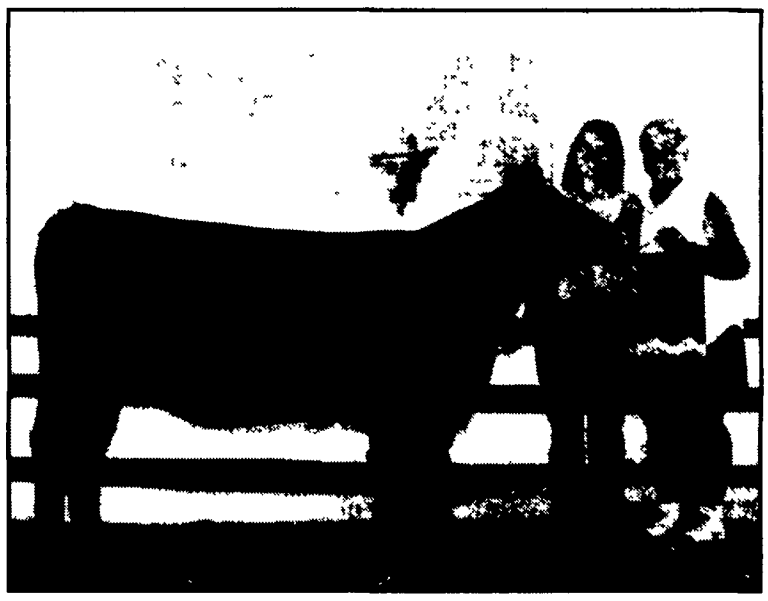
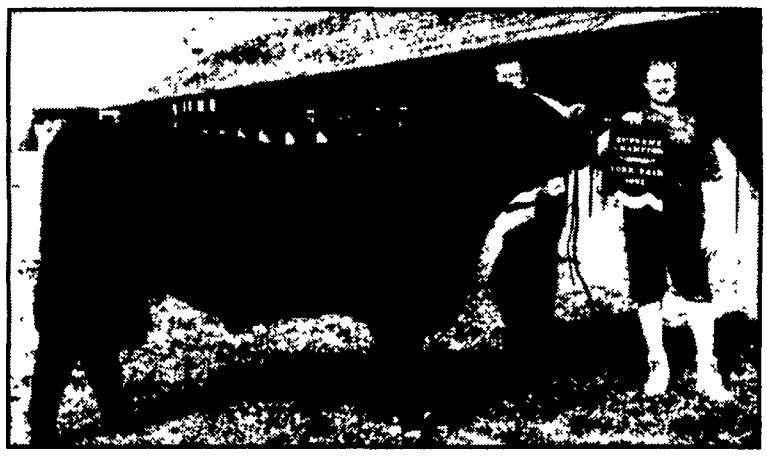
Angus Dominate York Fair Beef Shows



Kelly Hain's Red Angus heifer, "Brandy," was named the supreme female in the junior beef breeding show at the York Fair and received the Jack Myers memorial trophy award. Also shown with the supreme champion are Judge Cliff Orley and Lucy Hain.



Kurt Long's winning Angus bull took supreme champion open class honors at the York Fair's beef show.

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Angus cattle snagged supreme titles in the annual York Fair's beef breeding shows, with the traditional black cattle breed taking the open class honors, while the junior division was topped by a Red Angus.

Cliff Orley, Lebanon County owner of Keystone Cattle Service, officiated at the beef competition conducted at the fair from Sept. 8-10.

Junior exhibitor Kyle Grim bested all other breed champions in the final run-off for supreme heifer, taking the coveted banner for the family's Beaver Creek Farms, East Berlin. The supreme heifer is BCA Scaara Erica KO1, sired by Kruegerand Merger 34, and Kyle's first bred-and-owned animal of the seven in his herd. Kyle, 15, has been exhibiting beef for about four years.

Fellow junior exhibitor Kurt Long, Airville, duplicated the Angus effort on the bull side, taking supreme honors with the homebred yearling LVA Ace, born May 2000. The TC Stockman 365-sired bull also took supreme honors a few weeks prior at the Queen Anne's County fair, Maryland, and was champion and best junior bred-and-owned at the Angus Breeder's Show conducted earlier in the summer in Huntingdon County.

As the junior division show wrapped up, Kelly Hain, 19, and her bred-and-owned Red Angus heifer "Brandy" got the nod for the supreme title. It was Hain's first supreme win and a fitting finale to her last year as a junior division exhibitor. Hain also earned the Jack Myers memorial trophy award, given annually in memory of the late long-time beef breeder. Ironically, Myers was one of the area's first Red Angus breeders and winning heifer Brandy's bloodlines trace back to his breeding herd.

Contending breed heifer champions include, Cory Thompson, Wellsville, Angus; April Daugherty, York, Hereford; and Cassandra Hake, Etters, Simmental.

Prospect steers, a special class for younger animals being raised for Farm Show competition in January, was won by Cassandra Hake, with the first place lightweight entry.

Showmanship competition wrapped up with senior Herman Hake, Etters, named the top fitter, with Kelly Hain, the reserve champion winner. Other age group winners were Hope Long, Airville; Jamie Welsh, East Berlin; and Kim Long, Airville.

Kyle Grim, East Berlin, was named champion fitter, with Kelly Hain again taking the reserve champion award. Other fitting age class winners were Kurt Long, Airville, and Brooke Keeney, Felton.

Veal Industry Leaders Unite For Long Range Planning

DENVER, Colo. — Economic pressures on the American veal industry have brought industry leaders together in a joint long range planning effort.

The planning group, gathering at the 2001 Cattle Industry Summer Conference in Denver this week, includes leadership from the American Veal Association (AVA), the Joint Veal Committee, and from the top five veal producer states of Pennsylvania, New York, Indiana, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Led by facilitator Wayne Talarzyk, an emeritus professor of marketing at The Ohio State University, the leadership group is developing a three-year plan for 2002-2004. They plan to continue their discussions at the November Board meeting of the American Veal Association and hope to present a final plan at the beef industry's annual meeting next February.

"It's important for us to work together as an industry to establish a veal industry long-range plan," says Joint Industry Veal Committee Chairman Dennis Snyder.

"It's also important we have industry representation from throughout the top veal-producing states," adds AVA President John Landin.

"The veal industry is in need of a road map," says Talarzyk. "Good long-range planning will allow us to anticipate challenges and opportunities, and to develop strategies that will use these 'challenging changes' to our advantage."

In many ways, current planning efforts are an extension of earlier long range plans established by the industry in 1993 and 1996.

The Veal Long Range Planning Advisory Committee consists of Snyder, Landin, AVA Administrator Paul Slayton, AVA President-elect Art Henderlong, Joint Veal Committee Vice Chairman Ike Bootsma, Wisconsin Veal Growers Association President Tom Hance, Pennsylvania Veal Association President Regina Bagley, Dr. Drew Vermeire representing the Ohio Veal Association for President Jim Johnston, Indiana Veal Association President Terry Herrel, and New York Veal Growers Association President Hank Ferris.

Carbon County Fair Hosts Sheep, Swine Shows

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

PALMERTON (Carbon Co.) — Judge Dave Hosterman, swine herdsman for Penn State University, reviewed the 49 entries of the Carbon County 4-H swine show at the Carbon County Fair recently.

Justin Cunfer, 17, of East Penn Township, was Hosterman's selection as champion fitter and champion showman. Cunfer, president of the Carbon County 4-H livestock club will be a senior this year in the Lehighton school district. A nine-year member of the club, Cunfer has exhibited swine locally and at the Blue Valley Farm Show and Pennsylvania Farm Show.

Reserve fitter honors went to intermediate fitter, Sarah Miller, 12, also of East Penn Township with junior showman Christian Graver, 11, receiving the reserve showman title.

Graver, Franklin Township, went on to have her 229-pound Chester White entry from the heavy lightweight class named the reserve champion market hog of the show. Graver also took first place honors in the pair of market hog competition. A sixth grade student at Lehighton Middle School, Graver said she named her pig "Chester" even though it was a gilt. Graver said that of all of her project animals, she enjoys the pigs the most.

The champion market hog title went to the 261-pound Hampshire-Duroc cross gilt named Charlotte owned by Christiana's younger brother, Luke Graver. A first year member, Luke will be in the fourth grade this fall. Both Gravers will be having entries at the Blue Valley Farm Show and the Pennsylvania Farm Show.

During the annual 4-H livestock sale conducted later that week the grand champion market hog of Luke Graver sold to Houser Auctioneers, New Ringgold, for $510. Tim Billig of Billig Farms, new Tripoli, was the successful bidder at $390 for the reserve champion market hog of Christiana Graver.

Later that day, Christie Webb, a 1999 graduate of Delaware Valley College with a major in large animal science and member of the colleges' judging team reviewed the entries of the 4-H market lamb and 4-H and open sheep show at the Carbon County Fair.

In the fitting and showmanship competition of the 4-H market lamb and 4-H breeding sheep shows, Webb selected intermediate fitter Ashley Barry, 15, of East Penn Township, as her champion fitter. Barry was also selected as champion showman with Laura Mazur, 12, of Weatherly, as the reserve champion showman.

In the market lamb weight classes, Snickers, the 118-pound Suffolk winner of the medium heavyweight class owned by Barry was selected as the grand champion market lamb of the show. Hometown Farmers' Market, Hometown, was the successful bidder at $360 for Barry's champion market lamb.

The 126-pound Hampshire of Christiana Graver, 11, of Franklin Township, from the heavyweight class was named the reserve champion market lamb. Graver's reserve champion market lamb sold to Myron Everett of Little Acres Farm, Lehighton, for the high bid of $210.

In the pair of market lambs class, Barry's pair took the first place ribbon with Graver's pair following in second.

Barry, Graver and Mazur enjoy showing sheep and have each started their own breeding flock. Later in the breeding sheep classes, Graver's Hampshire ewe from the one year and under two class was selected as the champion Hampshire ewe. "You have to appreciate the style and balance of this ewe" said Webb about the Jan. 2000 Blue Acre 0023, daughter of Schlichter 9-47 TW and C Brubaker Blue Acre 9404 TW. This ewe went on to be named the reserve champion ewe of the show for Graver.

Mazur's Shropshire ewe from the one year and under two class, FW Heaton and family 99-453, a Dec. 1999 daughter of Elsbury's Positive Step 430 and FW Heaton and family 98-343 went on to capture the champion Shropshire ewe title.

In the Montadale breed Shull 013, affectionately known as Clover, a Feb. 2000 daughter of Salfner 96-1272 and Shull 626 captured the title of champion Montadale ewe for Mazur. Mazur also exhibited the champion Montadale ram who was later named the champion ram of the show by Webb.

In the Suffolk competition, Mazur again earned the champion ewe title with her ewe, Northern Starr 99-20, an April 1999 daughter of George Bros. 3882 and Sandhill 704-B. This ewe went on to receive the champion ewe of show honors.

The fair posted the following results.

First-Time Champions For Both Denver Swine Exhibitors

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — Gary Martin and Renee Hoover both had something to celebrate on a gloomy day Tuesday.

Though the pall from the worst terrorist attack in U.S. history was felt by all, they both managed to capture their first championship ribbons at the Denver Fair Hog Show.

Gary Martin, 20, son of Clarence and Marilyn Martin, New Holland, exhibited a 240-pound Yorkshire crossbred gilt to grand champion.

Nicknamed "Frisky," judge Kent Good said "everything stands out about the hog - it's free-moving, clean up in the jowl and chest, is very lean, with a nice rump and nice set of loins."

Gary's first champion ribbon at Denver was obtained by showing a hog he obtained from a private sale in Maryland. He is a 2000 graduate of Garden Spot and Brownstown Vo-Tech, and works as a crewman/driver at Conestoga Pole Building.

Reserve champion, a gilt which Good liked because of its "tremendous length and movement," was a 255-pound Duroc crossbred exhibited by Renee Hoover.

Renee, 18, is the daughter of Marty and Lois Hoover, Schoeneck. The 2001 Cocalico High School graduate said she was happy to have a champion her last year of showing at the fair. She exhibited a homebred hog, which she exercised every day.

There were 26 hogs and 11 exhibitors.

Following is a list of show placings.

We Salute Our Farming Industry

Can Farms Survive Phosphorous-Based Nutrient Planning?

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — If the state nutrient management board performs a review of the current nutrient management act and decides to adopt a phosphorous-based plan, farmers are likely to need two to three times the land base to accommodate the manure they apply now.

That was the message given to about three dozen poultry producers and agri-industry representatives Monday at the Penn State-sponsored Poultry Health and Management Seminar at Kreider's Restaurant in Manheim.

Jerry Martin, dairy/environment agent at the Lancaster County extension office, said that the current Act 6 will be up for possible review in 2002. The USDA Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA's) adopted proposal is to consider phosphorous site index planning for the state.

Martin spoke about regulatory changes facing Pennsylvania farmers and "what we can do to anticipate changes and prepare for them," he said.

A USDA/EPA Unified National Strategy was proposed in March 1999 that could have great impact on animal operations in the state. One such proposal under consideration is subjecting "anyone with confined animal operations," Martin said, to provisions to have some type of nutrient management plan.

For the poultry industry, however, what has been considered, during a review period for proposed changes to federal water quality rules for Concentrated Animal Feeding Operations (CAFOs), is that all poultry operations are under the CAFO regulations. Co-permitting could also have significant impact for poultry producers and those in the industry.

The EPA invited comments from the proposed CAFO rules until the end of July this year. The agency is scheduled to release final regulations on Dec. 15, 2002. Those regulations may not be published until January 2003, Martin noted.

These regulations "could have significant impacts on all ag producers," Martin said. "What can we do to prepare?"

Right now, the unified strategy has looked closely at the phosphorous site index, based on research at the USDA Agricultural Research Service (ARS) Pasture Lab Farm in Klingerstown, Schuylkill County. The lab discovered, on a watershed basis, that 90 percent of phosphorous leaves a watershed from 10 percent of a land area. A small amount of land could contribute to a lot of phosphorous loss.

The site index would take a look at potential high source areas, identify them, and nutrient management plans would have to be in place to manage them.

Pressure could be exerted on Act 6, the Pennsylvania Nutrient Management Act written in May 1993 and put into affect Oct. 1, 1997, to include phosphorous-based planning.

A requirement was that the State Conservation Commission must review CAO status and criteria at the five-year anniversary of the plan's enactment — which occurs in 2002.

Oct. 1, 2002 marks five years. "What's going to happen?" Martin said. "I have no idea."

Regulators could lower the animal density formula from 2 to 1.75 or 1.5. And how does that affect farms that soil test high or off the charts for phosphorous already? They would be faced with having to route the manure away from those fields or off the farm entirely.

Discussion will continue for some time at the review date. Martin noted while some can speculate, it is like "trying to read the crystal ball," when so many factors have to be considered, he noted.

From a federal standpoint, storage and confinement areas would be under tougher regulations to ensure they could contain material from a 25-year, 24-hour storm. That would entail "no release of nutrients, period," said Martin.

Producers would take note to identify, now, how water travels through their farm, and to ensure they have current and implemented conservation and nutrient management plans. Right now would be a good time to get the soil test, and soil test on a regular basis (every three years), to identify fields "near or more than 200 parts per million of phosphorous," according to Martin.

If a phosphorous-based plan is implemented, producers would also have to evaluate and improve water flow on the farm, including identifying streams, waterways, ditches, terrace outlets, and subsurface drainage. They would have to identify fields within 100 feet of surface water or 150 feet of a stream.

"These are things to do to get a handle on the potential for how this may impact you down the road," Martin said.

But the plan raises concerns, because if phosphorous-based planning is implemented, it "could kill our ag industry in Lancaster County if we get too stringent with phosphorous," according to Martin.

$8.2 Million Earmarked For 'Growing Greener' Projects

SALTSBURG (Indiana County) — Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Secretary David E. Hess recently announced more than $8.2 million in "Growing Greener" funds for abandoned mine reclamation and oil and gas well-plugging projects in more than 100 communities in 23 counties.

The funding will facilitate projects, completed through contracts awarded by DEP's Bureau of Abandoned Mine Reclamation and Bureau of Oil and Gas Management, to reclaim more than 500 acres of abandoned mine lands, and plug 770 abandoned oil and gas wells.

Secretary Hess, who testified before the Joint Legislative Air and Water Pollution Committee, said, "The 'Growing Greener' initiative is helping Pennsylvania clean up mine-scarred lands faster and more efficiently than ever before.

"Eliminating these hazards not only takes care of environmental problems, but also becomes a source of pride in communities that now no longer have to accept mine acid drainage as something they have to live with."

Secretary Hess also noted a number of environmental improvement accomplishments beyond abandoned mine reclamation and well plugging.

"Over the last six years, nearly 29,000 acres of abandoned mine lands have been reclaimed through the dedicated work of community groups, private industry and the DEP," Secretary Hess said.

"We also have eliminated 54 miles of dangerous highwalls and 39 dangerous water bodies, extinguished mine fires beneath 107 acres, and reduced the risk of subsidence to 235 acres. As a result of this combined effort, 528 miles of streams are being improved today."

On Dec. 15, 1999, Gov. Ridge signed "Growing Greener" into law, marking the largest environmental investment ever by a Pennsylvania governor — $650 million over five years. On July 24, Gov. Ridge awarded nearly $30 million in "Growing Greener" grants to 237 organizations in nearly every county for watershed restoration and protection.

EPA Report Sides With NCGA On Monarch Butterflies

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has released a report stating Bacillus thruingiensis (Bt) corn poses little risk to monarch butterflies, putting to rest controversy stemming from a two-year-old Cornell University study that asserted the Bt pollen was harmful to monarchs.

The EPA report said while there is a small chance that one in 100,000 monarch caterpillars could be affected by toxic corn pollen, research suggests even those larvae will mature into healthy butterflies.

The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) has said in the past Bt corn poses no threat to the Monarch Butterflies and NCGA Biotech Working Group Chairman and Plain City, Ohio, corn grower Fred Yoder said he is glad to see the EPA agrees.

"It's definitely a positive," he said. "With this report, we can put this issue behind us and move on. Growers need continued access to the technology, and this is a big step towards that."

EPA's conclusion that the corn is relatively harmless to monarch populations is based in part on field studies conducted last summer by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) in Maryland, Iowa and Minnesota. Data from those studies have not been published, but have been turned over to EPA for review.

Dr. Herr Reviews Entries In Carbon Goat Show

DEANNA CUNFER
Carbon Co. Correspondent

PALMERTON (Carbon Co.) — Dr. Robert Herr, Narvon, order buyer for meat goats and sheep and breeder of Boer goats and Dorset sheep, judged the 4-H market and 4-H and open dairy goat show at the Carbon County Fair last week.

For his champion fitter in the 4-H market goat competition, Herr selected Josh Kemmerer, 17, of Franklin Township, winner of the senior fitting class. Ashley Barry, 15, of East Penn Township, intermediate fitter, was then selected as the reserve champion fitter. The champion showman of the market goat show title went to senior showman Amanda Miller, 16, also of East Penn Township, with intermediate showman Rebecca Cunfer, 13, of Mahoning Township, taking reserve champion showman honors.

In the market goat competition, described by Herr as being the fastest-growing youth project, he selected the 86-pound winner of the heavyweight class owned by Kemmerer as his grand champion market goat.

Herr described "Brownie," a Boer Nubian cross, as the most complete of the competition with great length of hind saddle and lots of cushion to the leg and thickness to the foreleg. The 75-pound entry of Miller, a Boer Nubian cross named Splotches also from the heavyweight class received the reserve market goat title.

During the annual 4-H livestock sale conducted later that week Kemmerer's grand champion market goat was sold to Big Creek Farms, Lehighton, for $350. Marie's Lunch, Hometown, was the successful bidder at $220 for the reserve champion of Miller.

In the dairy goat show Kemmerer repeated as champion fitter with intermediate Sarah Miller, 12, being selected as the champion showman. Reserve champion fitter honors went to Andrew Miller, 14, with Kemmerer taking the reserve champion showman title.

Herr selected Andrew Miller's Peach Valley Knight's Chaleece, a March 1998 daughter of Aspen Hill's Black Knight and Peach Valley V & C Cameo, as his LaMancha best of breed. York Beef Show Posts Results

MICHELLE RANCK-KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

Approximately 60 exhibitors showed 140 head of cattle at the York Fair's Open Class Market Steers show Monday.

After picking the winners, judge Chet Hughes, Lancaster County livestock extension agent, said, "I think if I hauled these steers to market, people would be pleased with what I brought.

"They're deep-bodied, heavily-muscled, and finished for market. Also they are the right weight — 1,300 pounds — and frame size for what the packers would select. These cattle are eye-appealing but have enough condition to make Choice. They're market ready," said Hughes.

Shane Miller, 15, a sophomore at Spring Grove, and 1,355-pound "Louie" clinched grand champion status after winning the heavyweight division of market steers.

The steer, which Shane got when the animal was seven months old last October, hails from Shane's uncle's "Lazy M" ranch in Wyoming. Shane is starting his own herd on the seven-acre property of his home and hopes to someday sell club calves, so he has also added a heifer to his string.

He is in his fourth year in the show ring and plans to go onto college and perhaps enter an animal-related career. He is the son of Kevin and Deb Miller, Spring Grove.

Tommy Welsh, a senior at Spring Grove, took off football practice to exhibit "Johnny." The 1,331-pound steer took home reserve champion honors.

He is the son of Tom and Carol Welsh, East Berlin, who farm 450 acres of crop land. Tommy, who has seven years of experience in the ring, and his sister have steer and dairy heifers. The heifers, he said, will go to Harrisburg to compete in the Farm Show this year.

He bought his steer at KILE last year and is looking forward to purchasing another animal at the same event this year. Future plans include perhaps beginning a landscaping/lawn care business.

Both steers will be sold on Saturday.

Montgomery County Conducts 4-H Dairy Show

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — Sixteen dairy animals with four dairy breeds represented were exhibited at the Montgomery County 4-H Fair in Creamery. Joy Crothers was the fitting and showmanship judge and Jane Pepple judged the type classes.

This year's supreme champion of the show was a senior 2-year-old Holstein, Hallowells Conrad Marlene, exhibited by Sean Hallowell of Bechtelsville.

An antique gallon milk container representing milk from the supreme champion was auctioned off to the top bidder, Fred Seipt of Freddy-Hill farms in Lansdale for $400 as part of Montgomery County's Market Animal Sale.

Proceeds from the milk container are split between Sean and the Montgomery County 4-H Dairy Club.

The junior supreme champion was a winter calf, Maple Knoll Duke Taffy, exhibited by Amber Hallowell of Bechtelsville.

Grand and reserve grand champions of the show were Corey Yoder and Aaron Heiser in Ayrshires, Amber Hallowell and Corey Yoder in Guernseys, Sean Hallowell and Amber Hallowell in Holsteins, and Amber Hallowell and Sean Hallowell in Red and Whites.

Sustainability Grants Offered To Agricultural Researchers, Educators

BURLINGTON, Va. — The Northeast Region Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education program (SARE) will once again offer competitive grants to educators and researchers who are exploring how to move agricultural practices toward greater sustainability. Agricultural sustainability is defined as farming that is environmentally sound, economically viable, and socially supportive of both rural and urban communities.

There are two types of SARE grants for researchers and educators — Research and Education grants focus on projects that lead directly to improved farm practices, profitability, or quality of life, often by combining research with farmer implementation and evaluation.

Professional Development grants help Cooperative Extension and other agricultural professionals working with farmers gain the knowledge they need to help farmers move toward greater sustainability.

Both grant programs are designed to support complex multi-year efforts. Anyone with interest and experience in sustainable agricultural techniques and education may apply.

Last year, Northeast SARE committed $1,570,128 for 14 Research and Education projects — grants ranged for $4,320 to enhance farmers' marketing and business skills to $167,660 to help develop a farmer-run research organization. The average Research and Education grant was about $112,200.

SARE also committed $533,046 to fund six Professional Development projects, including training on holistic management, organic agriculture, and urban gardening. The average Professional Development grant was about $88,000. We anticipate that more funds will be available for grants in this new grant cycle.

To encourage strong applications and explain SARE's funding priorities, a series of workshops were scheduled in Albany, N.Y., Manchester, N.H., and Baltimore, Md.

Application deadlines are Nov. 6 for Professional Development grants, Nov. 9 for Research and Education grants. You can also call or e-mail to request application materials, or you can download an application from the SARE Website at www.uvm.edu.

York Fair Hosts Open Breeding Sheep Show

MICHELLE RANCK-KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

YORK (York Co.) — "It was a super show. There was the quality you'd expect for this show," said Dr. Robert Herr, judge of York Fair's Open Breeding Sheep Show.

"We have represented some of the best of the best. Some of the animals could compete any place in the East," he said.

"I feel that we've had a really good show," said Jose Flory, York Fair sheep superintendent. "The quality of the animals was super, and the juniors did a wonderful job."

The Cheviot ram was "the right kind," according to Herr, "a long muscular buck that will produce the kind of lambs — as far as size, scale, and balance — that the market wants."

The ram is owned by John Eaton, Windsor.

Beginning with 4-H involvement, Eaton, has now been in the sheep business for 15 years. An ag lender for a bank in York County, Eaton has 90 sheep, mostly Cheviots and Dorsets, at his home and sells breeding stock.

He exhibits his animals at Keystone, and the Farm Show and goes to Louisville, Kentucky for breed shows.

His homebred Cheviot yearling caught the eye of Dr. Herr, who gave it the nod for grand champion ram placing. The ram is sold to a producer in New Hampshire and will move at the end of the month.

"The Southdown ewe is a great pattern for the breed with a lot of muscle, breed character, and length of body," said Herr, an order buyer and Dorset breeder.

Bill Leib, Mechanicsburg, purchased his grand champion Southdown ewe at a national sale in Oklahoma in May.

"I felt the character qualities like length, size, thickness, correctness, breed character, the ewe was a total package," said Leib, who worked at the operation in Oklahoma where the ewe originated.

"I knew the genetic background, and I knew I wanted that in my flock," he said.

With 20 years of experience, Leib is no stranger to the show ring. "Mom and Dad had sheep ever since I was born," he said, adding that he not only enjoys the competition but also meeting and making lifetime friends with other exhibitors on the show ring circuit.

Leib houses his 15 brood ewes and 20 brood does on eight acres at home. The fair season is a whirlwind of activity for Leib, who exhibits all four species of market animals at fairs in Pennsylvania.

Showing sheep at the national junior show, North American International Livestock Exhibition (NAILE), and other shows which takes him to Iowa, Ohio, and Indiana for other shows.

"I believe that, to have the best animals, you have to compete against the best," he said. Tough competition, he said, allows him to "see how my animals compare" to other top animals.

Leib, a culinary arts major at Johnson and Wales University, Providence, Rhode Island, currently has an internship at Hotel Hershey.

Also during the sheep show Samuel Hayes, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture, helped to present two checks to the York Fair from the state fair fund. The first check, $25,000, will be used for improvement on the physical infrastructure at the fair. A new roof on the arts and crafts building is on the fair's "to do" list.

The second check, $49,600, will go toward operating expenses, which include premium money and the cost of running the fair.

Sec. Hayes Meets Wilkes-Barre Seniors, Growers At Wilkes-Barre

WILKES-BARRE (Luzerne Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes recently met with Pennsylvania seniors and produce growers last week at the Wilkes-Barre Farmers Market to encourage participation in the Seniors Farmers Market Nutrition Program.

"The program is a 'win-win' situation for both produce growers and nutritionally at-risk older Pennsylvanians," Secretary Hayes said. "Thanks to the participation of hundreds of produce growers across the state, we are getting Pennsylvania-grown fruits and vegetables from the fields to the tables of people who need them the most."

The program provides $20 in coupons to nutritionally at-risk seniors to purchase produce from participating farmers markets. It receives nearly $2 million in state funding each year.

Older Pennsylvanians should contact their local Area Agency on Aging to determine their eligibility. Wilkes-Barre is one of 11 areas added this year to the program, expanding the total number of pilot areas to 19.

More than 450 produce growers participate in the Seniors and WIC Farmers Market Nutrition Programs.

To find a local farmers market, the "Consumer's Guide to Pennsylvania Farm Markets" is available through the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Market Development. For a copy of the guide, call (717) 787-4210 or visit www.state.pa.us or directly at www.pda.state.pa.us.

Farmers interested in participating in either of the Farmers Market Nutrition Programs should call the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Food Distribution at 1-800-468-2433.

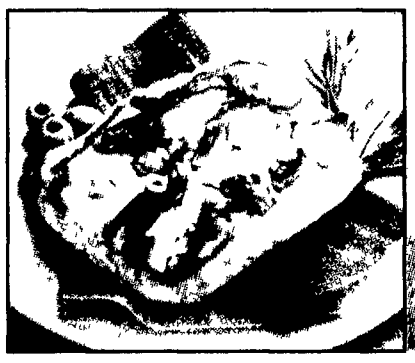
Enjoy a Taste of Independence ... Latin American Style!

September 15 marks the beginning of Hispanic Heritage Month and "el Día de la Independencia," or Independence Day. During this weekend several Latin American countries—Mexico, Guatemala, Honduras, El Salvador, Costa Rica, and Nicaragua among others—as well as many Hispanic communities in the U.S come alive with the sights and sounds of the celebration of freedom Generations of families gather to celebrate and share their favorite traditional dishes and customs in an age-old cultural experience

Although each country has its own unique traditions and foods, they all share similar attitudes the importance of the family gathering, the intricacies and dedication to the preparation of the meal, and the attention to the details of the celebration. Another shared characteristic is the use of corn masa in traditional recipes, which date back to pre-Colombian times and have been handed down from generation to generation. When preparing delicious tortillas from scratch, traditional tamales or the incomparable pupusas, today's generation has the advantage of the availability of corn masa flour This helps eliminate the difficult task of making the corn masa from scratch So, as ingredients are picked carefully and meats are slow-cooked to perfection, the anticipation builds for the feast to begin.

Today, we can all share these flavorful recipes as old as history, yet still alive and full of ceremony Here they are to enjoy during this Hispanic Heritage Month and throughout the year. Independence never tasted so good!



Tamal Liviano (Light tamale)

In keeping with a desire for lighter fare, these Nicaraguan tamales eliminate the lard and add more vegetables, but the traditional flavors remain. These tamales are wrapped in banana leaves to give a subtle but distinctive flavor to the tamale dough, which is always best when prepared from scratch with high quality corn masa flour.

One 3 1/2–4 (three and a half to four) pound chicken, cut in quarters
1 tablespoon salt
1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
1/2 teaspoon rosemary
1/4 teaspoon cumin powder
1/4 teaspoon coriander seeds

For the tamale dough
4 1/2 cups corn masa flour
1 teaspoon salt (optional)
2 1/2 cups mashed potatoes
5–7 cups water or chicken broth

For the filling
1 cup cooked brown rice
3 large carrots, peeled and cut in thin strips
2 medium red bell peppers, cored and seeded, and cut into strips
1 can (8 ounces) garbanzo beans (chickpeas), rinsed and well drained
1 cup canned green peas
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup pitted green olives
Cilantro sprigs

Place the chicken parts in a heavy casserole and add salt, black pepper, thyme, rosemary, cumin powder and coriander. Add enough water to cover by 2 inches. Gently bring to a boil, skim, turn down heat and simmer for about 1 hour or until chicken is tender enough to fall off the bones. Strain and

To make tamale dough, place the Maseca masa flour, salt and mashed potatoes in the bowl of an electric mixer equipped with a dough hook. Mix masa flour and mashed potatoes. Measure 7 cups of the chicken's cooking liquid, adding water if necessary. Gradually add the liquid to form a soft, pliable dough. Or place the masa flour and mashed potatoes in a large bowl, gradually add water and mix with a wooden spoon. Turn on to a floured counter and knead by hand for about 2 minutes.

To assemble:
20 banana leaves or aluminum foil
Heavy string

Put all filling ingredients in bowls and set on the counter to make assembly easier.

Cut the banana leaves (or foil) into 10-inch squares. Wipe the banana leaf with a damp, clean cloth and lay it lengthwise on your work surface, with the grain running from left to right. Spread about 4 tablespoons of tamale dough in the center of the square, top with [illegible] heaping tablespoon of filling, a few [illegible] and a cherry or [illegible] spoon. As if wrapping a gift, fold the top down over the filling, press lightly, then fold the bottom up to cover. Fold the ends towards the center and tuck the last flap over. Again, as if wrapping a gift, tie the tamal securely with the string. Repeat with remaining filling and banana leaves.

Arrange a steamer in a pot with a tight-fitting lid, fill with 2–3 inches of water and bring to a boil (the water should not touch the steamer). Place

Tamal Azteca
(Aztec tamale)

This dish is something like a Mexican lasagna, using homemade tortillas for the layers instead of pasta. The filling in between the layers can vary, but nothing can substitute the taste and freshness of homemade tortillas! Use individual cazuelitas or oven proof dishes for a beautiful presentation

16 homemade 4-inch tortillas made with Maseca
1/4 cup corn oil (divided use)
1/2 cup onion, diced
2 garlic cloves, minced
3 ripe tomatoes, seeded and chopped (discard skins)
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
3 small zucchinis, diced
2 cups corn kernels, drained
1 cup cooked chicken, shredded
1 cup crema Mexicana or sourcream
2 roasted Poblano chiles, peeled, stems removed, cut into strips
1 1/2 cups Monterey Jack cheese, shredded

To make the tortillas, follow the directions on the Maseca package, stack, and cover with a cloth napkin until ready to assemble tamal

Heat 2 tablespoons of oil in a skillet and sauté the onion until translucent Add garlic, tomato, and salt Cook on low heat for about 10 minutes or until tomato sauce thickens slightly, stirring often Reserve

Preheat the oven to 350° F

In a small casserole, heat the butter Add zucchini and corn, stir to coat Add 2 tablespoons water and simmer for about 10 minutes or until zucchini is tender Reserve

In another skillet, heat the rest of the oil and fry tortillas on both sides To assemble, place a tortilla at the bottom of each cazuelita or individual casserole, moisten with the tomato sauce, and layer chicken, vegetables, crema, chiles and cheese. Repeat layers and finish with a tortilla and a sprinkling of cheese Place the casseroles or dishes on a cookie sheet on the middle rack of the oven and cook until cheese melts, about 15 minutes

Yield 4 individual tamales

Pupusas

Pupusas are a Salvadorian specialty, something like a filled tortilla They are served as a main dish or snack accompanied by the encurtido, fresh slightly pickled vegetables Pupusa fillings are varied and can be made as hot as you wish by adjusting the amount of hot chile peppers used The essential ingredient of a good pupusa is the masa flour

For the dough
4 1/2 cups Maseca Corn Masa Flour
1 teaspoon salt
5–6 cups of water

For the filling
1 small onion, diced
1 ripe tomato, seeded and diced
1 jalapeño, seeded and stemmed
1/2 pound cooked pork rind, (chicharrón) roughly diced
1 can (15 oz.) black beans, rinsed and well drained
1 pound Monterey Jack cheese, grated

For the dough

Place the masa flour and salt in the bowl of an electric mixer equipped with a dough hook, gradually add water to form a soft, pliable dough that will not stick to your hands Or place the masa flour in a large bowl, gradually add water and mix with a wooden spoon Turn on to a floured counter and knead by hand for about 2 minutes Lightly cover and allow to rest while making the filling

For the filling:

Place onion, tomato, jalapeño and chicharrón in a food processor and pulse until smooth Transfer to a bowl, add drained black beans and grated cheese Stir with wooden spoon to mix well

Form 2-inch balls with the masa dough To fill, place the ball in the palm of your hand and make an indentation at the center of the ball Place 1–2 teaspoons of filling in the center and work the edges of the dough to seal The filling should not touch the edges or the dough will not stick to itself Flatten between your hands to form a 1/4-inch thick tortilla Repeat until all dough and filling are used

To cook

Lightly oil a comal, griddle, or heavy skillet Cook pupusas on low heat about 2–3 minutes on each side or until golden and slightly puffy Yields 36 pupusas

Serve with traditional Salvadorian encurtido

Encurtido

1 medium cabbage, thinly shredded
1 large carrot, peeled and shredded
2 medium onions, thinly sliced
1 jalapeño, seeded and stemmed
2 teaspoons dried oregano
2 cups white vinegar
1 teaspoon salt

Place all ingredients in a large glass bowl, stir to mix Let stand about 1 hour before serving for flavors to blend

Yield 36 pupusas

The end.

Or, is it the beginning?

About now, it all blurs together, making it hard to tell where the end stops and the beginning starts.

But that's how most season changes go. Without our even thinking about it, we just sort of slide from one right into another. Which is why the first day of spring often has to push its way through snowdrifts. And the first day of winter is sometimes almost balmy.

"Boy, it feels like fall," I heard myself saying at least two weeks ago, on one chilly morning when I pulled on a sweatshirt before heading to the barn. Midday, the sweatshirt had been tossed to be replaced with shorts and a sleeveless top for afternoon chores. By late evening, the sweatshirt felt good again.

Barn garb, like the seasons, tends to be pretty transitional.

The end came early for many local crops, including corn stands thirsting from continuing drought which has left the area short of many inches of rainfall. Forage harvesters have ended the year for fields which lay temporarily barren of anything more than dead corn stubble and some persistent (aren't they always?) weeds.

But with that ever-present optimism that keeps farmers farming, it's also a beginning. Neighbors are sowing plantings of fall wheat and barley, while The Farmer has tucked some oats seed into the ground. We'll also drill rye in right behind chopping the corn, both for cover crop and fall-through-early-winter extra grazing — and hope the clouds soon open up to make anything germinate.

Most hay harvest has also ended, since dry stubble populates most hayfields. As a friend observes, the hay is so short one has to put down foam markers, as crop sprayers do, just to mark the end of where one swath is and the beginning of the next.

Some ends and beginnings are more than welcome. Like the ending of cows panting in the stifling heat, roar of the fans drowning out conversational ease in the barn. Already some of the fans have been silenced on a few chilly mornings and we can begin anew listening to the radio again during milking. After we replace the one which ended its life with a thunderstorm hit and can begin anew with a replacement.

An end is in sight — always sad for me — for the gardens. Prolonged, chilly spring weather which transitioned into dry and drier hot weather had its way with this year's flowers and veggies. Tomatoes finally cranked up about mid-August, but have made up for their lateness with size, taste and abundance, testified to by a shelf of canned quarts and pints to get us through the winter.

Melons were hit and run; what survived the dry and heat were delicious, but the stalks perished quickly. Wonderful peaches are also history, but the first round of pears and Gala apples snagged at the market up the road make an incredibly tasty beginning.

A lone potted parsley plant from last winter ended its life with a prolific set of seed. Sprouted in the greenhouse is a successive generation of seedlings to keep us in herbal garnish through the winter. Bulbs wait to be tucked in the ground, along with a couple of small holly bushes for which it has just simply been too dry — and the ground too much like concrete — to attempt to plant. If I don't soon get them in the ground, what should be a beginning for them will turn into the end.

Lawn mowing has pretty much ended, the fragrance of fresh-cut green grass rapidly being replaced with that seasonal scent of dry fall leaves. Gladiolus and black-eyed susans and sunflowers are ending and fall chrysanthemums are beginning their grande finale display of garden color.

And so we celebrate endings and beginnings by incorporating some of the best of both with a batch of Summer's End soup. With some tasty beef broth and canned mixed vegetables for a base, we salute what's left by tossing a few peeled tomatoes, chop up the remaining part of a lingering zucchini, scour the sweet corn patch for a few old codger, but still edible, ears, add a chopped onion from a bunch grown in the flower bed and chop up a bit of some of fall's first cabbage.

In a world of ends and beginnings, one thing is constant...

Packing Lunches For Back To School

Stephanie E. Biesinger
Armstrong County
Dairy Princess

It's that time of year again — back to school. A time for teachers, classes, studying, tests, friends, and fall sports. Let's not forget packing school lunches.

Lunches usually consist of sandwiches or pre-packaged meals. These can be boring after awhile. Here are some fun ways to add diversity and nutrition to brown bag lunches.

• Mix cottages cheese with fresh fruit and fruit cocktail. Put in small containers.

• There are several different flavors of string cheese. These make any lunch or snack fun. Look for these in the grocery store in the dairy case with the shredded cheese. You can also cube cheese for a little zip in the lunch bag.

• Make your child's lunch go wild. Cut cheese slices with a cookie cutter.

• Make a grilled cheese sandwich and use a large cookie cutter to cut them into fun shapes.

• Freeze the Go-yogurt sticks and these become nutritious Popsicles. You can also freeze the yogurt in its container and remember to pack a spoon.

• Milk has gone Looney-Tunes. There are several different flavors of milk in the Looney Tunes containers such as grape, banana, strawberry and of course chocolate.

• Fruit dip can make those slices of fruit disappear in a flash.

8-ounce package of cream cheese
½ cup sour cream
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup brown sugar
1 to 2 tablespoons of maple syrup

In a small mixing bowl combine cream cheese, sour cream, sugars and syrup to taste. Beat until smooth. Chill. Serve with fresh fruit. Yield: 2 cups.

Always pack lunches in an insulated lunch bag with a frozen ice pack.

These are some fun, delicious, nutritious and don't forget easy lunches to try this school year.

Enjoy!

Time For Chill

"Chill" is the theme for this year's National and State Food Safety Education Month in September. Consumers know they need to cook food thoroughly to kill harmful bacteria. Let's test your knowledge about "refrigerator food safety:"

• How long do you think it would take an eight-inch stock pot of steaming chicken soup to cool to a safe temperature in your refrigerator? Would you guess 24 hours? Our goal is to get food to 41°F in four hours, or at least to 70°F in two hours and 41°F in an additional four hours.

• At room temperature, how long do you think it takes dangerous bacteria to double in number? How about every 20 minutes.

• Refrigerator temperatures slow the growth of bacteria. Right? Not always. Some dangerous bacteria, especially Listeria monocytogenes, actually continue to multiply at refrigerator temperatures.

So, what are some good "chill" food safety rules?

• Refrigerate promptly. Steaming hot food can go into the refrigerator. It is best to store hot food in shallow pans to speed cooling. Prompt refrigeration will keep food safe and won't hurt the refrigerator.

• Use a thermometer. Purchase a refrigerator thermometer at a grocery store. Set the temperature control in the refrigerator to keep the food at or below 40°F.

• Don't jam-pack the fridge. It is important for air to circulate and cool food quickly, so don't pack every inch of the refrigerator. Use the storage bin at the bottom of the refrigerator for raw ground meats. Salad greens and ready to eat foods should be on the top shelf and foods to be cooked below these. Store eggs in their original container.

• Keep it clean. We regularly clean almost every thing in our kitchens, except the refrigerator. Spilled food on shelves is a perfect spot for bacteria to hide. Clean up spills right away and wash the refrigerator with hot, soapy water. Keep foods wrapped or store in sealed containers to avoid cross contamination.

• Pitch, pitch, pitch. Don't keep food too long. It is better to throw food away than to jeopardize your family's health. The longer you've had the food, the greater chance that dangerous bacteria might be there.

In general: fresh poultry and ground meat keep in the refrigerator two days; fresh meat up to five days; and most leftovers will keep three to four days. Vacuum-packed meats last two weeks unopened; five to seven days if opened.

For more information about these and other food safety issues, contact Penn State Cooperative Extension in your county, or access the Penn State food safety web page at: foodsafety.cas.psu.edu.

'Got Milk?' Xtreme Flavors Promotion Reaches Kids

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Milk is finally the "cool" beverage kids want. Not only is it a nutritious alternative to carbonated soft drinks, new flavors and new packaging has made milk the fun alternative that kids are excited about. This fall, "got milk?®" Xtreme Flavors is driving the sale of flavored milk even further.

From Aug. 27 to Sept. 30, supermarket chains throughout the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program (PDPP) service area and the U.S. carry the energetic message to kids, teens and moms to drink more flavored milk. Built on the national theme, retailers are using feature ads and eye-catching point-of-sale materials to get consumers' attention. An incentive for retailers to get behind the promotion provides them with opportunities to run their own sweepstakes or in-store give-away of cool "got milk?®" Xtreme Flavors merchandise, including mountain bikes, skateboards and scooters.

PDPP works with area processors to expand the research of the "got milk?®" Xtreme Flavors promotion into independent retailers, convenience stores, drug stores and mass merchandisers. By increasing the number of retailers participating, and thus, sell more milk for our dairy farmers. PDPP also implemented a local extension of the "got milk?®" Xtreme Flavors promotion — a tie-in with the Carnegie Science Center in Pittsburgh and Shop 'n Save stores.

On the heels of the retail "got milk?®" Xtreme Flavors promotion, the same theme will come to school cafeterias in October. Participating schools will receive cafeteria posters, serving line promotion pieces, student incentives and activity sheets. The school food service promotion features the same kid-friendly graphics used in the retail promotion.

Flavored milk drove milk sales in 2000. While flavored milk accounted for only three percent of fluid milk sales, it accounted for 27 percent share of growth. Most popular milk flavors are chocolate, strawberry, vanilla, banana and coffee. Since 1990, per capita consumption of flavored milk alone has increased by two pounds per person.

Why Be Sick And Tired?

America has more sick people than most countries, because they eat too much cooked food which lost all the enzymes and up to 80% of the nutrition. Most food you buy contains harmful toxins because they use weed killers, insecticides and many harmful chemicals in growing it, and then more chemicals in processing to increase shelf life. But there is a solution to the problem.

Be Healthy And Energetic?

May doctors and people are now using a new and safer way to remove toxins and poisons from the body, clean out the arteries and develop a strong immune system so it can fight off diseases with amazing results, without any drugs. This program supplies the immune system with killer cells, memory and suppresser cells activity and training, which is like manpower and equipment to any army. It provides the immune system with all natural, organically grown fruit, grain and vegetables" which is like good food and ammunition to an army.

Over 40 million dollars were spent in research, and over 3000 sheets of scientific documented studies by doctors supports many positive clinical experiences, and backs up the patented process in providing proven products. The cost is considerable less than drugs, chelation, radiation, chemotherapy and operations. It does NOT interfere with medication. There are now viruses that can not be stopped with antibiotics, but these all natural products are producing excellent results with supervision from doctors.

Over 3000 Doctors Have Already Switched

They have switched from drugs to alternative medicine in order to help people recover from cancer, heart attacks, arthritis diabetes, lupus, fibromyalgia, allergies, fatigue and many other health problems without any side effects. We make no health claims. We work with doctors in giving the body all natural food grade products it needs to heal itself. There is also a Prevention Program to help you from getting sick. "An ounce of prevention costs far less, and is so much better than a pound of cure" (doctor and hospital bills). Which would you prefer, $149 a year to help prevent a heart attack, or a $50,000 by pass operation? The choice is yours. Let us try to help you prevent health problems.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Farmers can always find something to do. Even if it rains or snows, they have machinery to repair and other jobs to complete. And there is the always-present paperwork which nowadays means computer work for many farmers or their wives.

Therefore, it is not easy to get away for a vacation. Who will milk the cows, tend the chickens, and keep the operation going? Sometimes a "day" vacation is the answer.

Recently, I had the opportunity to visit a local museum. I was amazed at the size of "The Conestoga Area Historical Society" buildings. I expected an old schoolhouse filled with local artifacts. Instead, we saw a large exhibit of Conestoga Indian artifacts.

We also saw a number of small houses that had been moved from their original locations to the village of Conestoga. These buildings were mid-18th and 19th century buildings that depicted rural life in Lancaster County. Items displayed ranged in size from a Conestoga wagon to tiny arrowheads that were found in the local area.

Did you know that there are 18 museums in Lancaster County? They cover more than 300 years of our history. In going over the long list, I've discovered that there are still four sites that I have not visited. Some have been visited many times while a few hold little interest for me.

Maybe someday I'll get to see more museums if I ever catch up with work here at home. Believe it or not, we still have not processed all of our own peaches and apples even though we've done our best to share them with others.

Well Preserved

The Well Preserved news column is prepared by Lancaster County Cooperative Extension. It includes food preservation information and questions received in the office.

Reduced Sugar Food Preservation

Some reasons for reducing sugar in canning are a flavor preference for less sweetness, reduced calories, and special dietary restrictions. While sugar helps fruits keep their bright color and firm texture, it is not necessary to prevent fruit from spoiling. Proper food handling and adequate processing in a boiling water bath canner will allow you to successfully preserve fruits with little or no added sugar.

What can be used in place of sugar to can fruits?

Frozen or bottled unsweetened juices can be used in place of sugar syrup. Reconstituted frozen apple juice concentrate works well with peaches, pears, apricots, plums, and red or white sweet cherries. It can be diluted with extra water to cut the apple flavor and reduce calories further. For example, use five cans of water to reconstitute the juice instead of the usual three. Frozen pineapple juice works especially well with pears or peaches. Frozen pineapple juice gives a fresher flavor than the canned juice.

Diluted sweetened white grape juice works well with pears, peaches, or apricots while red grape juice complements plums and red cherries. Diabetics need to consider the fruit juice used in canning this way as a fruit serving.

Is honey suitable for canning?

Honey is a liquid concentrated sweetener and should be avoided by diabetics and others needing to reduce calories. It has more calories per tablespoon and does taste sweeter than an equal amount of sugar. A mild flavored variety of honey can be used in canning syrups.

Can artificial sweeteners be used in canning?

Do not add artificial sweeteners to canning syrups. The heat of processing may cause sweeteners to lose sweetening power or cause an unpleasant after taste or flavor change. Aspartame is destroyed by long cooking. Artificial sweeteners should be added to canned or frozen fruit just before serving.

What is the sweetener fructose?

Fructose is a sweet tasting sugar found in fruit, juices, and honey. It tastes twice as sweet as sugar so that less can be used, but it still must be considered a sugar by diabetics.

Is it safe to can fruits such as apples and pears in water?

Use only the hot pack method when canning fruit without sugar. That is, cook the fruit in water until hot throughout before packing the hot fruit into hot jars. Add boiling water to cover and seal. Process in the boiling water bath according to USDA timetables.

What is a light sugar syrup?

A light sugar syrup uses a lower proportion of sugar to water than a medium or heavy syrup? Penn State's Let's Preserve publication gives these sugar concentrations for canning syrups: Very light syrup uses 1¼ cups sugar to 10½ cups water; light syrup uses 2¼ cups sugar to 9 cups water; and medium syrup uses 3¼ cups sugar to 8¼ cups water. You can experiment with lighter syrups to determine the reduced level of sweetness you find acceptable.

Can artificial sweeteners be used in jams and jellies?

A few specially designed recipes are available for jams and jellies using artificial sweeteners. Do not use artificial sweeteners or reduce the amount of sugar in a traditional jelly recipe because the product will not gel properly. There are commercial pectin products available specially designed for lower amounts of sugar. Some fruit spreads have no added sugar but are concentrated fruit mixtures that taste sweet because of the concentration of the natural sugars. Natural sugars have the same caloric content of sucrose or table sugar.

Are artificial sweeteners safe?

Food additives including artificial sweeteners must be approved for safety by the Food and Drug Administration or be grandfathered in on the GRAS list (Generally Recognized as Safe) as is saccharin. Most people can use saccharin, aspartame, and acesulfame-K safely in moderation. A very small group of people with the rare hereditary disease phenylketonuria need to avoid aspartame. Stevia, a product derived from a South American shrub, cannot be sold as a sweetener because its safety has been questioned by published studies. FDA considers stevia an unapproved food additive.

More information about canning with less sugar and some recipes are available by calling you local extension office and asking for the publication, Let's Preserve: Reduced Sugar Food Preservation.

If you have food preservation questions, a home economist is available to answer questions on Wednesday, 9 a.m.- 1 p.m., call (717) 394-6851 or write Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster County, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room. 1, Lancaster, PA, 17601.

Farming In Mexico

Lester Burkholder
Special to Lancaster Farming

MEXICO — Four hundred miles south of El Paso, Texas, is a thriving farming community. Surrounded by arid desert, the area is home to 30,000 Mennonites.

Pictured is a house in Campo 3 which was built in Manitoba Canada, dismantled loaded on a train and brought to Mexico in 1922 when the owner immigrated to Mexico.

A high plateau puts their settlement into semi arid zone where crops can be grown.

Traveling by train from Canada in 1922 has proven to be a success. Today's farmers' grandparents chartered whole trains to take their cattle and equipment. Some even disassembled their houses to bring along to start subduing the untamed wilderness of Mexico.

They purchased an entire mountain valley, about 50 miles long and 20 miles wide, for their new home. Settling in this desolate area where the sagebrush tumbled among a few rangy cattle, the Mennonites started converting it into a thriving asset to the economy of Mexico.

These immigrants to Mexico, often called "Old Colony Mennonites," built their homes clustered in small villages — following the example of their Russian ancestors and called them "Campos."

Each Campo of 25-30 families is surrounded by around 3,600 acres, with about 2.5 miles to the next Campo. Each family owns their ground purchased from the governing body overlooking the land purchases.

A Growing Community

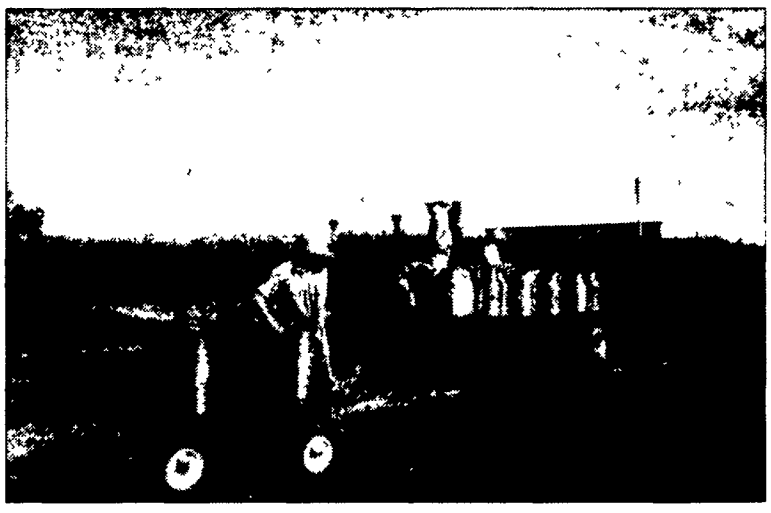
Today, the closest town, Cuauhtemoc, has grown from a dusty cattle town to a thriving metropolis catering to the needs and marketing the products this community produces.

Oats for Quaker Oats, white corn for the famous Mexican tortillas, beans the Mexican staple, Mennonite cheese, a Latin American favorite, and various fruits are flowing from this community.

What is life like for these farmers, who still speak the language of their forefathers, low German, in the heartland of Mexico?

These farmers face many of the same challenges U.S. farmers do, plus many others not common to the U.S. Large variations in the value of their money, the peso, make buying and selling a challenge.

An Indian boy hired by a Campo keeps the free ranging cows from getting into the crops. Each farmer lets his cow into the village street in the morning where the designated caretaker collects and takes them to the range land to graze for the day.



Every morning the village street is lined with these small wagons, holding milk cans awaiting pickup. The milk is collected each morning by this milk truck and taken to the local cheese factory. The cans are emptied and returned to be washed.

An undependable supply system and the extremely high cost of borrowing money (15-25 percent is common), are factors which hinder them.

Living in the semi arid mountain plains east of the Mexican Rockies makes rainfall unpredictable. Three years of drought in five is common. Irrigation is needed to grow a good crop year, yet the water supply is extremely limited.

Unfortunately, rain is nonexistent over the winter and the rainy season usually does not start until late June or early July.

Unless a farmer has access to irrigation, crops are not planted until the rains start. Also being situated at a high elevation brings a risk of early frost, thus the growing season is relatively short. Constant wind makes wind erosion a problem.

Dairy farming is very common and most farmers have 8-12 cows, however, some modern parlor type milking barns scattered throughout the community house herds up to 80 cows.

They milk them by hand or with a milking machine — placing the milk in cans much as dairy farmers in U.S. did 50 years ago. Most of the milk is used to produce cheese.

The milk is not cooled. The evening milk is placed into cans, and the next morning milk is added. About mid-morning it is picked up, taken to the local cheese factory, and processed.

The whey is saved and taken to a drying facility, which is then used to make baby food.

In some of the Campos, all of the individual farmers' cows and heifers are gathered into a group, herded to a common pasture land to graze for the day. A designated youth on horseback watches over them all day.

At evening milking time, the herd is brought back to the Campo. Each animal knows its home in the village, and goes there without help.

The small individual cheese factory cannot afford pasteurization or modern processing equipment. Neither can the small herds afford refrigeration.

In the northern part of the colony six cheese factories and 1,500 farmers, are forming a co-op type partnership and building a large modern milk processing plant.

It is planned that the milk will be picked up after every milking, pasteurized, and processed. Amish and Mennonite communities throughout the U.S. are giving monetary support.

Campo 4 has built a modern dry-lot, milking parlor dairy farm with the capacity of 600 cows. At the present time, they are milking 240 cows at this facility.

Because the milk is refrigerated, they are receiving a 10-peso-per-liter premium. The cows are owned by individual people who are also responsible to provide a share of the dairies feed supply.

These owners also have first opportunity to work for this community project and receive wages. This program was also helped by the Amish of the U.S.

Milk is the main source of income for most of the families. Most milk is still shipped in cans, but bulk tanks are gaining in popularity.

Irrigation, Raising Corn

Being located in an area where rainfall is not dependable, irrigation is relied on where water is available. Most farms have long rectangular shaped fields 1.5 miles long and 400 feet wide.

The irrigation overflow is directed to a holding pond to be used by a neighboring farmer, so no water is wasted.

The corn is left in the field until the moisture is low enough to store and yields of 200 plus bushels per acre are almost guaranteed. They grow mostly white corn for tortillas, but also pinto beans.

Many native poor people glean the fields after they have been harvested with the combines. Almost without exception the gleaners are welcomed, as they reduce the chance of volunteer corn the following year. By gleaning the Mennonites' fields, many Mexicans store a full years supply of food for their families.

Here a Mennonite farmer grinds corn fodder for his cows. Three bales of corn fodder, a gallon tin of shelled corn, and a gallon tin of concentrate equals a Mexican TMR.

Since the rains come in late July, some corn is planted for the fodder. Almost all the land is planted in oats, in hope of a grain crop, but used for animal feed if not enough rain arrives.

Because of the lay of the land and surrounding mountains, only about a third of the valley has water available for irrigation. There is drastic difference in the type of farming and the prosperity of its farmers. Those who have access to water to irrigate have equipment and homes, which would be comparable to a U.S. farmer.

Whole families are often seen hoeing by hand, following an ancient John Deere. The men and boys commonly wear bib overalls and a big white cowboy hat. The women and girls wear dark large print dresses wearing a large brimmed straw hat with a ribbon around the crown and under the chin.

Initially, the Mennonites used adobe brick as a building material, later covered with a concrete mix to protect the adobe from weathering. Today, almost all buildings are built with poured concrete.

After switching from adobe brick to concrete, they combined an implement shed, barn, and home in one large building, as was their custom brought from Canada.

Today, however, they are building their homes similar to ranch homes in the U.S. They are also starting to color the concrete with various shades.

Vehicles

Most of the equipment and vehicles brought from the U.S. and Canada are well used.

Pickups more than 10 years old to be used by farmers can be purchased in the states and brought into Mexico without paying duty.

Numerous Mennonites earn their livelihood going to the states to find tractors and pickups to supply dealers with well-used equipment and pickups.

In 1996, the new colony "Colonia El Valle" was formed. Approximately 25,000 acres were purchased for $200 an acre.

Today, the barren land is home to 50 young families, growing mainly cotton and corn, along with some sorghum and wheat. Living in small prefab homes or travel trailers and then building homes in their spare time, they have brought this desert into bloom.

A modern cotton gin site sits on the edge of the thriving village. Other than operating the store, all the families are tilling the soil. Two hundred feet below the ground is an abundant source of water which made this possible.

Some homes are finished, landscaped with shrubs and trees, while others live in trailers and are building new homes. Implement sheds are scattered throughout the village shielding the farm machinery from the desert sun. However, making sure the crops have adequate water is the main thrust of these young farmers' work.

Two Mennonite boys heading for town.

Grape Catchup

4 pounds grapes
2 pounds sugar
1 pint vinegar
2 teaspoons cloves
2 teaspoons allspice
2 tablespoons cinnamon

Wash grapes and remove them from the stems. Place them in a pan and steam them without water until they are soft. Put the fruit through a sieve, add the other ingredients, and simmer the mixture for 20 minutes. Seal it in clean, hot jars.

ANSWER — Joan Chickering, South Deerfield, Mass., wanted a recipe for cucumber soup, which she knows is a cream soup and is cooked. She suspects it includes chicken stock. Here's an answer from Rose Cannata, Covington.

Chilled Cucumber Soup

¼ cup butter
4 cups chopped, peeled cucumbers
1 cup chopped, green onions
¼ cup all-purpose flour
4 cups chicken broth
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup coffee creamer
Cucumber slices for garnish.

Earlier in the day, in a large skillet over medium-high heat, in hot butter, cook cucumbers and green onions until tender. Stir in flour. Gradually add chicken broth, stirring constantly. Cook until mixture thickens slightly and begins to boil. Add salt and pepper to taste. Reduce heat to low; simmer, covered, 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Refrigerate until chilled.

At serving time, in covered blender container at medium speed, blend about 2 cups of mixture until smooth. Strain mixture; stir in coffee creamer. Garnish with cucumber slices. Makes about 5¼ cups.

ANSWER — Judy McCall, Keymar, Md., had a chocolate cake recipe that used chocolate chips for frosting. She lost it and wanted to know if anyone had the recipe to share. Thanks to two readers, including Barbara Mayer, North Wales, and a another reader from across the state.

From Mayer:

Chocolate Cake

2 ounces unsweetened chocolate (2 squares)
1¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 egg

¾ cup gold water
⅓ cup vegetable oil
1 cup semisweet chocolate chips.

Melt chocolate, cool. In bowl, beat egg and sugar, and add water and oil; beat. Stir in melted chocolate and dry ingredients. Mix until blended. Sprinkle top with chocolate chips. Bake at 350 degrees in a greased 8-inch square pan for 32-38 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean.

Magic Fudge Cake

2½ cups sugar
1 cup evaporated milk
1½ cups semisweet chocolate chips
½ cup butter
1 cup (about 4 ounces) marshmallow cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
2¼ cups all-purpose flour (not self-rising flour)
1½ teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
½ cup shortening
3 unbeaten eggs
¾ cup milk
½ cup milk.

Combine sugar and 1 cup evaporated milk in heavy saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until a little syrup dropped in cold water forms a very soft ball (230 degrees). Place semisweet chocolate chips, butter, marshmallow cream, and vanilla in large mixing bowl. Add the cooked sugar mixture; blend well. Chill 1 cup of this mixture. Reserve remainder for frosting.

Sift together flour, baking soda, and sale. Set aside. Add brown sugar gradually to shortening, creaming well. Add unbeaten eggs, beating well after each. Blend in the 1 cup chilled fudge gradually and beat well. Combine the milk and 1 teaspoon vanilla and add alternately with the dry ingredients to creamed mixture. Blend well after each addition. Combine walnuts, chopped, and 1 tablespoon flour; fold into batter.

Turn into two 9-inch round layer pans, well greased and lightly floured on the bottoms. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes. Cool. Frost with reserved fudge. thinned with 1-4 tablespoons evaporated milk, if necessary.

ANSWER — Mrs. Stoltzfus, Gap, requested recipes for creamy Italian salad dressing and one that is similar to Kraft Zesty Italian. These salad dressings are often used in pasta salads. She also requested a good pasta salad recipe that uses a homemade dressing. Thanks to Twila Martin, Waynesboro, for this recipe:

Pasta Salad

2 cups macaroni, uncooked (or any pasta you prefer)
1 small onion
4 steams celery
2 cups whipped cream or mayonnaise
⅓ to ½ cup prepared mustard
1-1½ cups sugar
4 hard-boiled eggs
Shake of salt and pepper

Cook pasta in salt water. Dice celery, onion, and eggs. Mix all ingredients with hot macaroni. Chill and serve. Makes 8 cups.

ANSWER — Lisa Diefenbach, Bellefonte, wanted recipes to make either chicken or turkey sausage. Thanks to Sanford Landis, New Providence, for this recipe:

Turkey Sausage

2 pounds ground turkey, chicken, or pork on mixture
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon black pepper
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon powdered sage
½ teaspoon ground cloves

If you have no stuffing equipment, make flat sausage cakes and fry in oil. Cloves can be eliminated and sage may be increased.

ANSWER — A reader requested recipes using in-season produce such as zucchini, corn, and tomatoes. Thanks to several readers, including Twila Martin, Waynesboro; Tessie Kizis, Newsoms, Va.; Martha Weaver, Newville; and Rebecca Beiler for the following recipes.

From Martin:

Zucchini

3½ cups grated zucchini
1 cup onion, chopped
1 cup Bisquick
⅓ cup oil
¼ cup Parmesan cheese
1 teaspoon parsley
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ cup cheese (mozzarella, Velveta, American, etc.)

Mix all ingredients except zucchini. Add zucchini last. Pour into buttered 0-inch pie plate. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-40 minutes. Can also make it a one-dish meal by adding:

½ cup corn
2 small tomatoes
1 cup chopped ham.

From Kizis:

Zucchini Pancakes

1 ½ cups zucchini (2 small zucchini)
1 cup all-purpose flour
2 eggs
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon baking powder
½-1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
½ cup Parmesan cheese, finely grated
½ teaspoon granulated garlic (fresh garlic, pressed or finely chopped, is good)
1 teaspoon basil
¼ teaspoon cracked rosemary
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
1-2 tablespoons butter.

Wash zucchini and cut off both ends. Run through a food processor on a coarse shred setting, or grate by hand on the biggest-holed grater you have (it really doesn't take long). In a roomy bowl, lightly beat flour, egg, milk, baking powder, salt, and oil together until blended. Add cheese, zucchini, garlic basil, rosemary, and pepper. Mix to blend, Heat a large nonstick skillet over medium heat, and coat with butter. Ladle four rounds of batter onto the pan, and cook over medium heat until bottom is browned, about 4 minutes. As with regular pancakes, you can easily smell if you have the heat too high and the pancakes are getting too brown before they start to burn. Flip pancakes and cook a few more minutes. Pancakes will rise up a bit and be springy to the touch when done. Serve with butter and syrup, or fruit if desired. Yields about 24 pancakes.

From Weaver:

Open-Kettle Zucchini

2 pounds hamburger
1 onion, chopped
2 pints tomato juice
5 cups zucchini, diced
2 pints corn
2 teaspoons chili powder
3 teaspoons salt.

Brown hamburger and onion together and 1 teaspoon salt. Have meat. Put zucchini and corn into a kettle. Cook ½ hours. Then drain water off of vegetables. Add tomato juice, hamburger, chili powder, and 2 teaspoons slat. Simmer until soft.

From Beiler:

Summer Vegetable Casserole

2 tablespoons butter
½ cup diced green pepper
½ cup diced onion
1 cup corn
1 cup diced zucchini
1 cup diced fresh tomatoes
Salt and pepper to taste
¾ cup bread crumbs
Grated cheese.

Melt butter. Add vegetables and saute until tender, about 10 minutes. Season with salt and pepper. Pour into casserole dish. Sprinkle with bred crumbs and grated cheese. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Bake 30 minutes or until tops turn light golden brown.

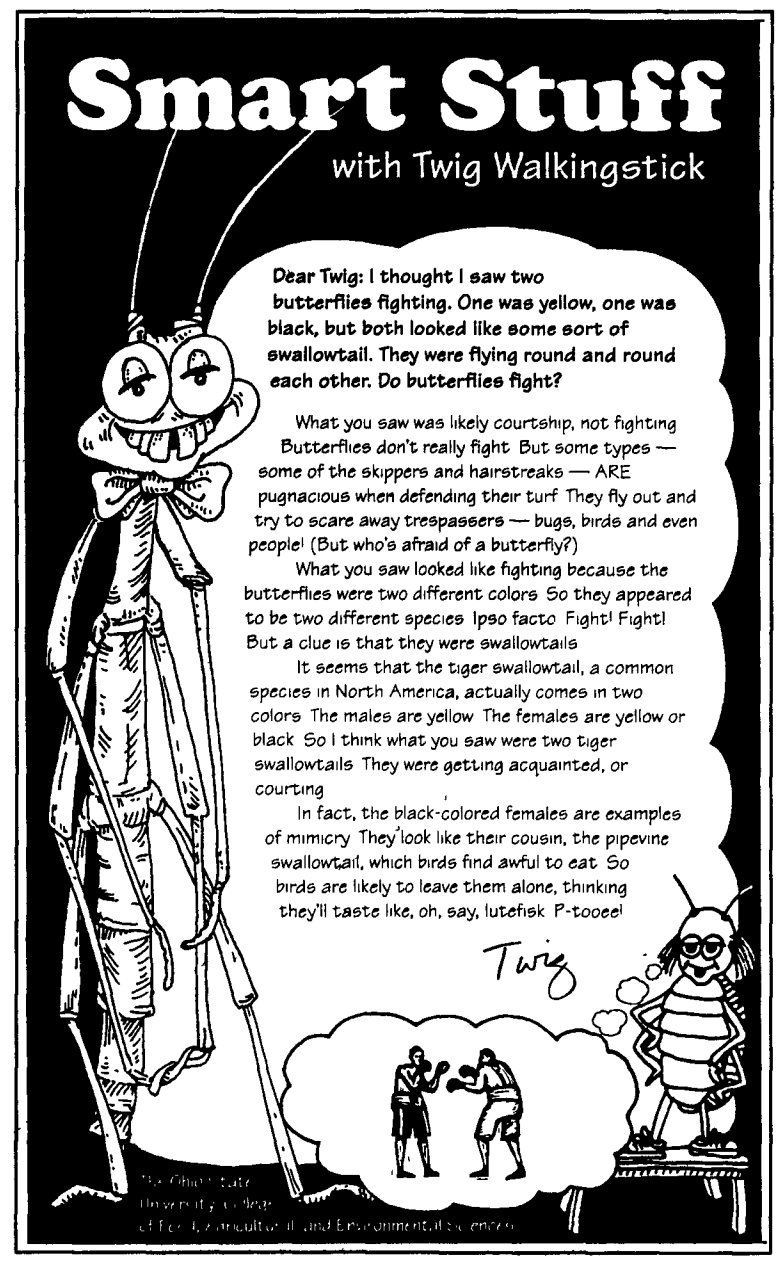
Your Child's Individuality

When children are treated with respect as individuals, important character strengths are likely to emerge.

Jane Bluestein, author of several parenting books, offers the following suggestions.

1. Don't compare your child to anyone else.
2. Accept that your child may like many things that you don't, and that he or she may hate things that you really value.
3. Make a list of your child's talents, preferences, and best attributes. Add to the list whenever possible.
4. Difficult as it may be, drop your agenda for who (or what) you want your child to be (or become). Accept your child for who he or she is and was meant to be.
5. Encourage your child's attempts to explore his or her identity.
6. Although easier said than done, quit worrying about what relatives, friends or neighbors are saying.
7. Let your child express his or her individuality through various means. This may include letting your child choose his or her own clothes, room layout, hairstyle, or extracurricular activities.
8. Support and encourage your child's individual interests. Respect the fact that he or she may lose interest or change his or her mind over time.
9. Remember that today's identity may soon be yesterday's experiment.



Smart Stuff
with Twig Walkingstick
Dear Twig: I thought I saw two butterflies fighting. One was yellow, one was black, but both looked like some sort of swallowtail. They were flying round and round each other. Do butterflies fight?
What you saw was likely courtship, not fighting Butterflies don't really fight But some types — some of the skippers and hairstreaks — ARE pugnacious when defending their turf They fly out and try to scare away trespassers — bugs, birds and even people! (But who's afraid of a butterfly?)
What you saw looked like fighting because the butterflies were two different colors So they appeared to be two different species Ipso facto Fight! Fight! But a clue is that they were swallowtails
It seems that the tiger swallowtail, a common species in North America, actually comes in two colors The males are yellow The females are yellow or black So I think what you saw were two tiger swallowtails They were getting acquainted, or courting
In fact, the black-colored females are examples of mimicry They look like their cousin, the pipevine swallowtail, which birds find awful to eat So birds are likely to leave them alone, thinking they'll taste like, oh, say, lutefisk P-tooee!

CLEMMONS, N.C. — Needlework hobbyists will gather in Lancaster for the Cross-Stitch Festival, Sept. 27-29. The event will be conducted at the Lancaster Host Resort and Conference Center. The extravaganza is sponsored by 10 of America's leading designers and manufacturers of needlecraft materials. QUESTION — Ivan Fisher, Christiana, wants to know where to buy a small fine grindstone to turn by hand, and mounted on a small bench or table.

QUESTION — Kathleen Reiff, Stevens, is trying to locate out-of-print books by the author V.M. Hillyer. She especially wants "A Child's History of the World," "The Ancient World," "Young People's Story of Agriculture," and "The Americas."

QUESTION — About a year ago, a reader wrote that he was opening an out-of-print book shop, I think, in an old mill in Lancaster County. I mislaid the information and would like information on the shop.

QUESTION — Peter Nuskey, Southampton, wants a device to remove tendons from turkey legs before they are cooked. His father worked in a butcher shop about 1936. A non-electrical gadget fastened to the wall enabled them to remove tendons in a matter of seconds. Will answer all calls at (215) 355-3391.

ANSWER — A reader wanted to know how to make whitewash that is used on stone walls, etc. Elton and Lena Mae Eby contributed this recipe that "lasts a lot longer than original lime whitewash:" 10 parts lime, 10 parts white Portland cement, and one part salt. Duane Diefenbach suggested a book called "Restoring Houses of Brick and Stone" by Nigel Hutchins and Donna Farron Hutchins (1982, Firefly Books, Buffalo N.Y. ISBN 1-55209-222-4) that includes five different recipes for contemporary whitewash.

ANSWER — Mrs. Harold Stoudt, Hamburg, had a pink double rosebud azalea of the evergreen variety. It was container grown and died this spring from root strangulation. She wanted to know where she could buy a replacement in her area. Arlene Reiff writes that azaleas are known to die after transplanting. She suggests this transplanting procedure: Gently slide the plant out of its original container. Use a pointed instrument such as an old fork or screwdriver to rough up the entire surface of the root ball, including the bottom. Do a thorough job and don't be alarmed if some of the roots break off. Dunk the entire plant — leaves, roots and all — into a bucket of water. Hold it in the water until it is saturated and no longer floats. Leave the plant in the water until no more bubbles rise from the root ball. The plant can be safely left in the water for several hours. Then it is ready to plant in an appropriate place.

ANSWER — Homer Schneck, 422 Gehman Rd., Barto, PA, 19504 wrote that he restores and repairs pump organs, not pipe organs. In a previous issue it was mistakenly reported that he repairs pipe organs. He can be reached at (610) 845-2774.

ANSWER — A person requested a utensil for slitting sweet corn kernels and scraping the cob. A reader writes that some call this a "corn cob scorer." They suggest looking for it in stores that carry kitchen gadgets or in the kitchen department of department stores.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

West Nile Brochures Now Available For Pennsylvanians

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) Brochures with tips on how to prevent the spread of West Nile virus are now available, according to state Rep. Thomas E. Armstrong (R-98).

Last month, the Department of Environmental Protection announced the first West Nile virus-positive bird in Pennsylvania this year. The Department of Health laboratory in Lionville, Chester County, confirmed a crow found in Philadelphia last month was carrying the disease.

West Nile was identified in Pennsylvania last year and already has been found in mosquitoes and birds in several neighboring states including New Jersey, New York, Maryland, Virginia and Ohio. A human case has been identified in Florida.

The brochure provides Pennsylvania residents with steps they can take on their properties to reduce mosquito-breeding areas, such as standing water that can promote West Nile virus.

Last week, West Nile virus was found in 19 counties: Bucks; Bradford; Chester; Cumberland; Dauphin; Delaware; Erie; Franklin; Lehigh; Montgomery; Northampton; Philadelphia; Pike; Schuylkill; Susquehanna; Tioga; Union; Wyoming; and York. It was identified in 37 birds, 46 mosquito pools and a horse.

When transmitted to people, the West Nile virus can cause encephalitis, an infection causing inflammation of the brain. Anyone can get the virus, but older adults and people with compromised immune systems have the highest risk of developing severe illness because their bodies have a harder time fighting the disease.

Dead birds are the best indicator of West Nile virus activity. Pennsylvania residents are encouraged to report all dead birds seen around their property or elsewhere so that they can be tested for West Nile virus. Residents should call the 1-877-PA-HEALTH toll-free telephone line whenever they see a dead bird, and a Department of Health staff person will assist them.

For additional information about West Nile virus, visit www.WestNile.state.pa.us for background information and regular updates; or contact your area legislator.

Poland Team Explores Factories, Farms, and Festivals

Lou Ann In Poland

Friday, Sept. 7

Today was rainy for our sightseeing tour. Nevertheless the dreariness did not hide the beauty of the landscape surrounding the 17th century castle at the museum of Lancut.

Of all the castles we toured, this was my favorite. It seemed more livable. But the wealth that a few citizens achieved is in marked contrast to those who lived in the surrounding areas.

Unfortunately we were not allowed to take pictures inside the castle of the ornate furnishings. We needed to wear felt shoes overtop of our own to protect the beautiful wooden floors composed of many different woods and designs.

We also toured a wicker, rattan, and classic furniture factory. This had been a home business that has expanded to employ 160 persons. In addition about 7,000 work out of their home to weave wicker, which grows as a plant in the field.

One of our group exclaimed over the uniqueness of a large suitcase basket. The owner insisted on giving it to her. She tried to decline graciously, but he insisted on mailing it to her home in New York.

It seems natural to comment on items we like, and are not accustomed to be given items just because we like them. It seems ungracious and rude not to compliment people.

We stopped at an agrotourism farm in the area, which was large enough to sleep 20 persons. The rooms featured individually-tiled bathrooms of the newest designs. The owner said that her husband and son did the tile work which saved tremendous amount of money.

This farm also provided a catering business with an area for groups to be served.

In the afternoon we met with 4-H groups in the area. Ethnic dances and a folk group band welcomed us and performed.

They told us about their 4-H programming and asked many questions about ours. These groups composed of girls focused on cooking and preserving traditional crafts. They had such sweet, innocent faces.

The traditional garb worn to perform the dances varies from region to region. One of our group asked where she could purchase a hand embroidered blouse, the woman said they were not available but offered to sell the one she wore.

Our team member gave her double the money she asked and the woman kissed the money and seemed ecstatic with the money.

We toured a food processing plant that was established in recent years. The plant processes Polish pickles, relishes, and preserves. They even import some pickles and sweet and sour cabbage to the U.S.

The plant did not seem to have approved methods for canning nor personal safety for workers, nonetheless it is providing 200-250 jobs which are greatly needed in the area.

The owner seemed quite proud of his plant and offered us a table spread with snacks and plenty of beverages. He also took us to one of his two supermarkets. We were impressed with the cleanliness and wide selection of products.

I forgot to mention that on a previous day, we had made a stop at a restaurant. Our group was divided into two vehicles and we drove off without Kathryn Wentzel who was in the restroom.

We were not far when we remembered and yelled stop, but the driver who did not understand English continued. No one in our vehicle spoke Polish.

We jabbered and made all kinds of motions, but the driver only smiled as if we were quite crazy and continued.

Fortunately our next stop was about 10 minutes later, where we told the Polish translator. Kathryn was quickly retrieved. She had remained calm and confident of our soon return.

However this incident serves to remind us how difficult the language barrier is to clearly state our intentions.

Saturday, Sept. 8

After breakfast we drove several hours to a festival promoting agriculture and the work of the ODR. This was quite interesting.

Many vendors had set up display and we have fun taste-testing berries, cheeses, yogurt, and other items. They served string cheese tied in knots and braided.

I am always impressed with their decorative touches such as many plants and arrangements incorporating flowers, tree leaves, vines, berries, and small apples. The place was packed with visitors and was held inside and outside the ODR buildings in that area.

Unfortunately the livestock competitions will not be conducted until the following day. I would have enjoyed seeing if the competitions were similar to those at our fairs and the state farm show.

Lunch was held inside a former castle, now belonging to the ODR. A band played while we were lead into huge rooms similar to those at the White House.

Tables were spread with the most elaborate displays of regional foods. Heavy white linens, stemware and fine china were used.

We, dressed in clothes appropriate for a fair, felt quite conspicuous surrounded by government professionals dressed in three-piece suits, and tailored suits.

The food was superb and over abundant. I noticed that the Americans seemed to be about the only people eating. The Polish were drinking vodka and sipping many of the other wines and beer available.

Several artists demonstrated their work and sold it. It's too bad we don't have more room to bring home the pottery, rugs, and other items available for purchase.

We had another long trip to a new area. It has been raining for several days and is unseasonably cool for this time of the year. The temperatures dropped to the 40s and most of us are layered with clothing but are still cold.

The ODR in this area is in disrepair and the people do not seem as friendly. We noticed many older people and it becomes evident that the rooms are being used as a home for senior citizens and perhaps mentally handicapped.

We are glad to leave that place as it reminds us of a Communist-controlled area. We are not sure why there is a big difference among so many ODRs except some are managed locally and some with greater government help.

Wawel Hill and castle was another stop for the group.

Sunday, Sept. 9

Today we faced a 12-hour drive to a new area. We hadn't been served coffee for breakfast the first time this happened and planned to stop at a place along the way.

However most places are closed on Sunday and we did not find a place open until 11:30 a.m. We purchased only beverages as we planned on a lunch break within a short time.

However it was 4 p.m. before we stopped for lunch at the insistence of our group leader. The drivers were distressed that the restaurant was too pricey, but we were happy to pay the difference.

We hadn't been aware that such a nice restaurant existed in the country. Even by American standards the restaurant was upscale, with beautiful mahogany woods and carpeting.

They had both Polish and English menus and it was delightful to be able to eat more typical American food such as grilled salmon and creamy potatoes.

The agrotourism place where we are staying is very nice, but four of us stay in an adjacent building because the house is full.

The house is heated, but for us four, there is no heat. Still we are grateful for the newness and spaciousness of the place and being apart from the main group gives us more a feeling of independence.

Monday, Sept. 10

Today we were picked up by bus to attend a national symposium on rural tourism as an element of rural development.

The large modern gymnasium with cork flooring and many windows is set up similar to a convention that would be in the states. Balloons, banners, and vendors with stands surround the room.

The speakers are Polish-speaking and our interpreter sits at a table trying to interpreter in a low voice so as not to disrupt the speaker. It is extremely difficult to understand with the background noise.

A video of Poland's farmland, equipment production, and other businesses is shown. Czeslaw Nowak, a professor from the agriculture university that we met earlier, graciously explains the credit assistance and other programs available to farmers who are involved in agrotourism.

We need to go to a different building for lunch. We walk in the wind and rain to tour a local flour mill. The equipment was the finest 40 years ago and is adequate for their needs.

Czeslaw is a storehouse of information.

Tuesday, Sept. 11

After a typical breakfast of tomatoes, cheese, pickles, hard rolls, and a hardboiled egg, we departed from the delightful agrotourism farm where we had spent two nights.

The driver had a difficult time finding the way as there was a road detour. We had a winding drive through the countryside along the lake area.

We stopped to see several different agrotourism farms, and can see that they vary greatly in style, and amenrector, ate a 5 p.m. lunch, and met with 40 Ukrainians attending a conference on regional development.

The program needed to be interpreted in three different languages and it was very difficult to understand.

After the meeting we traveled to another agrotourism farm for a nine o'clock dinner and bed. After the meal, our host told us we could watch BBC world news, which is the first English speaking news we have been able to hear since our arrival.

The news of the bombings and destruction is quite distressing. We are overwhelmed with concern for the thousands of people who have been affected by these disasters.

We are concerned about our own flights home. 'When I get home, I am never leaving again' is my reaction. We stay up past midnight watching the news. Fortunately, I sleep well.

The morning news sheds little more light on what has happened. We leave our host family, mostly hating to leave their television — our only contact with the outside world.

We have not been able to call home or e-mail for a week, and are not sure if we will be able to hear any more English speaking news programs.

The Polish, however, are very gracious in expressing their sympathy for what has happened to the U.S. They know what it is like to experience such destruction.

I think of the Polish. Compared to them we have a higher standard of living and a stronger economy. But this isn't because we are smarter or harder working.

Instead, we our interior borders have been protected from enemy destruction. Imagine having the same destruction that has happened in the U.S. happening repeatedly as has happen to Poland.

I question whether or not we will remain as determined, enduring hardships of need for as many decades that they have. I pray we won't need to face it.

During the morning we have teaching sessions with the Towarzystwem Rozwoju Dzierzgonia. The mayor and the international relations director tell of their strides in overcoming environment issues for which they have earned international awards.

"But our biggest problem is lack of money and 32 percent unemployment," the director said.

Skunk Odor Removal

One of the most common concerns about skunks is dealing with the odor. Pets are commonly sprayed and come home covered in musk.Washing people, pets, or clothing with vinegar or tomato juice may eliminate most of the odor. A solution of hydrogen peroxide, baking soda, and liquid soap may also be effective when used to wash down walls, pets, or clothing. Do not add water to the solution.

Clothing may be soaked in a weak solution of household chlorine bleach or ammonia. Remember not to mix chlorine bleach with ammonia.

Neutroleum alpha is a scent masking solution that can be applied to the sprayed area to reduce the odor. It is available through some commercial cleaning suppliers. Walls or structural areas that have been sprayed by skunks can be washed down with vinegar or tomato juice solutions or sprayed with neutroleum alpha.

Use ventilation fans to speed up the process of odor dissipation. Scented candles can help mask odors if the odors are not too strong. When musk enters the eyes, severe burning and an excessive tear flow may occur. Temporary blindness of 10 to 15 minutes may result. Rinse the eyes with copious amounts of water to speed recovery.

Recipe For Skunk Odor Removal Solution

1 quart 3 percent hydrogen peroxide
¼ cup baking soda
1 teaspoon liquid laundry soap
Mix together and apply.

In Poland, Dwarf Trees Provide Large Crop In Little Space

This three-generational family has an amazingly neat orchard and seems very prosperous although their farm is only 15 acres.

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

POLAND — Poland, the size of New Mexico and divided into provinces and counties, offers varying soil types, so different crops fit each area's needs.

During the trip we toured an orchard which highlighted some of the differences between Polish and American agriculture.

The average farm size is 16 acres but some are only 2-3 acres in size. In Warsaw, some are 24 acres. Some parts of Poland have very rich soils and some very poor. Some areas are mainly orchards and other grain crops.

The area we visited the first few days was quite flat, but later we visited hilly and mountainous areas. In fact, in some areas, the layout of the land is quite similar to Lancaster County, except the buildings are quite different.

What we consider small farms in Pennsylvania are incomprehensible to the Polish. Much discussion in the states concerns whether or not the small farmer will be able to survive and compete with the large farmers.

Poland, too, is concerned about the small farmer, but they are finding very innovative methods to adapt. For example, the orchards we visited are small but intensive. About 4,400 trees are planted in two acres. They use super dwarf trees, not large trees.

Their orchards are extremely neat and well cared for. The first orchard we visited was cared for by a three-generational family. Last year, they harvested 80 tons of apples on two acres.

They try to avoid pesticide usage. Irrigation uses a fertilizing solution.

Each tree is cultivated to produce 150 apples. The daughter of the owner conducts many experiments and carefully documents everything to determine what varieties do best and under what conditions.

Some of the varieties include cultivars we use in the U.S. such as Jonagold and Ida Reds, but also many with Polish names.

On some of the apples, special labels with words such as Merry Christmas or Happy Valentine's Day are placed on the skin during growing season. This changes the color of the skin as it matures.

When harvested, the labels are removed and a apple is inscribed with the special message. It looks so neat. I have never seen this in the states but it may exist.

Professional pickers are hired for harvest. The first orchard grower said that he loses an average of 10 percent production if he doesn't use trained pickers.

The orchard area has suffered a lot of flood damage this year.

The other orchard we visited is in a different province. They own about 30 acres. From the appearance of their house, it is evident they are very prosperous.

Mr. G. Jasniszewski said that they do not use what is called pest management because they already use much less pesticides than required by the European Union.

"The golden years of farming were the 1960-1970s," Jasniszewski said. There was higher demand for all produce because of food shortages. Now, the demand isn't as high because they have more competition from other countries, but they have a better product.

He would like to ship apples to the U.S. I thought of all the U.S. farmers whose markets are already oversaturated. A part of me wants to see the Polish farmers succeed but not at the expense of U.S. farmers. The international marketplace is not an easy place to find a secure market with everyone vying for a share.

The family served us a seven-ribbon layer cake decorated with walnuts, grapes, raisins, and cream. They also served Pope's cake, which we had several times previously.

It is wonderful and is called Pope's cake because the cakes was served to Pope John Paul II when he visited Poland a few years ago.

On some of the apples special labels with words such as Merry Christmas or Happy Valentine's Day are placed on the skin during growing season. This changes the color of the skin as it matures.When harvested the labels are removed and a apple is inscribed with the special message.

Article Reveals Dairy's Role In Reducing Risk For Strokes

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A recent research review published in the prestigious "Journal of Nutrition" focuses on the role lowfat dairy products play in reducing the risk of strokes. Each year more than half a million Americans have a stroke.

The review analyzed 30 studies to examine the link between the nutrients in dairy foods — particularly calcium, magnesium and potassium — and the reduced risk of stroke.

"This review highlights the strong evidence that nutrients in the Milk Group can play a significant role in helping millions of Americans who are at risk for stroke," says author Linda K. Massey, Ph.D., professor of food science and human nutrition at Washington State University-Spokane. "This is especially important for African-Americans who are at an increased risk for high blood pressure, the strongest risk factor for stroke. Additionally, African-Americans have a 35 percent greater risk of dying from a stroke," says Massey.

FSA Announces New Crop Loss Coverage For Noninsurable Crops

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — The noninsured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) administered by the Farm Service Agency (FSA) offers new and improved crop loss coverage opportunities beginning with crop year 2001.

"Unlike the old NAP, and other disaster programs that take time to implement, the new NAP program will provide immediate relief to farmers," said FSA's Jenifer Hershey, county executive director. "Loss adjusters will inspect the damaged crops in some cases, the local county committee will review the claim, and payments will be issued once the loss threshold is reached."

NAP covers 50 percent of the producer's expected production at a payment rate equal to 55 percent of the crop's average market price. Benefits are limited to $100,000 per crop year for each participant.

Since the 1995 crop year, FSA has offered NAP assistance for noninsurable crops each time a widespread catastrophic loss occurred due to damaging weather. Beginning with crop year 2001, availability of NPA benefits will be based on producers' individual crop losses, rather than on losses occurring in a large area.

These guaranteed benefits, subject to a minimal administrative fee, will provide risk protection during the time when crops are most vulnerable and will be individualized based on the farmer's ability to produce the crop.

NAP covers all noninsurable, commercially grown crops produced for food and fiber, including honey, forage and grazing crops, turfgrass sod, Christmas trees, seed crops and aquaculture.

In addition, controlled environment crops are also eligible such as mushrooms and floriculture.

Crops in Dauphin County that could be eligible for NAP include peppers, potatoes, onions, squash, cucumbers, cantaloupes, alfalfa, and hay. Producers can check eligibility of their particular crop at their local FSA office.

To be eligible for assistance, applicants must annually pay a nonrefundable service fee of $100 per crop, per administrative county. Fees are capped at $300 per county not to exceed $900 for farmers with interests in multiple counties. Limited resource farmers may request a waiver of this fee.

Applicants are encouraged to provide prior year's production data to FSA to establish a documented yield history for loss calculations and payments. To be eligible for NAP, a farmer must have risk in producing the crop and must comply with a conservation plan. The applicant's qualifying gross income cannot exceed $2 million.

FSA is currently accepting applications for NAP coverage for 2001 crops. Farmers who sustained weather-related crop damage to a 2001 NAP crop and timely reported acreage and losses may be eligible for coverage.

Verifiable or reliable records of production must be submitted to the administrative FSA office no later than the final acreage reporting date for the applicable crop in the immediately following crop year. The application period for 2001 crops will end 30 days after the Federal Regulations are published.

Producers with noninsurable crops should contact the Dauphin County office at 1451 Peters Mt. Rd., Dauphin, PA 17018, phone (717) 921-2378 or visit FSA on the World Wide Web at http:/www.fsa.usda.gov.

The fall webworm is beginning to construct its ugly nest in forest and shade tees in our area. The fall webworm is a widely distributed defoliating pest of shade trees and shrubs and appears from late summer through early fall. They are particularly fond of nut trees such as black walnut and hickory, but they well feed on a variety of species. The webworm constructs its nest over the end of the branch and only feeds on leaves within the web. The large conspicuous web is filled with caterpillars, dead, partially-eaten leaves, and fecal droppings. The remains of these nests may persist through winter.

The fall webworm overwinters as brown pupae in a cocoon that is concealed in trash, ground litter, cracks and crevices, or in the soil. Adult moths first appear in early June but may continue to appear in small numbers during most of the summer.

Moths vary considerably in color from pure white to white with black spots; their wingspread is about 1¼ inches. Females deposit their light yellow eggs in hair-covered masses of several hundred eggs, usually on the undersurface of the leaves. Young larvae hatch in approximately seven days. They immediately begin to spin a silken web over the foliage on which they feed. As they grow, they enlarge the web to enclose more and more foliage. These webs sometimes encompass two to three feet of the infested branch.

The larvae are gregarious and feed together until the last molt, after which they feed independent of each other. Larvae mature in about six weeks. Young larvae are pale yellow with two rows of black marks along their bodies. When fully grown, they are covered with whitish hairs that spring from black and orange warts. The larvae vary as to the depth of coloring and markings, but are usually greenish with a broad, dusky stripe along the back and a yellow stripe along the side. Full-grown larvae leave the web and pupate on or in the soil, or in crevices around buildings or fence posts. There are one or two generations per year, depending on the geographical location.

Fall webworm larvae skeletonize and consume leaves under the protection of a tent-like web that they enlarge as they grow and require additional food. Since tree leaves are in the process of "shutting down" their processes this time of year, webworms may defoliate a tree occasionally, but rarely kill it. On shade trees, the webs usually occur on an occasional branch. They may not injure the tree appreciably, but they reduce its ornamental value.

Natural enemies of various kinds help to control this insect. Birds, insect predators and insect parasites attack the fall webworm larvae. Predators and insect parasites may destroy clusters of eggs. It is also possible to reduce their numbers by mechanical control. When the tented branches are within reach, they can be snipped off and destroyed. This is practical if the tents have not become too large and the tree's shape is not threatened by this method.

Bt is effective if applied when the webs are small. Remember that the larvae must consume Bt for it to be effective in controlling the insect. Other chemical control measures can be used throughout the webworm season, but they are most effective when the webs are small.

The entire tree need not be sprayed, but webs and surrounding foliage should be thoroughly covered. Remember that care should be taken when using any pesticide and directions on the label must be followed exactly for both safety and effectiveness.

Report: U.S. Aquaculture Yields Promise, Raises Concerns

WASHINGTON, D.C. — As the American consumer's demand for seafood continues to rise, so too does the likelihood that the fish, shrimp, or shellfish purchased at the market or restaurant has been farm raised.

Aquaculture — farming or finfish, shellfish, or aquatic plants — continues to grow rapidly worldwide, with production doubling by weight and value from 1989 to 1998.

In the U.S., aquaculture facilities now exist in every state and certain regions are seeing rapid growth.

A new report presented to the Pew Oceans Commission examines the role of the emerging U.S. aquaculture industry in meeting the nation's demand for seafood and its current and potential impacts on the marine environment. The report recommends steps to ensure that domestic aquaculture grows in a sustainable fashion, and calls upon the U.S. to take a global leadership role in adopting best practices.

"The reality today is that aquaculture is supplying a significant source of protein to consumers as wild ocean fisheries are depleted or reach their limit," said Leon E. Panetta, chair of the independent Pew Oceans Commission, which is conducting the first review of national ocean policies in more than 30 years. "There are a number of issues related to this growing industry that can affect the quality of our oceans. This report looks at those concerns and presents recommendations for balancing the expected growth in aquaculture production with the protection of those natural species and habitats that are essential to the future of our oceans."

The report's authors are Dr. Rebecca Goldburg and Matthew Elliott of Environmental Defense and Dr. Rosamond Naylor of Stanford University. They find that farmed fish and shellfish supply one-third of the world's seafood, and that in the U.S., aquaculture (including imports) provides almost all of the catfish and trout and nearly half of the shrimp and salmon currently consumed.

Although American aquaculture represents just over one percent of the world's production, about 4,000 aquaculture facilities exist in the U.S., ranging from enclosed tanks on land to netpens and shellfish beds in bays and estuaries. Collectively, they raise over 100 different species of aquatic animals and plants, and support jobs and provide new sources of seafood for consumers.

"With supplies of wild seafood limited and demand rising, aquaculture will likely continue to expand in the U.S.," said Goldburg. "Aquaculture is here to stay. The challenge is to ensure that this young industry grows in a sustainable manner and does not cause serious ecological damage."

The authors find that the present harmful effects of U.S. aquaculture on the marine environment are minor compared to overfishing, coastal development, or global warming. They also point out that the aquaculture industry is diverse in its methods and practices and that some segments of the industry, such as shellfish growing, can have ecological benefits. Nevertheless, they recommend immediate action concerning several problem areas:

- Eliminate or drastically reduce the accidental release of farmed fish into the wild. The accidental release of farmed fish may harm wild fish populations through interbreeding and competition for habitat and food. In addition, escaped fish may spread diseases and parasites throughout an ecosystem. For example, escaped farmed Atlantic salmon may threaten endangered wild Atlantic salmon off the Maine coast and wild Pacific salmon in the Northwest. Supporting federal activities under the Endangered Species Act to protect wild salmon populations is a key element of protecting native fish.
- Reduce the use of wild fish for fish feed. Some types of aquaculture, particularly salmon aquaculture, use large quantities of wild-caught fish as feed ingredients. Increased catches of small fish for use in feed would reduce the amount of food available for wild predators such as large fish, marine mammals, and seabirds. The authors call for greater federal research to identify alternatives to the use of wild fish for fish feeds, and the cultivation and promotion of noncarnivorous aquaculture species.

In addition to these recommendations, the authors also propose several additional steps to limit the current impacts of aquaculture:

- Develop strong effluent guidelines for aquaculture under the Clean Water Act, particularly for larger-scale aquaculture pens that discharge wastes directly into coastal waters.
- Put in place an environmentally protective federal permitting program for offshore aquaculture before this developing segment of the industry becomes established.
- Champion research and development investments and cost-share incentives for sustainable aquaculture practices, such as recirculating on-land systems.
- Seek greater environmental sustainability through the World Trade Organization, with the goal of allowing environmental considerations in the production of traded-food commodities to play a far larger role in trade decisions.

The Pew Oceans Commission is an independent group of leaders, led by former White House chief of staff Leon Panetta, which is conducting a national review of the policies needed to restore and protect the oceans' living resources. The commission includes leaders from ocean research, fishing, conservation, industry, and government.

The marine aquaculture report is the second in a series of scientific reports that will assist the independent commission with its review. In addition to aquaculture, the commission is reviewing coastal development, marine pollution, fishing, invasive species, ocean governance, and marine protected areas. The commission will issue its formal recommendations to the President and the Congress next year.

Forward Pricing Critical To Corn Growers' Economic Survival

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

HOLTWOOD (Lancaster Co.) — "You can no longer put corn in a bin and wait on prices," said Ann Risser, Risser Grain

Risser, who with her family are celebrating 25 years in the grain elevator business, are trying to spread the word about the realities of grain buying and selling

Farmers need to "have a marketing plan," Risser said, including simple forward pricing

Ann, with husband Mark and son Brent and Brent's wife, Debbie, operate a grain business with three locations, serving about 2,500 customers

With headquarters in Holtwood, the grain business picks up and delivers grain to areas in Lancaster, York, and other southeast Pennsylvania counties, all of Maryland, and into New York

At Holtwood, all 150 tillable acres are rented

Late last year the location housed two piles of grain overflow Both covered, one pile included 200 000 bushels or 11 million pounds of corn

Another, when it was piled, included about 50 000 bushels The corn is on top of a 120-foot square concrete pad and covered by a heavy plastic bunker cover

Storage at the Holtwood location, noted Brent Risser is more than 550,000 bushels They can store 250,000 bush-

Crop Winners Announced At Keystone Farm Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

YORK (York Co.) — Winners of the Pennsylvania Five-Acre Corn Club Contest were announced here at the York Fairgrounds in mid-January during the annual Keystone Farm Show

Dan Wolf, president of the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Association (PMCGA), noted that of the 103 entries in the corn contest, there were some "notable differences," he said, in cultural practices compared to the 1999 contest Only 7 of 91 growers used cultivation, with most growers using 30-inch row spacing. The second highest spacing was 38 inches apart

Wolf noted it is "hard to find significant differences in yield to favor one type of tillage over another," he told those attending the awards presentation at the fairgrounds

About 44 percent of the contestants use sidedress nitrogen Average planting depth was 1.7 inches Corn acres grown by participants numbered 24,242

For the most part, the year was substantially different in terms of total yield, a vast improvement from the statewide drought of the previous summer "Some don't appreciate how good of a year it was," Wolf said

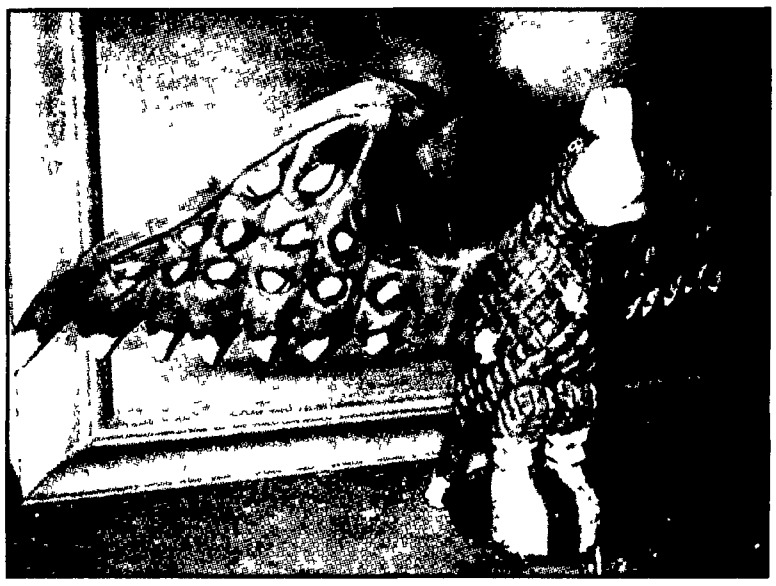
Fishertown Shop Specializes In Folk Art

Liza Mishler is quite proud of the gleaming jelly cupboard in mint condition which is a part of her shop.



A Schimmel reproduction of an Eagle. Both original Schimmels and the reproductions were carved with a pocketknife.

LINDA WILLIAMS
Beford Co. Correspondent

FISHERTOWN (Bedford Co.) — "When most teen-agers were spending their money on clothes or the movies, I was buying antiques," said Liza Mishler, owner of Spring Meadow Antiques and Folk Art.

"I grew up in Montgomery County in an 1830 farmhouse that was full of antiques," Liza said. "We lived in Skippack, and the town had six antique shops, one hardware store, and a restaurant. There wasn't a lot to do, so I haunted the antique shops and learned about antiques."

With her ice cream shop earnings, Liza would buy antiques on the layaway plan. Knowing she would be good for the money, the dealers cooperated and and encouraged her growing knowledge of antiques.

By the time she married at age 23, she had a house full of antiques needing only a bedsprings and mattress to set up housekeeping.

For 10 years, Liza owned an antique shop in Johnstown where she quickly learned that, to be a good dealer, you have to specialize in one thing. "That thing for me has become folk art and 1840s' vintage furniture," Liza said.

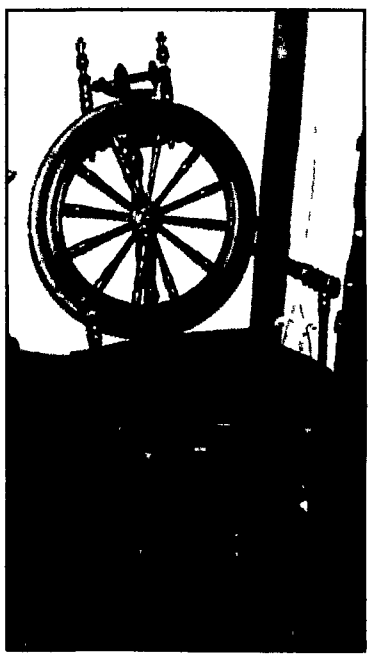
Her small shop in a restored summer kitchen overflows with colorful folk art, both original and reproductions. "Some artists, such as Greg Shooner of Ohio, have become so skillful at reproductions," Liza explained. "That their pieces are also very valuable and will become more so with time."

Shooner specializes in red ware pottery which was originally made all throughout Pennsylvania because of the red clay soil. A late summer sun dances on the colorful Shooner pieces she has placed in an 1840s' vintage corner cupboard. Both floors of the shop contain sturdy pieces of quality made furniture.

"They had to be built well," Liza said. "Think how they must have been moved in horse-drawn wagons. Some even in the Conestoga wagons."

Another popular folk artist was William Schimmel, 1817-1890. Schimmel was a roadside artist who did carvings with a pocket knife and sold them for a few cents. Because he was an alcoholic, Schimmel would trade his carvings for booze. Consequently, many bars in the Lancaster area had original Schimmel carvings. Today, his work is adeptly copied by David Strammer.

"Poor Schimmel must turn over in his grave if he knew his work today sells for $50,000 and up," said Liza.



A chair made from an old spinning wheel. As the spinning wheel became obsolete, folks made them into chairs.

Other attractive and decorative items in the shop include kitchen gadgets, Lt. Moses Willard Lighting, forged iron, hooked rugs, and unusual sterling jewelry.

Over the years, Liza has seen three big changes in the antique business. "The first was the advent of the antique mall. It used to be the wife would sit in the shop all day while the husband went out to find antiques or did repair work. Today, it is much more difficult to make a living, so antique dealers often have full-time jobs and then rent a spot in an antique mall."

Bedford County has a number of these malls, including "Treasures Through Time" and "Founder's Crossing," both in the town of Bedford.

The second big change was major publications which catered to antiques, such as Country Living.

"If Country Living runs an article on decorating with watering cans, every dealer in the area is sure to sell out of watering cans within a month," Liza said.

And the most important change has been the Internet, and selling antiques over the Internet with the whole world at your fingertips.

"It used to be that antique dealers would depend a lot on 'pickers,'" Liza said. "Pickers are people who go to yard sales with limited knowledge of antiques, but occassionally find some good stuff. They would sell it to antique dealers and make a quick profit. Today, they keep their findings and sell them on E-Bay."

Liza admitted that she intends to get on the 'net herself.

Master Card and Visa signs lead Liza to add a fourth change in the antique business. "We used to sell a lot with layaways or on credit," she said. "Today it's the credit card. Most of my small items are purchased on impulse. However, a larger piece of furniture takes thought and some make these purchases using the credit card to make payments."

Liza's love for antiques fits easily into the Mishler's own 1830s' farm house in an area once known as "Quaker Valley."

"It was a part of the Underground Railroad," she said. "A covered bridge located nearby used to be a hideout for the runaway slaves. They would be picked up by Quaker farmers carrying wagonloads of straw or hay and taken to Richland Township, where they would meet their next ride toward Canada."

Liza believes her own home was a part of the Underground as she found bottles, dishes, and even a shoe under the floorboards of the picturesque summer kitchen, which houses her shop.

At Christmas, Liza decorates the large farmhouse in an 1830s' folk art style and holds an open house the first two weekends in November. "I'm already getting calls to see if I am planning an open house this year."

Her shop is located just off Rt. 56 and 25 minutes from either Johnstown or Altoona. The telephone number is (814) 839-9120 and it is always a good idea to call before going.

Redware reproduction pottery gleams in an 1830s' vintage corner cupboard.

American Game Boards: Fun And Folk Art

There is something about old game boards that instantly catch your eye. For the most part, they offer a graphic art combining color with abstraction. No wonder they appeal to folk art collectors and are displayed on walls as art. They are still an amusement for game players as well as conversation pieces.

Recently, part of a private collection was offered by Skinner Galleries. A painted polychrome Parcheesi board, c.1880, sold for $4,025 and a polychrome painted checkerboard, c.1880, found a buyer for $3,450.

Skinner American folk art specialist Martha Hamilton pointed out that not just any old game board can go for more than $1,000. "It should have great, original paint as well as unusual and aesthetically appealing designs. And be a rarity."

For instance, the Parcheesi board had stenciled gilt scroll and floral motifs. The checkerboard was polychrome painted and all-over marbleized surface.

Hamilton also pointed out that handmade game boards are more valuable if they can be documented to a specific region.

Detective

Nineteenth century game boards were usually made of maple and pine by untrained amateurs as well as skilled artisans. They were rarely signed or dated. "They were yet another way for artists to express themselves," said Hamilton.

Playing board games goes back to antiquity. In those days lines were probably drawn in the earth and instead of checkers, bones, stones, and shells would have been used. The earliest board games documented go back to the reign of Amenemhet 111 in Egypt (1841-1797 BC). Their boards were of ivory and other luxurious materials.

The checkerboard is one of the earliest board designs — in fact, one of the earliest designs other than scrollwork and floral motifs. The charm of the early checkerboards, Parcheesi and backgammon, is their primitive, "handmade" look. When bold colors and geometric forms are combined in a Parcheesi or backgammon board the initial reaction is that they look like an example of modern abstract art. Maybe they are what inspired artists Piet Mondrian and Paul Klee?

Commercially made games became popular after 1850. As a result, fewer were made by hand. However, many handmade game boards were handsomely made into the early 19th century. They can fetch top dollar.

Most game boards were painted. However, an interesting addition to a game board collection would be a carved checkerboard. These sometimes turn up and were made for blind players.

Some game boards were painted on both sides. Because they are less common, even the least interesting are seriously collected.

CLUES: As Martha Hamilton pointed out, "there are reproductions of checker and Parcheesi boards. A careful examination of the paint can determine age. However, the fakers these days are very skilled at aging."

A beginning collector should look for a signature or date incised or painted on the back. Color is important and adds to the value. Boards with blue or red painting sell for more common black and white examples. Look for fine details and unusual and aesthetically appealing designs.

The original design should be in good condition with minimal, if any, restoration.

Antiques Questions And Answers

Can you give me an idea of value for this eight-piece "Seller's" kitchen cupboard set that included cupboard, two side cabinets, table and four chairs. They are dated on the back "1936." The cupboard has a flour bin, porcelain pull-out work surface, tin lined with tin pull lid in bottom drawer. In good shape.

J.B. - Danville, IA

Price depends a lot on where you live. At auctions outside of large cities, your set could find a buyer for $800 to $1,500.

These armchairs, with backs with a carved man's head, smoking a pipe, were brought from England by my great grandmother approximately 160 years ago. Similar pieces were written about in Hobbies magazine in 1969, and referred to as tavern chairs. They were in the Falstaff Museum in St. Louis that no longer exists. Since I would like to sell them, I'd like an idea of value.

A.S. - Naples, FL

Your 19th century pub chairs could sell at auction for $700 or more apiece. Send photo to Furniture Expert, Slogan's Auctions, 8861 NW 18th Terrace, Sloan's Miami, Suite 100, Miami, FL, 33172.

I have a ceramic vase shaped like a pitcher. The background color is in gold with a light coat of pale blue over it. It is marked on the bottom "Stangl Pottery, Trenton, NJ." Is it worth anything?

F.G. - Hollywood, FL

Collector interest in pottery from the 1940s, 50s continues to grow. Stangl Pottery produced bird and animal figurines as well as dinnerware and accessories. Your decorative pitcher could sell in a shop for $50.

I am wondering if my old black metal stove is worth anything. It is stamped 1900 on the inside and Thatcher on the outside. It has lots of gilt trim.

A.D. - Staten Island, NY

Your highly decorated c.1900, wood-burning stove would have collectors fighting over it for several thousand dollars.

I have this document signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, to Anning Prall of New York, when the Senate appointed him a member of the Federal Radio Commission in 1934. Is it of any value?

A.J.F. - Staten Island, NY

The document has historical value. Since most presidents either had somebody else sign their names to such documents or it was done with an electronic pen. It's monetary value, with the authentic signature would be around $100.

My late father worked on a ranch in Texas for many years. Among his belongings I found an elaborately tooled brown leather belt with various motifs including the Texas star and cowboys. Is it worth anything?

B.C. - Dallas, TX

There are many collectors of cowboy memorabilia. Similar belts sell in antiques shops for around $80.

I have a Chinese "ancestor portrait" of an official seated in a chair that I discovered in my grandmother's attic. It is in good condition and has no signature. I showed it to an antique dealer who didn't seem impressed and offered me $150 for it. Should I have accepted his offer?

C.S. - Chicago, IL

From your E-mail photo, you have a very fine example of this art form, done in the late 19th century. Wealthy and important Chinese hired such portraits commissioned for posterity. Hence the term "Ancestor portraits." Yours could sell in a shop for $800 to $1,000.

At a country estate sale I bought an old, wool hooked rug with a picture of a dog lying under a tree. A barn is in the background. As an antiques collector, I know it probably dates 19th century, but not the value. It is about 35 inches by 40 inches. Any idea?

M.D. - Elgin, IL

The more interesting the subject the higher the value. Yours could sell at auction for over $2,000.

Do old aprons have any value? I found several, very fancily trimmed with embroidery and lace in my late grandmothers old trunk. They are in good condition, so I figure she used them for special occasions. They date to the 1900s.

C.J. - Milwaukee, WI

Interest in old textiles includes aprons. From your description yours could sell at a quality antique show for $50 each and up.

This table model music box has been passed down through my family. It is in excellent condition and plays beautifully. A plate inside states: Manufactured by The Regina Co., Rahway, NJ. No. 2000131. The last patent date is May 20, 1899. I also have 15 records that go with it. Can you give me an approximate value?

A.R. - Mason, OH

A shop price could be $2,000.

I have the exact Chase, chrome percolator coffee urn pictured in your July column, including sugar, creamer, and serving tray. What is it worth?

B.O. - Cincinnati, OH

Similar sets sell in shops for $250 or more.

Since I inherited a set of ironstone dinnerware in the tea leaf pattern, in copper luster, I wonder if there is a collector's club?

C.T. C. - Cincinnati, OH

There is a Tea Leaf Club International. Write to Maxine Johnson, PO Box 377, Belton, MO 64012 or visit www.tealeafclub.com. They will be holding a convention Sept. 20 through 23, 2001.

Frank Perdue Named 'Man Of The Year' At Commodity Classic, Md.

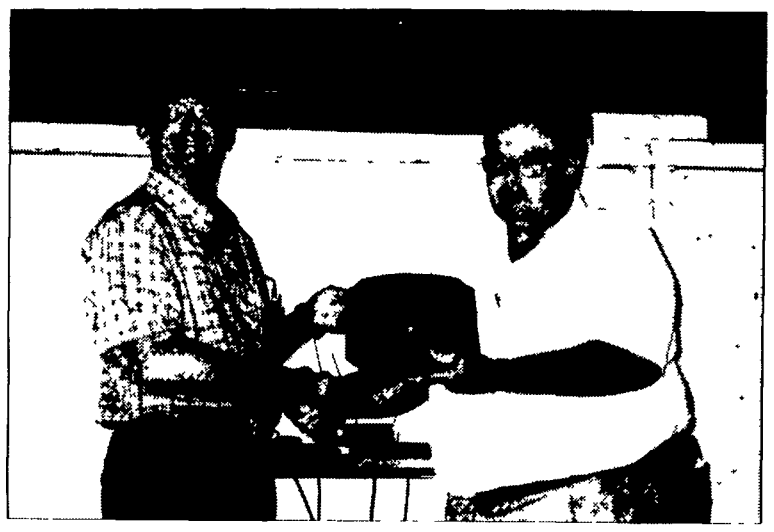
EDGEWATER, Md. — For a third year, crowds of farmers from the Maryland Grain Producers Association (MGPA) and the Maryland Soybean Board (MSB) put their work aside for a day to attend the Commodity Classic, the joint annual meeting for both groups. Though hot, humid temperatures prevailed throughout most of the day, everyone was delighted with the downpour of rain that came during the afternoon meeting.

One highlight of the day included the presentation of the MGPA "Man of the Year" award. This year's award was presented to Frank Perdue. Perdue is known as a pioneer in the poultry industry and a strong advocate for Maryland's grain industry.

"When Frank Perdue's name was nominated, the entire board unanimously agreed he was the perfect man for this award," stated Jamie Jamison, master of ceremonies and a grain farmer in Montgomery County. "Perdue has always been there in support of our industry. Last year's surplus of grain was a perfect example. Perdue Farms could have easily turned their back's and refused our grain. Instead, they accepted our trucks and dumped it on the ground for future storage! That commitment to the grain industry is tremendous."

Accepting the award for Perdue was Dick Willey. Willey is the present and general manager of the Grain, Oil and Seed Division of Perdue Farms, Inc.

Willey commented on how strongly Perdue has supported Maryland's grain industry. Having begun in the poultry industry back in the 1960s, he (Perdue) realized the value of a good working relationship with Maryland's grain farmers. Known as the "Tough man who makes a tender chicken," Perdue has always been in the heart of the business willing to go the extra mile.



Dick Willey, left, president and general manager of Grain, Oil and Seed Division of Perdue Farms, Inc., accepts "Man of the Year" award for Frank Perdue from Jamie Jamison, right, emcee for the third annual Maryland Commodity Classic.

Also scheduled during the afternoon meeting was a panel discussion for the 2002 Farm Bill. On hand to give their perspective was John McClelland, director for energy and analysis for the National Corn Growers Association; Anne Keys, from the Environmental Working Group; and Rick Kirchhoff, of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture.

Following the Farm Bill discussion were short presentations by John Schillinger, of Heartland Farms and Gene Gebolys, of World Energy Alternative, LLC speaking on the explosive use of biodiesel.

Before breaking for the much awaited crab feast, attendees were given a quick overview of the favorable findings for the Ethanol Feasibility Study commissioned by the MGPUB. Following the meal, an Ethanol Workshop was held which gave specific details on the first phase of the study.

Jamison concluded by saying, "I feel like the day was a great success. Each year we try to offer information on pressing issues, as well as, give guests some enjoyment and down time. We have just completed our wheat harvest season and are only a few weeks from beginning another. The Commodity Classic is a good break for these members."

Vines Named Head Of Penn State's Ag Information And Communication

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Neal Vines, director of Agriculture Information Systems at Purdue University, has been named director of Information and Communication Technologies in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, effective June 2001.

Vines heads the college's Information and Communication Technologies (ICT) unit, which was formed in 2000 by the merger of Ag Information Services and Computer Services. ICT's services include video production and conferencing, publishing, news and media relations, information technology, Web development, computer training and support, and exhibit design.

Vines provides leadership for information technology and communication initiatives; incorporate technology objectives into the college's strategic plans; and implement strategies for identifying and reaching the college's key audiences.

Vines earned his bachelor's degree in animal science from Virginia Tech in 1980, then joined that university as an agricultural extension agent. From 1981 to 1988 he was a farm management agent, and in 1988 he was named a computer resource agent.

In 1995, after earning his master's degree in information systems from Virginia Tech, he was named coordinator of the university's Extension Information Systems. He directed the implementation of Virginia Cooperative Extension's first statewide data and telecommunications network, a $1.5 million project that included negotiating with telecommunications companies and establishing procedures and guidelines for network installation.

Vines also established a Web project with the Department of Agricultural Research and Extension Communications, paving the way for the communications unit and Extension Information Systems to jointly develop and maintain Web sites for extension, agriculture experiment stations, and other parts of the Virginia Tech College of Agriculture.

In 1998, Vines joined Purdue University as director of Agriculture Information Systems. There he led a joint effort to establish a collaborative development project for departmental Web sites, which united academic departments, administrators and technology professionals in a coordinated effort to address information technology issues.

Cornell's Mann Library Sells 50th 'Library-In-A-Box' To African College

ITHACA, N.Y. — Cornell University's Albert R. Mann Library has reached a milestone in disseminating information to the developing world: It has sold its 50th "library in a box," a full set of scientific journals packed onto 296 CD-ROMs. Distribution began in 1999.

The 50th set was sent to the Bunda College of Agriculture in the sub-Saharan Africa county of Malawi. Bunda's library serves about 600 students, scientists and lecturers in an isolated community about 30 kilometers from the country's capital, Lilongwe. The library, supported by donors, had subscribed to nearly 100 journals. Because of financial cuts, the library has had no journal subscriptions for the past three years.

Now, like 49 other institutions in the developing world, Bunda has a "library in a box," called The Essential Electronic Agricultural Library, or TEEAL.

"The Bunda library was very enthusiastic to acquire TEEAL with its full-text articles and graphics," says Nicole Joos, the Mann Library's TEEAL project manager.

The boxed library — which includes 140 journals with back issues to 1993 and with provisions for updates through 2005 — is available for sale only in 111 developing countries and is priced at $10,000. That may seem like a lot of money: but an annual subscription to all 140 journals, ranging from African Crop Science Journal to the World's Poultry Science Journal, if bought separately, would cost well over $350,000.

Because leading scientific publishers have waived royalty fees, the library is able to offer TEEAL at a fraction of the real cost. Several donor agencies, including the World Bank and the Ford and Rockefeller foundations, make financial grants available.

Ethanol Feasibility Study Favorable Maryland Farmers

EDGEWATER, Md. — Members of the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB) were more than pleased with the results of the first phase of an Ethanol Feasibility study that was commissioned earlier this year. The results were released at the Commodity Classic on July 26.

Al Voudrie, president of Voudrie Business Development, Inc. along with Dale Monceaux, senior vice president of Katzen International, Inc. gave very positive findings for the probability of constructing an ethanol plant in Maryland. Their conclusions are based on a 15 million gallon per year ethanol plant, which would run on barley and other small grains including wheat. The approximate cost for constructing a plant of this size would be $30 million.

"The question we have been asked is why barley?" stated Robert Hutchison, a Talbot County grain and vegetable farmer and a member of the committee which is spearheading this study. "Quite simply, barley is a crop more farmers would like to grow if the price was more favorable especially as it also serves as a great cover crop. Most people are familiar with ethanol plants running on corn, but here in Maryland, we have an established market for all the corn we can grow."

Maryland is known as a corn deficit state. This is due to the fact that all the corn grown is used primarily for the poultry industry. There is no excess requiring export.

Currently, Maryland produces approximately four million bushels of barley. A plant of this size would require seven million bushels to produce 15 million gallons of ethanol. Members of the MGPUB are quite certain Maryland farmers would produce more barley if the market dictated so. If the farmers decided not to expand the amount of barley grown they could substitute wheat or tritacale, or the additional needed bushels of barley could be purchased from neighboring farmers in Delaware and Pennsylvania.

The ethanol produced from this plant would have several market outlets, including its use as an additive in reformulated gasoline. Under the guidelines of the Clean Air Act of 1990, fuel sold in certain polluted areas must be oxygenated to improve the emissions that effect air quality. One of the polluted areas is the Baltimore-Washington corridor. The additive that has been used most along the West and East coasts has been methyl tertiary butyl ether, better known to the public as MTBE. MTBE has been found to pollute ground water and is a possible cancer causing agent. Many states have started to phase out the use of MTBE because of this and will be replacing it with ethanol.

Ethanol is a renewable resource made from any starched based product. It is clean burning and proven safe for the environment. Ethanol has been produced and used in the mid west for many years. Since the banning of MTBE many additional ethanol plants, including that of Maryland's, are being studied as to the feasibility of production in their areas.

The second phase of this study is due to be completed at the end of September. At that time members of the MGPUB will decide what the next steps should be in deciding how to precede with this project.

Hutchison finished by stating; "I think the Board is very encouraged by the results at this point. This ethanol plant could prove to be a real opportunity for Maryland farmers, as well as, others in the state. We are anxiously awaiting the next phase report!"

Caron Receives UD's Distinguished Achievement Award

NEWARK, Del. — Dr. Dewey M. Caron, Cooperative Extension specialist for entomology at the University of Delaware, has been awarded the Roger A. Morse Distinguished Achievement Award for Excellence in Teaching, Extension and Regulatory Apiculture by the Eastern Apicultural Society. The award was presented at the annual conference.

According to Caron, Dr. Roger A. Morse served as professor of apiculture — the keeping of honey bees — for many years at Cornell University, where Caron earned his doctorate. Morse was the teacher who encouraged Caron's interest in honey bees and social insects.

"I am deeply honored to receive this recognition named after a person who was so important to me," says Caron. "The fact that the award is from our Eastern Apicultural Society, to which I have devoted a great deal of attention, is also very significant."

Caron, who is a professor of entomology and applied ecology at UD, was president of the Eastern Apicultural Society in 1986, and board chair between 1989 and 1998.

Morgan Joins American-International Charolais Association

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mitchell P. Morgan, of Port Norris, N.J., has recently joined the American-International Charolais Association (AICA), according to J. Neil Orth, executive vice president of the international organization.

The AICA is the official beef cattle registry of the Charolais breed, with more than 5,500 active and junior members. The association maintains the pedigree, performance, and carcass information on individual animals for its members. These computerized records are used to calculate the most accurate and up-to-date EPD to promote the use of Charolais genetics to all profit minded purebred and commercial cattle breeders.

For more information about Charolais, call (816) 464-5977 or visit the AICA Website at www.charolaisusa.com.

UD Animal Scientist Wins DPI Medal Of Achievement

NEWARK, Del. — Dr. Jack Gelb Jr., animal science professor at the University of Delaware College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, has received this year's distinguished Medal of Achievement by The Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. The award is given annually in recognition of outstanding service to the poultry industry.

As a virologist, Gelb has spent more than 20 years studying avian infectious bronchitis — a highly contagious respiratory tract disease — and other poultry diseases that threaten health on Delmarva and worldwide. He has helped to develop a number of vaccines that are widely used in the poultry industry. In recent years, however, his focus has turned to diagnostics and trying to identify what strains cause outbreaks.

Avian infectious bronchitis is similar to influenza in humans in that the virus mutates readily under field conditions, Gelb says. Using gene sequencing tools to diagnose the strain of the virus causing a particular infection, he determines whether an existing vaccine can solve the problem or whether a new one may be warranted. When necessary, he collaborates with animal-health pharmaceutical companies to develop new vaccines.

"The College of Agriculture and Natural Resources is very proud of the many and significant contributions made by Dr. Gelb and colleagues with regard to poultry disease research and diagnostics," says Dr. Robin Morgan, acting dean of the college.

Conditional License Issued For West Nile Virus Vaccine For Horses

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced August 1 that it has issued a conditional license to Fort Dodge Laboratories, Inc., of Fort Dodge, Iowa, a division of American Home Products, Inc. for a vaccine intended to aid in the prevention of disease in horses caused by West Nile virus.

USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) issues conditional licenses for veterinary biologics products to meet an emergency situation, limited market, local situation, or special circumstance. The special circumstance addressed here is the need for a product to aid in the prevention of disease caused by West Nile virus.

Under these regulations, a product that is shown to be pure and safe and demonstrates a reasonable expectation of efficacy may be licensed while data to establish efficacy and potency are still being obtained.

West Nile virus is a mosquito-borne virus that was first detected in the United States in 1999. The virus, which can cause encephalitis, or inflammation of the brain in animals and in some cases, humans, has been found in Africa, western Asia, the Middle East, the Mediterranean region of Europe, and most recently in various parts of the eastern United States.

West Nile virus infection in horses may include both central nervous system and peripheral nervous system signs. Although horses can be infected by the virus, there is no documentation that infected horses can spread the virus to uninfected horses or other animals. In 1999 and 2000, 85 horses were infected with the virus, and 32 of these cases resulted in death.

The most common signs of West Nile virus infection in U.S. horses have been stumbling or incoordination, weakness of limbs, partial paralysis, muscle twitching and death. Fever has been detected in less than one-quarter of all confirmed cases.

Conditional licenses are generally issued with restrictions and for a limited period of time. At the end of the conditional license period, data obtained in support of the product's efficacy, potency, and product performance are evaluated to determine if the conditional license should be renewed or if a regular product license may be issued.

In keeping with these regulations, the product described above has been issued a conditional license for one year. The product is restricted to use by a veterinarian in those states where use of the product has been approved by the appropriate state regulatory authorities.

Why
would anyone pay more for an older, smaller combine, more hours, fewer features, when he could have a 1996 JD 9600 with all the extras including double spinner chaff spreader and bin extension? This machine comes with a good 922 floating head, parts, technical and instruction manuals, a head hauler and total of 805/534 hours. Always inside. I planned to keep this machine "forever" but health has dictated otherwise Asking $70,000 for package.

KINZE's Exclusive Rotating In-Line Transport: the only system that offers you narrow transport on large planters equipped with narrow row Interplant® or fertilizer options As narrow as most tractor duals

The unique, patented hydraulic "lift & rotate" system features a rugged, heavy-duty stainless steel clad center post (on both 3500 and 3600 models) which rotates on large tapered bearings seated at the base of the post. (Model 3400 uses a parallel linkage system with dual lift cylinders.)

DMI

Digging Deep for Higher Profits

The DMI ecolo-til 2500 with No-Till shanks from Hoober is becoming the ideal tillage tool for achieving greater yield and profit potential. With patented tiger-points, the DMI ecolo-til 2500 aggressively twists and rolls the soil while laterally fracturing the hardpan. This provides excellent fracture of compaction and increases water absorption and air exchange for better nutrient flow up and down the soil profile and root system. This process provides warmer soil in the spring for earlier planting, plus it delivers more uniform crop germination.

4"- 6" ~ Disc Harrows

HARDPAN 10"-12"

Fall is the best time of the year to break up the hardpan.

Put the DMI Ecolo-Til 2500 Advantage to Work for You

- Controls Compaction
- Increases Water Absorption and Air Exchange
- Provides Warmer Soil in Spring for Earlier Planting
- Achieves More Uniform Crop Germination
- Greater Yield and Profit Potential

We have DMI ecolo-til 2500 units in stock from 3-8 shanks.

Call a Hoober salesman today for all your DMI needs.

Built To Outlast.

It's mind-numbing, back-breaking work. Loading bales. Working crops Tilling, mowing, raking, baling and the list goes on It'll grind you to the bone – and take an average tractor down hard But Massey Ferguson 4200 Series tractors deliver unmatched performance durability and comfort, to keep you going long after others give out. The long-stroke Perkins Fastram™ diesel cranks out high torque, even when RPMs drop Powertrains range from manual shift to high-output PowerShuttle. Dual-system hydraulics a beefy linkage and new lift geometry generate optimum lift Even the hydraulic filter never quits – just wipe it clean every 1,000 hours and keep on going And touches like an adjustable spring-suspension seat, adjustable tilt steering and more mean you'll last as long as your Massey Ferguson 4200.

No Compromise.

JOHN DEERE 1560 NO-TILL DRILL

NO-TILL? NO PROBLEM.

- Here's the drill that truly outperforms the lengendary 750 Drill.
- Apply as much as 450 pounds of down-force per opener for penetrating tough no-till; turn off down-force to give openers 2 inches of float for accurate depth control in mellow conditions.
- Plain-grain seedbox capacity is boosted 25 percent... now 3 1/2 bushels per foot; boxes fill evenly, empty completely.
- Grass-seed capacity has doubled (plain-grain only).
- Available in 10-, 15-, and 20-foot widths; 7 1/2 or 10-inch spacing.

Tractor rollbar saves life of Ag Department staff member

Are you still putting off installing a tractor rollbar? Well, don't. A local man was saved from injury and possible death by a rollbar that prevented his tractor from rolling on top of him in an accident Monday.

SAALFIELD FARMS

Make sure your story has a happy ending

Follow these rules for All-Around Farm Safety:

MidAtlantic Farm Credit President Bob Frazee shows off his new Maryland Ag Tag.

MidAtlantic Farm Credit Outfits Cars With Maryland Ag Tag

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — MidAtlantic Farm Credit, a $1.2B agricultural lender, has announced that it will show its commitment to agriculture by outfitting its entire fleet of company cars with the new Maryland Agricultural license plate.

"The Farm Credit system was created in 1916 to support our country's farmers and rural homeowners," said Bob Frazee, president and CEO of MidAtlantic. "We're very proud to show our continuing support of the industry by proudly displaying our 'Ag Tags'."

MidAtlantic Farm Credit has 18 offices throughout Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania and the eastern shore of Virginia. The Association operates 44 Maryland-tagged cars, all of which have applied for the new tags.

Proceeds from sales of the tag support MAEF, the Maryland Agricultural Education Foundation, an organization that works with state schools and organizations to promote the importance of agriculture to our area.

"We believe we were the first major company to commit to changing its entire fleet," says Frazee. "We've worked with MAEF for several years in a variety of projects, and this was a great opportunity to support their much-needed work. We hope other companies will also take advantage of this program, and show their support of one of Maryland's largest industries."

Case IH Adds New Features To Axial-Flow Combines

RACINE, Wis. — Carrying on a long tradition, Case IH Axial-Flow combines continue to bring out new features, refinements and improvements, all addressing customer productivity needs.

"We recognize and celebrate the five principles of a rotary combine, and we constantly build from them," says Jan Rintamaki, Case IH director of application marketing for cash grains.

The five principles:

1. Simplicity and reliability: The single, in-line rotor is the only moving part used to thresh and separate the grain, versus the 16 moving parts in a conventional combine. Because it has fewer moving parts, the Axial-Flow is easier to operate, more reliable and less costly to maintain.

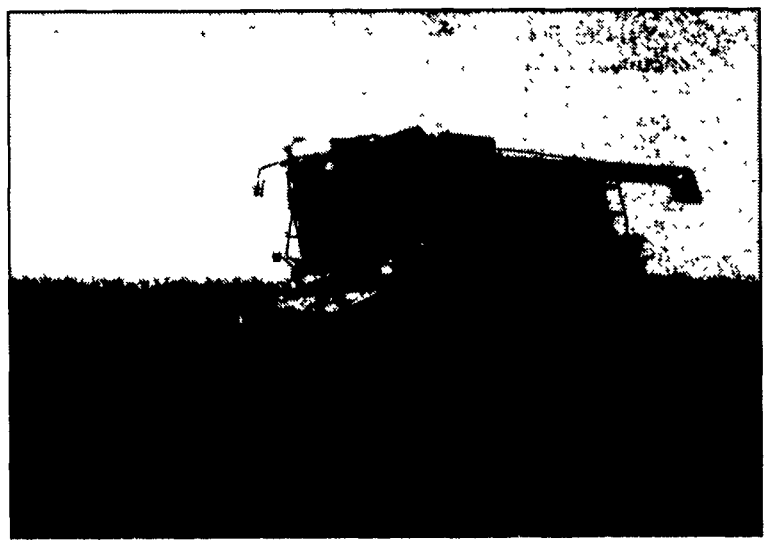
2. Grain quality: The rotor's multiple-pass concept results in gentle crop handling and thorough threshing. This produces a grain sample with more whole kernels, fewer cracks and substantially less foreign material.

3. Grain savings: The gentle threshing action, combined with the benefits of centrifugal force separation, allows the Axial-Flow combine to put more grain in the tank.

4. Matched capacity: To achieve greater throughput at lower loss levels, each of the combine systems (feeding, threshing, separating, cleaning and material handling) is capacity matched.

5. Crop adaptability: Options of different concaves, grates and kits, along with flexible settings, make it easy to change from one crop to another. This allows the Axial-Flow combine to handle the vast majority of crop types grown in North America.

Multiple improvements to the 2300 Series have been made, including:



Case IH continues to improve the 2300 Series Axial-Flow combines. Among the 20 new features available is the 12-row corn head capability on the 2388 combine pictured here.

- Hydraulic feeder reverser becomes standard. The new reverser increases torque by 50 percent from prior electric reversers.
- New 2200 Series corn heads, including 12-row 30 inch and 12-row 20 inch and 22 inch heads.
- Twelve-row ready 2388 available from the factory.
- Fuel capacity on 2388 increased to 180 gallons, up 46 percent, to provide 14-16 hours of operation on one tank of fuel.
- New Kevlar belt and pulleys for the right hand feeder drive on the 2388 model.
- Redesigned header belt drive idler tensioner for all models.
- Field tracker structural design improved to handle the heavier 2200 Series corn heads.
- Structural design of the rock trap improved.
- Right hand output shaft and forward gear case capacity enhanced.
- Larger forward gear case sump on the 2388.
- New Rochelle Rotor for the 2366 and 2388 combines.
- Straw chopper adjustment from the outside of the combine.
- New fixed knife blades for the straw chopper.
- New spreader bat enhancements.
- Sieve adjustment on the side of the combine. A kit is available for field installation this year.
- New clean elevator tough cone fills the elevator more efficiently by reducing the boiling action at the elevator inlet, resulting in a 15 percent capacity improvement.
- New viewing door and light for sieves and chopper.
- Servicing doors improved for easier access without opening side panels.
- New delayed exit lighting from cab.
- HillCo hillside leveling system available for 2366 and 2388 combines. (HillCo is an independent after-market supplier and installs these systems.)

Syngenta Seeds Introduces 28 New Products

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — Syngenta Seeds, Inc. plans to introduce 28 new NK® Brand corn and soybean products for 2002 planting. Combined with the company's existing line-up of high-yielding hybrids and varieties, the new products enable growers to spread production risk across a range of top-yielding offerings and choose those products with the added-value traits that make sense for their farm.

"Growing conditions — and resulting product performance — can vary dramatically from one year to the next. By selecting a portfolio of consistent performing hybrids, farmers demonstrate sound risk management," explains Marc Hennen, corn marketing manager for Syngenta Seeds, Inc. "Just as a financial manager encourages investors to spread risk across a variety of stocks, we encourage farmers to take a portfolio approach to their seed selections."

Three of the new NK Brand hybrids include YieldGard® insect protection and resistance to Liberty® herbicide, allowing farmers to enjoy the benefits of both in-plant insect protection and excellent weed control. These hybrids, like all of the company's products, are approved for export to the European Union.

"Additionally, growers have the option to purchase many NK Brand hybrids with Syngenta Seeds' proprietary seed-delivered insect control, Force® ST insecticide with ProShield™ technology," adds Jeff Jorgensen, corn product manager, Syngenta Seeds. "The patented seed-coating system conveniently delivers protection to corn plants through direct application of insecticide to the seed.

With ProShield technology, a precise amount of the active ingredient, Force ST insecticide, is applied to each seed, ensuring uniform performance. ProShield technology protects germinating seeds and growing corn plants against rootworm, white grub, wireworm and seed corn maggot, plus cutworm suppression."

Seventeen new soybean varieties also have been added to the NK Brand product lineup. The new entries are a reflection of customer demand, with most offering resistance to Roundup® herbicide, integrated with solid agronomic characteristics.

"These varieties continue our tradition of more than 30 years of breeding and releasing soybean varieties with top yields, demonstrated consistency and strong overall performance," emphasizes Mark Schmidt, soybean product manager. "Our strength in research and development enables us to integrate the Roundup Ready trait with great genetics across all maturity zones."

USDA Announces New Lamb Market News Reports

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA announced the introduction of two new lamb market news reports and one revised report to replace or complement existing reports currently issued as part of the Livestock Mandatory Reporting Program.

These reports are expected to improve public access to mandatory information by permitting USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service to publish a greater volume of collected data on a more consistent basis in a manner that protects the confidentiality of reported transactions.

In some of the more thinly traded market sectors, AMS has been unable to publish collected daily data on a routine basis because the publication of such data might have revealed the identity or actions of individual reporting entities.

The LMR program requires the reporting of market information by packers who have annually slaughtered an average of 125,000 cattle or 100,000 swine over the most recent five calendar-year period, or have annually slaughtered or processed an average of 75,000 lambs over the most recent five calendar-year period. Importers who have annually imported an average of 5,000 metric tons of lamb meat products over the most recent five calendar-year period are also subject to mandatory reporting requirements.

Among the new reports being launched are two new market news reports on lamb meat and one revised market news report that is designed to replace existing reports on lamb carcasses and negotiated sales of boxed lamb.

National Weekly Lamb Carcass Report: This new report, to be published each Wednesday, will include information on all carcass lamb sales that have occurred nationwide between the previous Thursday morning and the last mandatory reporting period on Wednesday afternoon. By using a Thursday-Wednesday reporting format, in accordance with the standard trading cycle of the domestic lamb carcass industry, the content of the new report will provide a more accurate reflection of emerging trends in market activity and prices.

Central U.S. Daily Lamb Carcass Report: This new daily report will include market information submitted by packers located in Colorado, Texas, and Iowa, permitting more frequent publication of daily lamb carcass sales information in a manner that meets confidentiality requirements.

National Daily Five-Day Rolling Average Boxed Lamb Cut Report — Negotiated Sales: This revised daily report contains a Five-day rolling average of reported values submitted nationwide about negotiated sales in boxed lamb cuts. The use of a Five-day rolling average rather than actual daily values will enable USDA to publish a substantially greater volume of information on negotiated lamb cut sales without divulging proprietary information.

More information about each of these reports is available from the AMS Livestock and Grain Market News Branch, at their mandatory reporting Website, located at http://www.ams.usda.gov/lsg/mncs/ls_mpr.htm.

Flexible Finance Plans Help Growers Plan For 2002

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — No and low-interest financing programs are among the most popular incentives offered by seed companies to help growers plan their costs and use their cash flow more effectively.

Asgrow® and Dekalb® just unveiled a new FarmFlex℠ program that provides growers with interest-free or low-rate financing on eligible seed purchases.

"The FarmFlex program gives growers maximum flexibility to help manage both their inputs and cash flow," notes Monsanto market manager Dion McBay. "Unlike competing programs, we don't require that growers plant a certain percentage of their acres with our seed, or combine their seed and herbicide purchases in a system that may not be right for their needs."

The FarmFlex program covers Asgrow and Dekalb seed for alfalfa, canola, corn, soybeans and sunflowers. Growers who enroll by Jan. 10, 2002, will receive zero percent financing, while growers who enroll by Feb. 28, 2002 receive 2.9 percent annual percentage rate (APR) financing. Along with these competitive interest rates, the payment period extends from the time of purchase through Nov. 25, 2002.

In order to be eligible, growers must purchase a minimum of $7,500 of seed during the 2002 growing season. For more information, visit your participating Asgrow and Dekalb seed dealers.

Waterbeds for Cows

ALANTA® Poly Patent Pending

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE
Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

BEEF TIPS

Simmental heifer takes it all at Maryland

Maryland State Fair Supreme Champion Female is a Simmental for the first time in memory. Pond View Kim, a traditionally colored red with white markings Simmental bred heifer, is owned by Pond View Farms, White Hall, and Luke Phipps of Street, Maryland. The powerful, correct heifer was praised for "being what the cattle industry needs" in a female cow.

Maryland Simmental breeders are becoming known for being at the leading edge of Simmental cattle breeding in the United States. Keeping the traditional strengths of the breed (good frame and maternal traits, good disposition, and the best growth numbers in the industry), Simmental breeders are now fine tuning and positioning the breed for the industry by moderating frame size and adding volume. Pond View Kim is the latest example of where the Simmental breed is going.

THE ADVANTAGES OF ROASTED CORN

* Earlier Harvest - Our roaster will dry corn down eight to ten points of moisture.

* Higher Digestibility - Research studies show that roasted corn is more digestible than high-moisture corn.

* Purer Feed - Our wet growing season has the potential of producing mold spores in standing corn that is harmful to livestock, swine and poultry. Our flame roaster can effectively remove mold spores.

* Drier Total Ration - With less fermented feed. Supplementing the hay and corn silage diet with dry corn aids better rumin health.

* Greater Profits - Dairy herds fed roasted corn advance two to eight lb. per cow in milk and improves herd health.

National Dairy Women's Conference Set

TEMPE, Ariz. — A "One-Step Ahead" National Dairy Women's Conference will be conducted here Nov. 8-10, at Wyndham Buttes Resort.

Today's women dairy producers recognize the challenging roles they face. Changes in management trends and production technologies require them to evaluate new management systems, consult with dairy support professionals, and implement improvements with a keen eye on day-to-day performance of the operation.

Monsanto Dairy Business has assembled a group of experts to help women dairy producers stay "One-Step Ahead" on the path to success by tackling some of today's practical dairy issues, including:

- Marginality — Making Sound Economic Decisions on Your Dairy by Dr. Sandra Godden — University of Minnesota, Assistant Professor.
- Are Facilities Limiting the Profit Potential of Your Dairy? by Dr. Dennis Armstrong — University of Arizona, Extension Dairy Specialist.
- How Environmental Regulations May Affect Your Ability to Farm by Mr. Dennis Frame — University of Wisconsin, Associate Professor.
- A Look At Milk Quality on Your Farm by Dr. Hank Spencer — Monsanto Dairy Business, Technical Service Specialist.
- What Does It Take to Have a Successful Heifer Program? by Dr. Magdalena Kurz — Monsanto Dairy Business, Area Market Manager.
- High Production and Sound Reproductive Performance by Dr. Charlene McLaughlin — Monsanto Dairy Business, Technical Service Specialist.

Conference activities also include a producer panel where Linda Lussier, Lussier Dairy Inc., Hawthorne, Fla.; Maria Nye, Mountain View Dairy of Delta Utah; Susan Pierson, Sar Ben Farms Inc., St. Paul, Ore.; and Zeba Schouten, MJ Schouten Dairy, Hico, Texas, will share personal dairy experiences on herd health, nutrition, financial record keeping, and employee management.

In addition to an opportunity to mingle with some of today's top dairy industry leaders, come prepared for fun and laughter with both old-time friends and new-found acquaintances you'll meet in Phoenix. We hope you will join us for this year's National Dairy Women's Conference to learn how we can help keep producers "One-Step Ahead" on the path to success.

For more information about the conference or to request a registration packet, please contact Colleen Walsh at (816) 512-2373 or via e-mail at walsh@fleishman.com.

'Seven Blessings' Plus Two At Martin Dairy

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

SCHOENECK (Lancaster Co.) — Seven Blessings Dairy is aptly named, if you ask farm owners Gene and Linda Martin.

The blessings represent each of the seven children in the Martin farm enterprise system. They are Dan, Matthew, Steve, Joshua, Benjamin, Bethany, and Charity.

Gene and Linda manage the acreage. The cows at Seven Blessings are cared for by perhaps two more blessings: Dwight and Charlene Martin (no relation to Gene and Linda).

Gene said he purchased the 72-acre farm in 1995 when it had only 40 cows. Since then, through additions to a stanchion barn, 113 mostly registered Holstein cows make their home there.

A new 2-inch stainless steel pipeline was installed in May this year. The farm operators have the cows on Lancaster DHIA, with the latest averages at 24,800 pounds on the rolling herd, 3 percent protein at 740 pounds, and 3.8 percent fat at 940 pounds.

Dwight and Charlene also care for four children, Melissa, 6; Devon, 5; Carlena, 2½; and Jerrell, 7 mos.

A high producer at the Martin herd is Beatrice, a Very Good 86 Counselor daughter, milking 37,500 pounds at 3.7 percent fat (1,395 pounds) and 3 percent protein (1,100 pounds). The farm doesn't use BST.

Dwight Martin said they feed their own TMR, which includes haylage/silage, high moisture corn, with a supplement protein and soybean meal.

"Good feed and cow comfort are big things," said Martin. "Good feed is key. You can tell the difference early on."

Martin noted that mattresses in the stalls improve herd health. Some of the cattle are pastured in a exercise area.

Gene Martin supplies all feed, except the supplements. Dwight and Charlene have been farming at the Schoeneck location for about two and a half years. Dwight is from a dairy farm in Springville.

Milk prices began to improve back in May. And when the addition to the cow barn is complete, there'll be room for about 120-130 cows.

Gene also feeds about 4,500 beef cattle, maintains a flock of pullets, and also crop-farms about 2,000 acres in the area.

The Martins' other children also farm. Steve farms near Schaefferstown, Dan helps with herd health, and other children help around the farm as needed.

Gene noted that he enjoys the lifestyle of farming. Working with the family all day in the farm business, he said, is the "greatest benefit."

Growing Dairy Family Partners For Success

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — In 1970, John and Bonnie Hess and their three young children moved from Lancaster County onto a farm they had purchased a few miles east of Gettysburg.

They began with a milking herd of about 50 cows. Now daughter Josie Riser, son John Hess, and son-in-law Dale Brown are partners with John and Bonnie in Jobo Holstein Farms, L.L.C. — an operation that includes a milking herd of about 500 cows, 1,000 acres of corn and alfalfa, custom forage harvesting, and custom TMR mixing for about 300 additional cows on local dairy farms.

Since moving onto the farm in 1970, the Hess family grew to include two more children. Joy, the youngest, is working fulltime on the farm, and daughter Jayne Sebright continues to be involved in the dairy industry as an employee of Land O' Lakes Cooperative.

In August of this year, Jobo Holstein Farms was one of two Pennsylvania dairy farms recognized by the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders with the organization's Pacesetter Award.

According to N. Alan Bair of the Stakeholders, the organization was created six years ago "to facilitate the viability and expansion of the dairy industry in Pennsylvania."

With 56 corporate members and a mailing list of about 900, the Stakeholders are involved in all aspects of the the industry "from cows to consumers," Bair said.

Pacesetter Awards are given to nominees who excel in the areas of vision, innovation, progressiveness, excellence of performance, and uniqueness. The award was created last year "to recognize individuals and organizations who have contributed significantly to creating a positive image of the Pennsylvania dairy industry."

Bonnie Hess said that expansion projects on Jobo Farm over the years were done with the goal of providing a livelihood for future generations of the family on the farm. These include a new freestall barn built four years ago and a double-10 milking parlor that is expandable to a double-18.

Another improvement planned for the near future is to upgrade the lagoon manure storage system on the farm. A separator system will be installed to remove the liquids for storage, said partner Dale Brown.

Brown and Josie Hess Riser manage the dairy herd,

Penn State Dairy Science Club Is Tops Again

The 2001 national meeting of the American Dairy Science Association (ADSA) was conducted recently in Indianapolis, Ind. Once again, the Penn State Dairy Science Club had a strong showing and took home the Outstanding Student Chapter for the seventh consecutive year.

The annual meeting of ADSA gathers dairy science students, professors, and industry leaders from all over the U.S. and internationally.

Members of the Penn State chapter also took home several individual honors including Outstanding Student, Angie Moschini. During the undergraduate presentation contests, Jennifer Flinchbaugh placed first in the Production division, and Robert Goodling earned first place in Original Research division. The club's quiz bowl team comprised of Angie Moschini, Kevin Harvatine, Jennifer Flinchbaugh, and Daphne Doll, also received top honors in the inaugural ADSA Foundations Quiz Bowl. Newly elected national officers included PSU's Joanna Wilson as second vice president.

The Dairy Science Club is energetically involved with a wide array of student activities. The club conducts the Nittany Lion Fall Classic consignment sale, which allows students to select and prepare Holsteins for the auction. The Holiday Cheesebox sale generates funds for the club's activities by packaging holiday-boxed cheeses to be sold to alumni and friends throughout the U.S. The revenue from these fund raisers help fund the annual spring trip.

During the 2001 spring break, members traveled to the Pacific Northwest to visit internationally respected farms like Markwell, Stanhope-Wedgwood, and Skagvale. International trips are scheduled as well. Several activities give non-dairy oriented students an opportunity to learn about the dairy industry.

including the recordkeeping and hired help for the three-times-a-day milking schedule.

The Jobo workforce includes 13 fulltime and seven parttime employees, in addition to the five corporation partners. According to Josie, the key to a steady workforce is hiring reliable employees from the start.

"The turnover rate is not very high once you find the good (workers)," she said.

The team at Jobo includes three fulltime Mexican employees. Originally in Adams County for migrant work in the orchards, they have settled in the area and proven to be excellent workers on the dairy, Josie said.

Of hearing about other employers hesitant to hire Mexicans, she said, "I don't understand why."

Jobo Holsteins posts an overall rolling herd average of 25,330 pounds. Included in the RHA are about 40 head of Brown Swiss. The milk is shipped to Land O' Lakes Cooperative.

John and Bonnie Hess have previously been recognized as Master Farmers and conservationists.

"We would use slats again if doing it all over!"

Harold Keeney; David, Nancy & Mark Wolfskill

Our original plan was to install scrapers. But after 10 minutes in a slatted barn in Somerset County, we changed our minds. Some people stay away from slats because of the initial cost, but that extra cost is made up for in the first couple years.

The one thing I like the most about slats is that there is no expense. I don't have any scrapers or drive units to maintain. I don't have to run scrapers every day or haul manure like we did in our previous tie stall barn. The cows' foot health has been a lot better, and the cows stay much cleaner. Our milk production is up and the somatic cell count has gone down. I give at least some of the credit to the slats because with less moisture on the floor, there is less bacteria.

-David Wolfskill

French 'Cheese' Breed Comes To The U.S.

MICHELLE
RANCK-KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — U.S. dairy farmers may soon be traveling to the coastline of France to bring home new genetics.

The Normande breed's high milk components, sturdy build, and calm temperament are turning heads as the breed begins mingling its hardy traits with U.S. breeds.

The animals are a dual purpose breed from the Normandy coastal area in France.

According to Jerome Chateau, president and founder of "Normande Genetics," the breed has been in the U.S. for 30 years. Chateau imports and sells semen and embryos to the U.S.

A native of France, he has grown up seeing the animals.

"The breed has improved tremendously in the past 30 years," he said. Although Normandes are not new to the U.S., however, they were viewed as mainly a beef breed, so the lines that were imported were the "least dairy" animals.

In France the bull calves are subjected to a five-month growth and feed conversion test. Little more than the top third pass the beef test, said Chateau.

Of the 400 bull calves that enter the test every year, 160 move onto progeny testing, the dairy portion of the testing, and 20 "graduate," said Chateau.

The beef test ensures that the breed is "kept from drifting into a very dairy model," he said. "The progeny test is so the breed stays dairy, also. There is no such thing as a beef Normande and a dairy Normande in France."

French 'Cheese' Breed

There are 300,000 cows on test in France. "No cow can be registered if she's not on test," he said. This number represents a substantial number of cows in France, since the breed is the second dairy breed of the country.

In France the production average is 15,000 pounds on grass with less than five pounds of grain per day.

The reason for the breed's popularity in France is linked to a product that France is famous for: cheese. Their components — the "cheese quality" of the milk which Normandes produce — are outstanding, according to Chateau.

"In France it is the cheese breed," he said, pointing out that Normandes average 4.4 percent fat and 3.6 percent protein.

With those component percentages, cheesemakers receive a three-to-five percent higher yield on the same quantity of milk with Normande milk than with other breeds' milk, said Chateau.

Additionally the milk contains a high incidence of — often more than 80 percent — kappa caseine, a key protein necessary in cheese production. A smaller-than-usual fat miscelle also makes cheese production easier.

Entering The U.S.

The "dairy side" of the breed started in Wisconsin in the grazing circles. Next California, a state long known for its penchant for embracing the new and unique, began integrating the Normande breed in the U.S.

(Turn to Page 18)

The present herd book for Normandes was started in France in 1883. Though the breed was nearly decimated by the Allied invasion of Normandy during World War II, they are now France's second largest breed and have adapted to areas such as South America, as well.

Producers in that state, said Chateau, are crossing the breed with Holsteins to increase the fertility and longevity of the calves. Additionally yearling heifers are going to the feedlot and showing a two-pound-per-day growth rate and posting impressive feed conversion statistics.

Studies on milk production are in progress, he said, since this year is the first year that Normande crossbreds have reached milking age in the U.S.

"Because it is a dual-purpose breed, the animals have increased fertility and longevity and are stronger, which is why people in grazing circles are interested," Chateau said.

Crossbreeding is set to become important in the U.S. for all types of setups, however, he said. Normande crossbred offspring, believes Chateau, will be the "crosses of the future for both grazing and confinement operations."

Adding Normandes To The Herd

Arvid and Kathleen Kobosky, New Alexandria, Westmoreland County, have been in the dairy farming business for 25 years. The couple began with Jerseys, then introduced Ayrshires, then Holsteins to their herd.

Now the Kobosky's barn holds 14 different breeds of dairy cattle, many of them French or German breeds.

Kobosky started with the Normande breed to put vitality, health, and components into the herd.

"Plus I just like to be different," said Kobosky, who has been to France three times: twice for Normande conventions and once for a Tarentaise convention.

The Koboskys milk 45-50 cows with 90-100 head total. They rent their ground and buy all their feed, which consists of corn silage and baled hay. They operate with a freestall barn and milking parlor.

Eight years ago, "I saw an advertisement for semen for the breed, which was formerly imported into the U.S. strictly as beef animals," he said. "I thought, 'why couldn't I milk them?', so I got semen from a beef association."

Since the semen the association offered was geared toward the beef breeds, Kobosky is working on breeding a more ideal udder on his calves.

"They're big strong animals," said Kobosky. "They have strong chests and good feet and legs."

Temperament is another characteristic that attracts Kobosky to the breed. "They are so friendly," he said. "You can't get rid of them. When you walk through the barn they constantly have their noses in your back pocket."

All French breeds, in fact, according to Kobosky, have a similar friendly personality. "You can instantly make pets out of them," he said.

"They really cross well with Holsteins. They make the animal so much stronger. I get good prices for veal calves and cull cows," he said. "Bringing outside semen in gives vitality and vigor to the animals.

"The French are good about keeping their lines separate — not crossing closely," he said.

BreedingUp

Kobosky is working on breeding up to purebred status, although with increased import regulations because of foot and mouth disease, his plans may be somewhat slowed.

The Kobosky herd includes animals that are 50 percent Normande with the other 50 percent going to Holstein and Ayrshires. Fourteen or 15 of the animals are 75 percent Normande.

"They can be registered at 50 percent. There are varying degrees of purity," he said.

According to Kobosky, all European breeds are dual purpose, but each breed is found in a specific region suited to it.

"You won't see a mix of breeds among local farms," said Kobosky. In the Southern Alps, for example, the rugged Tarentaise may be the only breed that can survive in the winter conditions.

Kobosky also pointed out the use of Normandes in cheesemaking.

"Ninety-nine percent of the milk in France is made into cheese," he said. The French make 200 varieties of cheese and each breed produces its own style of cheese. Also the animals' feed has a bearing on the kind of cheese produced.

The best cheese, said Kobosky, is made in portable milking parlors and cabins, without electricity, in the Alps. The cheese is stored in caves to cure for six months.

Efficient Foragers

Jonas Esch and his brother, Menno, both of New Providence, were introduced to the breed by Chateau at a grazing conference in Pennsylvania in 1999. The brothers, who each milk approximately 50 cows, mostly Holsteins, were looking for "a hardy cow that will take grazing," according to Jonas.

After researching the breed by contacting the North American Breeder's Association, the Eschs decided to buy bulls.

"Their milk components were the next thing that caught my eye," he said. Additionally the cows' strength from their dual-purpose background adds market value as cull cows, as "they have something left when you beef them."

French 'Cheese' Breed

The animals are known as efficient forage converters. According to Esch they are not as dependent on grain as other breeds.

"Also I like color and variety and they just caught my eye right off," he said.

The Eschs wanted to forego AI, so they each purchased bulls from a producer in Wisconsin. The two yearlings came to Pennsylvania May a year ago.

Jonas put the bull on all his cows right away. The volume of milk production, according to Esch, may not be what commercial dairy producers are looking for, but the breed fits nicely into Esch's grazing operation.

"My idea is to have a cow that will replace high volume with components to keep the milk check up," he said.

Normandes could, however, find a niche in conventional herds, lending their sturdy builds and high components to the bloodlines, said Esch.

The breed has recently caught the eye of dairy producers, believes Esch, because France in recent years has improved the dairy traits of the breed.

There aren't enough Normandes milking yet in the U.S. to know statistics yet, said Esch. "A lot of people have one calf crop and are waiting to see what will happen." Esch is tentatively planning to breed up his animals to purebred status. He now has several Jersey, Holstein, and Normande cross calves.

"My long-term goal is to develop a 'care-free' cow that would do well on grass," he said.

Franklin Couple Sees Bright Future In Dairying

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

MERCERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — From production to promotion, Tim and Alexa Stoner are deeply involved in the dairy business.

Tim grew up milking cows with his father and uncles on Hijos Hill Farm between Greencastle and Mercersburg. Now he is president of a family corporation that includes his brother and four cousins. His father, Bob Stoner; several uncles, and an aunt are also still involved on the farm.

Alexa helps out with the milking herd of about 630 Holsteins on Hijos Hill — mainly on weekends when she is not out promoting milk in her work as industry relations specialist with the American Dairy Association (ADA).

Tim's duties involve "a little bit of everything," including feeding the cows, keeping herd and crop records, and "making most of the crop decisions" for the 1,600 acres under cultivation.

The corporation conducts monthly meetings to discuss business and vote on important decisions. Minutes are kept by Todd, Tim's brother and secretary of the corporation.

With the younger generation now in its second year at the helm of Hijos Hill, Inc., "Things are going real well," Tim said.

As president, Tim said he tries to keep routine jobs on schedule as much as possible and alternate milking chores. His approach to the business is not rigid.

"Our meetings are kind of free flow," he said.

With full-time help from his father and varying degrees of involvement from wives and uncles, Hijos Hill has no employees from outside the family.

The Stoners have chosen to use live bulls on the farm instead of artificial insemination for breeding. Tim said it is his father's job to find new bulls on a regular basis to keep up genetic diversity. About 20 bulls are housed in the free stall barn along with the milking herd.

According to Tim, the Stoner family switched to using bulls about five years ago to save the labor of watching for cows in heat. The bulls do a good job breeding the herd, he said.

Safety can be an issue in having bulls on the farm, but Tim said the family is proactive in heading off potential dangers.

"If we have problems (with a bull's temperament) we move him out pretty quick," he said.

Hill stands at about 21,000 pounds, with 3.6 milkfat and 3.0 percent protein.

Tim and Alexa were chosen earlier this year as 2001 Outstanding Young Cooperators by the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative for their knowledge and dedication to the dairy business.

The Stoners said that nine couples competed for the honor. Participants completed a four-page application, were interviewed by three judges, and took part in roundtable discussions where they were called on to speak their views on the dairy industry.

The judges grilled them for about 20 minutes with a range of questions pertaining to the cooperative, their own operation, and current dairy-related issues such as foot and mouth disease, niche markets, and smaller vs. larger dairy operations.

Alexa said that the competition was tough.

"It was a little exhausting," she said. "There are a lot of intelligent producers out there."

It came as a surprise to be announced in March as the winners.

"It was definitely a shock," Alexa said.

Part of their role as outstanding young cooperators includes attending monthly board meetings. It also includes the opportunity to attend national conferences, such as the National Institute on Cooperative Education in Atlanta this past July.

The conference included 70 young couples from cooperatives across the country, rural educators, and youth scholars.

Participants were divided into groups designed to simulate working cooperatives. Tim and Alexa found themselves in two different groups.

"I think in the long run my group beat out (Tim's)," Alexa said. "But everybody was a winner."

The Stoners agreed it was an enlightening experience which helped them understand the benefits and challenges of running a successful cooperative.

"It's not as cut and dry as you think," Alexa said. "It puts things in a whole different perspective."

The couple will also travel to Orlando, Fla., in November to attend a National Milk Producers Federation conference.

Alexa said that her involvement at Hijos Hill gives good incentive for her work promoting milk with the ADA.

"Being a producer, I want to be sure the program works because it affects our future," she said.

Tim also serves as director of the Franklin County Farm Bureau.

Recently married, the couple had first met in the late 1980s at Penn State, where Alexa was a dairy and animal science major and Tim was studying ag systems management. Alexa went on to graduate in 1991 and Tim in 1993.

According to the Stoners, dairying should offer a

ADADC Scholarships Offered

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Two $500 scholarships are available through the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC).

College students pursuing degrees in the dairy industry from ADADC's marketing area — including New York, northeastern Pennsylvania, and northern New Jersey — are eligible.

The Leo Briggs Memorial Scholarship is available to any collegiate individual who has promoted the dairy industry by exhibiting leadership in dairy industry organizations. Founded in 1983, the scholarship was established as a tribute to Leo Briggs for his superior leadership within the dairy industry more than 30 years.

A second $500 scholarship, the ADADC Memorial Scholarship, is available to former dairy princesses from ADADC's marketing area. The applicant must have completed one year as a dairy princess and one year of college, and must be pursuing a career in dairy product marketing, dairy manufacturing, home economics, ag communications, or journalism. The scholarship is offered in memory of several ADADC staff and board members for their contributions to dairy promotion.

Both college scholarships are based on grade-point-average, extracurricular activities, future plans, and a 400-word essay discussing the applicant's commitment to a career in the dairy industry.

Scholarship applications are available through agricultural colleges in New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, or by calling the ADADC office at (315) 472-9143. Both scholarships will be presented at the New York State Dairy Princess Pageant in Syracuse in February 2002.

ADADC oversees the management of the scholarship accounts; however, neither scholarship is funded by dairy farmer checkoff dollars. As a result, outside donations are critical to ensure the future availability of these scholarships. Any person or organization wishing to make a donation to either scholarship may do so by sending their checks to Joanne Tills, 219 South West Street, Suite 100, Syracuse, NY 13202-1205, payable to ADADC. Application deadline for both scholarships is Friday, Nov. 9.

good future to those willing to be progressive, informed, and face new challenges.

"Change is inevitable," Alexa said. "You have to take it by the horns."

"I think there is a bright future in dairy," Tim said. "The way technology has been moving, you have to stay on top of it. There's more potential in dairy than in a lot of other areas of agriculture."

New Cattle Microbe Named For OSU Scientist

WOOSTER, Ohio — Billions of creatures — natural, needed microbes — live in the innards of cattle. But they're known to only a handful of people. One of them is Burk Dehority, a scientist with Ohio State University.

Dehority, of the university's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center in Wooster, is an expert in rumen and gastrointestinal microbiology — the study of microbes that live in the guts of herbivores, or plant-eating animals. Among his subjects are cattle, sheep, kangaroos and quokkas.

The quokka, an endangered Australian marsupial, is downright abundant compared to the number of scientists like Dehority: worldwide maybe a dozen.

So when Turkish scientists discovered an unknown protozoa in the rumens of their cattle, they knew who to turn to: Dehority, who in the course of his 45-year career has described and named 21 new species. He sent the researchers photographs of a species that appeared to be a match, one he had found in Alaskan Dall sheep. They used the photos to identify the microbe.

In subsequent studies the scientists found and described a new species. It, too, was a protozoa that lived in the rumens of Turkish cattle. The researchers thanked Dehority for his previous help by naming the species after him: Eudiplodinium dehorityi. Details are in a recent issue of the journal Acta Parasitologica Turcica. The researchers work at Turkey's Ege University.

The new species is of interest because its physical characteristics fall between previously described species — a sort of "missing link" in rumen protozoa evolution.

New Cattle Microbe

The rumen, the first of four chambers in the stomach of ruminants, is home to legions of microbes. According to a Michigan State University web site, there are more microbes in one cow's rumen than there are people on Earth.

These microbes break down cellulose, the chief part of plant tissue, making it digestible to their host. This lets herbivores live on forage grasses, hay and so on. And it benefits people that like to eat meat. The microbes indirectly turn hay into hamburger.

"A lot of people don't realize that in reality, meat is a product of food energy that otherwise wouldn't be usable by people," Dehority said — humans can't digest cellulose. "One of the reasons we study rumen microbes is to improve the utilization of feed by meat-producing animals."

A project he is starting soon, for example, will see if microbes from wild herbivores, such as wildebeest, impalas, zebras and giraffes, can be introduced into African goats and sheep. Reason: Wild species thrive on low-quality forage. Maybe livestock can, too, if they have the same microbes.

Driving Dehority's work is curiosity. He loves basic research — science that seeks simply to learn more about something, not necessarily find an immediate application. It has led him to non-cows like zebras and quokkas, plus elk, moose, llamas, pronghorns, musk oxen, reindeer, and red, mule, axis, sika and white-tailed deer.

Why is basic research — on rumen microbes or anything else — important? Dehority likes to tell this story: "In 1957, the Russians shot up Sputnik. The United States immediately went to the scientific literature in the library, built a satellite, and shot it up about a year and a half later. Little if any new research was needed. All the information was in the library in journals, on the shelf.

"I put information on the library shelf," he said. "That's how I explain what I do. Sometimes it has direct application, and sometimes it doesn't, and no one knows when it will be useful."

This is Dehority's second such honor. The first was last year, when Australian scientists found a new protozoa species in eastern grey kangaroos. Citing the Ohioan's "considerable contributions" to their field, they named it Dasytricha dehorityi.

Does Grazing Have A Place With Larger Herds?

Lawrence D. Muller
Penn State University

A few years ago, I made a presentation on the potential use of pasture in larger dairy herds. Recently, Tim Beck, the Capitol Region Dairy Team Coordinator, wrote an article entitled "Grazing is Good."

Reflecting on this earlier presentation and Tim's recent article stimulated a "relook" at grazing and raised the question: "does grazing have a place with larger dairy herds?" People have different answers to this question, as they do on most subjects.

First, let us briefly take a historical look at the "grazing movement." Dairy producers in Pennsylvania and in the United States have been experiencing a severe cost-price squeeze since the early 1980s because of relatively stable milk prices and increasing input costs.

Well-managed grazing systems offer a management alternative to reduce the costs during the typical six- to seven-month pasture season in the Northeast, and is a major reason for the increased use of pasture as a forage for dairy cows. The re-adoption of pasture-based systems in the late 1980s was initially with herds of 35 to 70 cows. About 15 percent of Pennsylvania dairy farms are using a pasture-based grazing system. A recent Wisconsin study reported 23 percent of the dairy producers in Wisconsin are using a pasture-based system.

Economics And Sustainability

Dairy farmers have survived shrinking profit margins during these 20 years basically by increasing milk production per cow, increasing herd sizes, and becoming better managers. Change is occurring at a rapid rate in the dairy industry and in all of agriculture.

Although many excellent articles and presentations have provided insight and guidance for future success, no one person has the wisdom to accurately predict what will be needed to be competitive in the future. Excellent management, high profitability, and environment sustainability will likely be important parts of future successful dairy farms.

Many dairy producers are at critical crossroads. Some of the future decisions to be competitive include expanding the business, specializing in high profit centers, and adopting strategies to reduce costs such as grazing, or perhaps all of the above. About five percent of dairy farms make the decision to exit dairying each year.

Outside U.S. Borders

In travels to other countries, one usually gains a different perspective and appreciation for our dairy industry and agriculture as a whole. Grazing is still the major dairy production system in many countries throughout the world. I have been fortunate to have the opportunity to travel in several countries during the last 12 years. These countries range from 100 percent pasture systems in New Zealand and Ireland, to perhaps 30 percent in South Africa.

In New Zealand, Argentina, and South Africa, the dairy farms that are grazing have substantially larger herds than more pasture-based systems in the U.S. The availability of relative inexpensive land in Argentina and South Africa makes this possible.

A few years ago, I stayed with a New Zealand dairy farmer who had 1,500 Jerseys and also visited several other large herds. It is interesting that in recent years, this gentleman and his fellow New Zealanders have "discovered" corn silage as a feedstuff to compliment the pasture-based system. The growth of dairy herds to 1,500 to 4,000 cows is now common in the South Island of New Zealand.

In South Africa this past winter, I had the enjoyable opportunity of participating in a three-day management program attended by 300 progressive large dairy herd owners (with more than 300 cows). Most were using a pasture-based system with about nine to 10 months of grazing. We visited a young, progressive dairy farmer who had 3,500 cows. Most of the dairy managers who attended this meeting have adopted a partial total mixed ration (pTMR) feeding system (partial because pasture is not part of the TMR) to compliment the pasture. Corn silage has become a major forage for the pTMR.

In Argentina, dairymen have the climate to graze nine to 10 months per year, and many use a pTMR to compliment the pasture. Herd size is often 100 to 200 cows with larger herds ranging from 1,000 to 3,000 cows.

During a recent visit, we toured a progressive, highly profitable 4,000 cow grazing farm in Uruguay. The owner/manager of this farm would be successful managing a dairy farm in the U.S. and in most other countries.

Change and growth is occurring in the dairy industry in these countries, similar to that occurring in the U.S. with confinement operations. In these countries, as in the U.S., many dairy producers are at a crossroads regarding the growth of the business, specialization, and adoption of new management strategies to remain a competitive business. Interestingly, the adoption of management strategies from the U.S., such as the use of pTMR and the increasing use of corn silage with a pasture-based system, has enhanced the profitability of the dairy industry in these countries.

Profitability Of U.S Grazing Systems

As discussed, "readoption" of pasture-based systems in the 1980s was stimulated by relatively stable

(Turn to Page 29)

Does Grazing Have A Place

milk prices, increasing feed costs, and the increase in all farm costs, which resulted in shrinking profit margins.

Many dairy "graziers" are now increasing herd size to generate the income needed for the goals and lifestyle of their farm families. In Pennsylvania, there are many grazing herds above 80 to 100 cows, with five to six herds between 200 to 400 cows.

The top 20 percent of large non-grazing herds (average of 823 cows) averaged $808 NFI/cow in New York.

The figures comparing well-managed grazing and nongrazing herds indicate that the NFI/cow is similar or slightly better in grazing herds. Obviously the larger herd sizes of nongrazing operations in the study result in higher total farm income.

Does grazing have a place with larger, confinement herds? A common observation from pasture-based farms in the U.S. and other countries is that cows are older and average four to five lactations per cow, substantially more than commonly found with confinement operations.

The nonvoluntary culling rates in grazing herds are often 10 to 15 percent lower than with confinement operations.

Foot health and lameness are a major issue to dairy producers because of increasing occurrence and economic losses. The major types of foot problems — including foot rot, heel erosions, laminitis, ulcers, and digital dermatitis (hairy warts) — contribute to major losses estimated to be a minimum of $90 to $100/case. These losses are often subtle, and include body weight loss and decreased milk yield, dry matter intake, and herd longevity, and reproductive efficiency. Getting cows off concrete for a few months a year should be beneficial to foot health. The current high price of replacement heifers makes lower culling rates quite profitable. As a sidebar, foot health is not a topic that is very high on the "radar screen" in the world in pasture-based countries.

Many graziers in Pennsylvania have adopted a "hybrid" system, which combines pasture with a pTMR, which uses the existing equipment and feedstuffs on a farm. In a recent research study at Penn State, cows that grazed for ½ day, where they consumed about 16 pounds of pasture dry matter (DM) and were fed a pTMR for the other ½ day, produced seven pounds more milk/cow/day (70 vs. 63 pounds) than cows fed all pasture as the sole forage plus about 20 pounds of concentrate. Less grazing time and less pasture DM intake during the summer months and more pTMR would likely have resulted in 10 or more lb/cow/day.

Does Grazing Have A Place With Larger Herds?

Here are some possibilities for the use of grazing in larger non-grazing herds:

- Graze low producing, late lactation groups for the last one to two months of lactation. Feed costs can be reduced by using pasture during the last one to two months of lactation. Good quality pasture with grazing for ½ day plus feeding a pTMR will likely not result in a loss of production compared to confinement feeding. For planning purposes, about ⅓ acre/cow should be adequate for ½ day grazing. Getting cows off concrete should have substantial benefits to cow and foot health.
- For dry cows, a well-designed and well-managed pasture system can supply much of the forage, particularly for the early dry group. About 10 to 12 pounds of pasture DM can provide about ½ of the forage with a pTMR providing the remainder of the nutrients. With the pre-fresh/day group, we will likely want more control of the nutrient intake with less nutrients from pasture. The exercise and the improved feet and leg health will be a major advantage to grazing. Recent research at Michigan State indicates that exercise of dry cows may improve animal health and welfare based on extensive physiological measurements. A grazing area provides that opportunity.
- For heifers, some studies have reported about $200 lower costs per heifer with a well planned and managed grazing system. In addition, getting heifers off concrete for six to eight months of the year will likely contribute to less feet and leg problems and longer herd life.

Summary

Well-managed intensive grazing systems offer a management alternative to be competitive in the future dairy industry.

The increasing cost of family living and decreasing profit margins will necessitate that graziers be even better managers of cows and pasture in the future and that herd size will likely need to increase. With improved grazing management, many can increase herd size from the same land base.

In addition, grazing systems are perceived to be more sustainable and beneficial to the welfare of the animal compared to nongrazing operations. Also, costs of manure handling and bedding will be reduced during the grazing season.

The Many Faces Of BVD

Arlen Mills
Capital Region
Extension Veterinarian

LEBANON (Lebanon County) — Bovine Virus Diarrhea is a serious cattle disease, causing estimated losses of up to $150 million annually nationwide.

As the name tells us, the agent causing this disease is a virus which has the ability to change as often as the weather. The disease syndromes that we see today with BVD are much more varied than the diarrhea, now called "mucosal disease," that was first recognized years ago. In addition, the virus can affect many body systems in the infected cow or calf.

Most primary infections of cattle with the BVD virus are mild, with perhaps a mild diarrhea, fever, and inflammation of the eyes and nose. These animals usually recover in four or five days and the symptoms may not even be observed.

However, the BVD virus can cause a suppression of the immune system, which may increase the severity of diseases caused by other infections.

This immune suppression is a very significant aspect of BVD infection, allowing other infections to flourish.

Probably the most significant losses from BVD infections are due to infection of susceptible pregnant females. The virus readily crosses the placenta into the calf. While the cow's immune system may rapidly clear the infection from her own tissues, the fetus remains infected.

One of several sequelae may then develop. The fetus may die resulting in resorption or abortion. Some of these may remain in the uterus as a "mummy."

A fetus which is infected before 125-150 days of gestation which does survive will be born infected if the infection is with a type of BVD virus called "noncytopathic."

This is the "persistently infected" or PI animal that remains infected for life and continually sheds virus.

These animals are a real source of loss and frustration to producers and veterinarians as they are constantly exposing the herd to the BVD virus-these animals maintain the virus in our cattle population.

Some of these are poor-doing animals but just as many will appear normal. Until recently with the advent of some new testing methods, it was difficult to identify these PI animals. We will discuss testing in more detail later in this article.

A fetus infected 125-150 days after conception is capable of mounting an immune response to the virus infection. However, BVD virus infection of developing tissues can cause many types of birth defects. Some of these calves infected later in gestation will be born small and weak, at term or prematurely.

The BVD virus can interfere with reproduction even before conception. The BVD virus has two known effects on the cow's ovaries. The infected ovaries produce eggs of poor quality and cause the ovary to produce less progesterone than may be necessary to maintain a pregnancy.

These cows return to heat, sometimes after missing several heats. One PI in a herd can continue to expose cows to the virus, causing real disruption of a breeding program.

Eliminating And Avoiding BVD Problems

So how can all these problems be avoided?

A three-pronged effort is required. Step one involves increasing herd resistance to BVD by a good vaccination program.

This should include use of a modified live vaccine in young stock at four to six months of age and a booster with the same type of vaccine pre-breeding. Annual or semiannual booster vaccination of cows needs to be continued in the herd with a vaccine approved by your veterinarian for your herd.

Step two will involve removing any persistently infected animals from the herd. Culturing bulk tank milk samples can determine if there are any PI cows. These tests are very sensitive, detecting one positive cow in a group of up to several hundred.

If the bulk tank test comes back positive, follow up testing will need to be completed on smaller groups and eventually on individual cows.

Calves can be tested by submitting a small piece of skin such as a notch from an ear for virus detection. This is a fairly new test, but very sensitive and can be done on calves of any age.

This makes it possible to identify those carrier calves at an early age and get them out of the herd.

The third prong of the strategy involved not buying more BVD infected stock. Test all new stock before adding to the herd and make sure they were properly vaccinated as young stock.

Isolate new purchases in a separate facility from farm stock and be sure new stock tests negative before adding to the herd.

BVD can be a real disaster in a herd. But it is possible to get this disease out of a herd and prevent it. I continue to be surprised by the number of herds which do not vaccinate, at least not properly, for this disease.

South Dakota Welcomes European Dairy Delegation

MILBANK, S.D. — Dairy producers from the Netherlands and Belgium are considering selling their dairy operations in Europe and moving to South Dakota to dairy. They spent time recently touring dairies and cheese factories and talking to dairy industry insiders about what it would take to set up shop in the Upper Midwest.

On Thursday, the Valley Queen Cheese Factory and the Midwest Dairy Institute gave the Europeans a taste of South Dakota hospitality with a reception and dinner at the Chalet Educational and Visitor Center on the MDI campus. Many local leaders and businesspeople were in attendance.

The after-dinner program included comments by South Dakota Agriculture Secretary Larry Gabriel and Dairy Development Specialist Roger Scheibe. Both men echoed the importance of increasing the number of dairy cows in the state to keep both crop producers and processing plants viable. Gabriel emphasized the importance of "capturing the value" that exists in our raw agricultural products before we ship them out of state. He believes strongly that increasing livestock numbers in a responsible way is a large part of the solution.

The Europeans are considering moving to South Dakota because of the pressures exerted upon them by ever-increasing urban and suburban populations in their homeland. For the most part, they run small family dairies with 100 cows or less.

Milbank has a fine tradition of welcoming immigrants and helping them build new lives in America. The visitor center where the reception was conducted was donated by the families of Alfred Nef and Alfred Gonzenbach. The "Alfreds" were themselves immigrants from Switzerland who moved to Milbank in 1929 to found the Valley Queen Cheese Factory.

Some producers say their herd is "closed" so they don't need to vaccinate.

In this day of high cattle numbers and movement of people and cattle between farms, I don't believe that a "closed" herd is possible or at least not worth taking the risk that this assumption involves.

With the testing and vaccines that are available today, there's really no reason to continue to see "BVD disasters."

'Post Protector' Offers Many Benefits

Post Protector prevents underground wooden posts, used in post frame construction, from rotting or being destroyed by insects.

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — Post Protector prevents underground wooden posts, used in post frame construction, from rotting or being destroyed by insects.

Post Protector is made of top-quality polyethylene and is designed to be used on both pressure treated and glu-laminated posts.

Simply slip the Post Protector on the post prior to its insertion into the ground. The five-foot Post Protector allows for 4-feet below grade and one-foot above grade.

Another feature of Post Protector is integral uplift protection ribs. When the post hole is backfilled with concrete, the concrete will grab the ribs and provide uplift protection to ensure the post will not be pulled up by strong winds. The Protector and post are attached utilizing provided stainless steel lag screws and washers at four designated locations on the protector.

The Protector also allows the post to breathe by virtue of its continuous ventilation system, which also aids in post life.

Minimizing Immune System Dysfunction

Robert J. Van Saun
Penn State
Veterinary Science Extension

This is the control point of implementing a smooth transition for your dry cows.

The dairy cow's immune system has been shown to decline in responsiveness during the transition period, possibly a result of increased cortisol secretion associated with calving.

A compromised immune system may lead to an inability to properly respond to vaccinations as well as increased incidence of metritis, mastitis, or any other infectious disease process.

Although it is thought that hormonal and metabolic factors may play a primary role in this physiologic immune suppression, it can be further suppressed by nutritional insults.

Energy, protein, microminerals (copper, selenium, zinc) and fat-soluble vitamins A, D, and E are all nutritional mediators of immune function.

As previously discussed, most cows will experience some level of energy and protein deficiency during transition. All microminerals are efficiently transported into the fetus for storage and use after birth.

Both microminerals and vitamins A, D and E are concentrated in colostrum, again for the benefit of the calf. These fetal losses, in addition to reduced intake during transition, may place the cow in a precarious position relative to nutritional support of immune function during this critical period.

In summary, it is absolutely essential that the pregnant cow receive an adequate amount of all minerals and vitamins to support both maternal immune function and fetal development throughout the duration of gestation to minimize deficiency disease problems of either the dam or newborn calf.

Good Nutritional Practices:

- Properly balance dietary mineral and vitamin concentrations to match observed dry matter intake
- Ensure that daily intake for minerals and vitamins meets the new NRC requirements
- The vitamin A and E requirements have been increased for the transition period
- Force feed minerals rather than offer free choice
- Use more highly available mineral sources (chelates, proteinates)
- Minimize stress from overcrowding, transportation, environment and pathogen load

Cows Can Keep Udderly Cool Thanks To Barn-Ventilation Advances

ITHACA, N.Y. — For many dairy cows, summertime living isn't easy.

In the northeastern U.S., heat stress can make the animals more susceptible to mastitis, laminitis, and acidosis. It can also adversely affect the growth rates of unborn calves and reduce a cow's capacity to make milk by as much as one-third.

But the days of heat stress in the dairy barn are numbered.

Cornell University agricultural engineers have combined the latest technology in keeping cows cool in commercial barns using three tools not previously combined: a time-integrated variable (TIV) environment controller, tunnel ventilation, and an evaporative cooling process.

Construction of a pilot barn in St. Lawrence County, N.Y., is scheduled for completion in late July, and milk production is slated to begin Aug. 1. If the cooling project is successful, dairy producers will be able to install the technology in existing structures.

The strength of the system is that it is automatic, said research engineer Curt A. Gooch, dairy facilities specialist for Cornell's PRO-Dairy Program with the Department of Biological and Environmental Engineering. Gooch worked on the pilot project with Michael B. Timmons, Cornell professor of Biological and Environmental Engineering.

"This system assesses the barn environment and runs the systems automatically," said Gooch.

The brain behind the ventilation system is the TIV, which commands both the ventilation and cooling systems in the barn. Like a computerized thermostat, the controller accounts for the barn's air temperature and the target temperature set by the barn manager.

Unlike a thermostat, the TIV assesses the barn's inside temperature for a 12-hour rolling temperature average. It also calculates and maintains a running record of the average temperature inside the barn for the previous 24 hours. When controller sensors register cow heat stress at around 70 degrees Fahrenheit, the TIV turns on a bank of large fans and, if necessary, the barn's evaporative-cooling equipment. The fan's tunnel-effect ventilation and the evaporative cooling system remove the accumulated heat, thus cooling the cows.

Inside a freestall barn that can house about 200 cows, the system moves the air quickly at about 500 to

600 feet per minute. But for the engineers, there is a problem to overcome: the cows themselves. "Air acts like water in a creek in many ways. The cows act like boulders in a creek," said Gooch. "Once the moving air gets to the cow, the air stops and the movement dissipates. That's a problem, and that's why the velocity of the tunnel ventilation must be so great."

Tunnel ventilation, an agricultural concept once found exclusively in poultry and swine farms, has made its way to the dairy industry. Poultry and swine producers have found that increased animal comfort during the summer can reap economic benefits if the tunnel ventilation system is designed, installed and managed properly, said Gooch. "The application of tunnel ventilation as a summertime system in the dairy industry is relatively new," he said.

Older-style barns without effective summertime ventilation or wind exposure use axial-flow fans along feed barrier and resting areas. But these fans merely move air within the barn and do not provide air exchange, said Gooch.

With tunnel ventilation, fans on one end gable draw air from inside the barn and push it outside, while vents, called inlets, on the barn's opposite gable pull fresh air into the barn.

On very hot days, ventilation needs to be supplemented by an evaporative cooling system as air conditioning is too costly for dairy facilities. The cooling system works much like the human body, expelling moisture on hot days to cool itself. In the barn, water is discharged by small nozzles at a high pressure into fast-moving air, lowering the temperature inside the barn by about 10 degrees Fahrenheit, said Gooch.

"This technology is innovative and here for producers to try," said Gooch. "The cost of a TIV controller is only slightly more than conventional stage controllers, but it offers better management of the barn environment during hot summer conditions."

Confined Animal Production And Manure Nutrients

Noel Gollehon
USDA Economic Research Service

Current manure management practices in the nation's animal feeding operations are being evaluated in light of the changing structure of the livestock industry and the quantity, location, and sources of manure nutrients. This report — using data collected for the census of agriculture by the National Agricultural Statistics Service — estimates the number of confined animals, the amount of manure nutrients, and the capacity of nearby land to assimilate these nutrients.

Confined Animal Production

This analysis provides the basis for later assessment of the economic feasibility of land application as a manure management strategy.

The number of confined livestock farms declined by half from 1982 to 1997, while the number of confined animal units (AU) increased 10 percent. This increase has occurred due to more large farm units (with more than 1,000 AU), rather than large farm units becoming larger. The number of confined animal farms and the number of confined AU declined on farms with fewer than 300 AU from 1982 to 1997, and increased on farms with more than 300 AU.

Confined livestock and poultry produced over 1.2 million tons of recoverable nitrogen and 0.7 million ton of recoverable phosphorus in 1997. Most farms (78 percent for nitrogen and 69 percent for phosphorus) have adequate land on which it is physically feasible to apply the manure produced onfarm at agronomic rates. Still, manure produced on operations that cannot fully absorb it at agronomic rates accounts for over 60 percent of manure nitrogen and 70 percent of manure phosphorus. Manure nutrient production above potential onfarm assimilative capacity does not imply a water quality problem — it simply means that the manure would need to be transported from the producing farm to be effectively used in growing crops. Incentives may be needed to encourage producers to improve current manure management practices to ensure that applications are made at agronomic rates.

Some farms in all size classes produce manure nutrients over the farm's potential assimilative capacity. However, the two percent of farms in the large size class (more than 1,000 AU) produced almost half of the excess manure nitrogen and more than half the excess manure phosphorus.

The quantity of excess onfarm manure nutrients increased in all regions over 1982-1997, with the greatest quantity increase in the Southern Seaboard region, and the greatest percentage increase in the Heartland.

Most U.S. counties (about 75 percent) have at least one farm that needs to move manure off the farm to avoid excessive nutrient applications.

Only about five percent of counties have farms that collectively produce manure nitrogen that accounts for over half the total nitrogen needs in the county. However, about 10 percent of counties produce manure phosphorus that exceeds half the county's total phosphorus needs.

As of early 2001, EPA proposals for future National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) permits for concentrated animal feeding operations (CAFOs) would require the development of nutrient management plans (NMP) as part of the permit. These

Dairy Youth Benefit From Maryland Dairy Woman

MADISON, Wis. — Every mother works hard to see her children succeed, but the 2001 World Dairy Expo Dairy Woman of the Year has worked tirelessly to ensure the success of hundreds of youth interested in agriculture and the dairy industry. This year's recipient is Judy Iager from Maple Lawn Farm, Fulton, Md.

Iager and husband Charles operate the 1,200 acre sixth generation Maple Lawn farm, with his brother Gene and family. Their 175 head of Registered Holstein cows average 26,446 pounds of milk, 960 pounds of fat and 820 pounds of protein. In addition, the Iager family operates a 20,000-bird fresh retail turkey business.

But it is Iager's dedication to dairy youth programs that has made her instrumental in the lives of so many 4-H, FFA and collegiate students. This Maryland 4-H All-Star honoree has been a 4-H Dairy Club leader for 20 years where she stressed the importance of accurate project records, Dairy Bowl participation, dairy cattle judging and being in the cattle show ring. Under her leadership, their club won the "Hoard's Dairyman" pictorial judging contest several times.

For 19 years, Judy served as the Southeastern Holstein News editor for Maryland, taking pictures and permits would include management strategies for manure collection, storage, and disposal, including the land application of manure nutrients. We estimate that five percent of confined livestock farms are potential CAFOs under current regulations. These farms produced over half of the excess onfarm nitrogen and two-thirds of the excess onfarm phosphorus in 1997. If all potential CAFOs followed an NMP, the amount of nutrients available for runoff or leaching to water resources could be significantly reduced.

In areas with high concentrations of animals and high levels of excess onfarm nutrients, there may be insufficient land available for spreading at agronomic rates, particularly where NMPs are phosphorus based. Some producers will need to transport manure offsite, and incentives may be required to encourage local farmers without animals to use manure. Transportation costs will largely determine the economic feasibility of this strategy.

In any case, areas with insufficient land for spreading manure have the greatest need for alternatives to land application. Mechanisms to encourage industrial use of manure as a feedstock for commercial enterprises (fertilizer manufacturing or energy production) or central processing facilities would be especially valuable in these areas. These livestock clusters might also be strong candidates for targeting both policy-driven adjustments and USDA funding and research assistance.

All farms are eligible to apply for technical, educational, and financial assistance in managing manure nutrients under both USDA's Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and the Conservation Technical Assistance Program. In addition, EQIP is authorized to assist small and medium-sized confined animal farms (less than 1,000 AU) with investment in storage and treatment facilities. Requests for subsidized manure storage and treatment facilities and nutrient management assistance will likely increase if NMPs are required on more farms.

Successful development of facilities to process manure at a central location may accelerate trends in animal industry concentration, while failure to find viable off-farm alternatives for manure may slow, or even reverse, these trends. Further research is needed to evaluate the impact of manure management policies on the animal industry.

World Dairy Expo Anticipated

MADISON, Wis. — More than 65,000 visitors are expected to attend the 35th World Dairy Expo at the Alliant Energy Center here Oct. 3-7.

At last year's event, visitors included 3,532 international attendees from 85 countries and more than 2,000 head of dairy cattle displayed by 810 exhibitors and owners from 33 states and 8 Canadian provinces.

About 1,480 commercial exhibit booths are planned by exhibitors from 15 countries, seven Canadian provinces and 41 U.S. states.

Highlights of the expo will include numerous educational seminars, virtual farm tours, a craft forum, presentations on the latest in forage research, recognition of outstanding dairy persons, and national and international dairy shows.

A dairy management training program will also be offered in Spanish and English from Sept. 30 to Oct. 3 in conjunction with the World Dairy Expo.

For more information contact World Dairy Expo at (608) 224-6455, e-mail wde@wdexpo.com, or see Website www.worlddairyexpo.com.

writing articles of Holstein events. She and Charlie co-chair the Maryland 4-H Foundation Dairy Endowment Fund that has grown to over $100,000. The Iagers have been honored with Maryland Holstein's Outstanding Junior and Senior Breeder and Distinguished Service awards and were named Master Farmers in 1983.

Maple Lawn Farm is one of the closest dairy farms to Washington D.C. and has been called "a show place of American agriculture." This city girl has taken well to her role as dairy industry ambassador providing tours and education to foreign delegations from some 27 countries including Africa, Greece, Israel and Saudi Arabia.

With the support and help of the Iager's three sons, who are successful in the barn and the show ring in their own right, Judy and Charlie Iager still have time to scout out one more milk bottle for their large and valuable collection, as well as oversee the church cemetery for the past 25 years. World Dairy Expo salutes Judy Iager's commitment to excellence and the legacy she shares with dairy industry youth and leaders in Maryland and across the country. Monsanto Dairy Business, Select Sires, and Swiss Valley Farms sponsor the Dairy Women of the Year program.

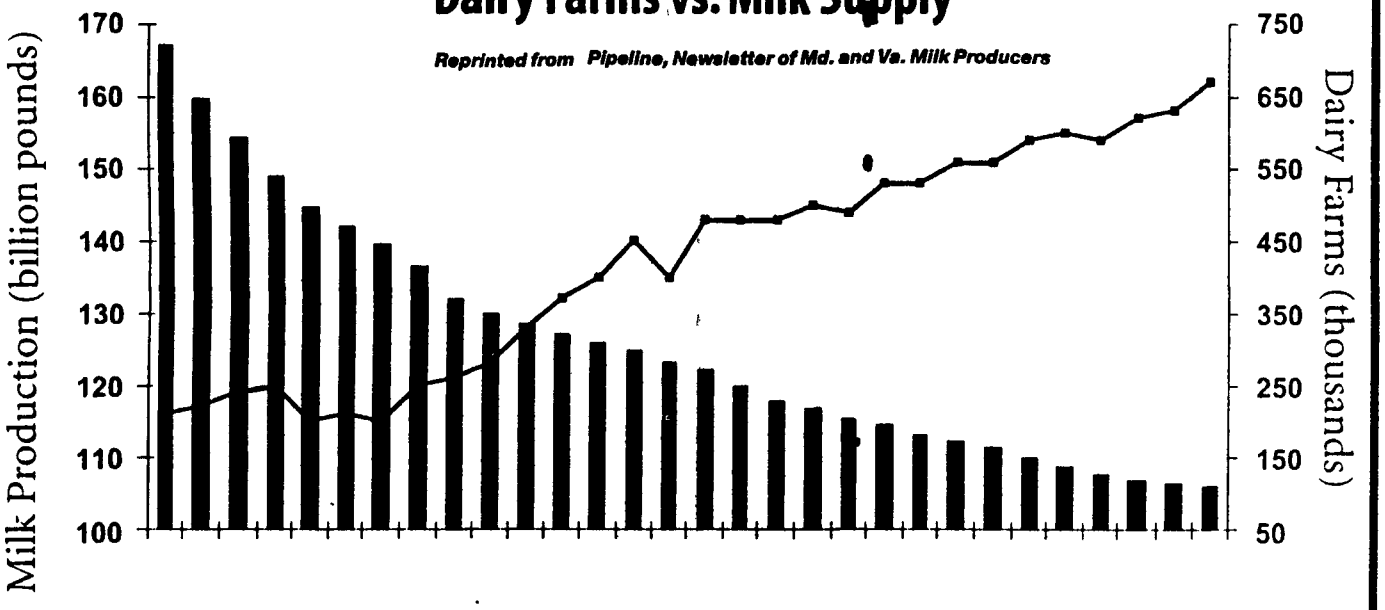
Dairy Farms vs. Milk Supply

Reprinted from Pipeline, Newsletter of Md. and Va. Milk Producers



From 1969-99, dairy farms decreased from 650 thousand to just over 111 thousand, an 85 percent decrease in 30 years, a result of economic conditions, urban sprawl and environmental regulations. During the same time, the 85 percent less farms produced 30 percent more milk, from 117 billion pounds to over 162 billion, primarily because of advances in feeding, genetics and other technologies. Source: USDA

Hesston Premiers High-Capacity, Pull-Type Forage Harvesters

ATLANTA, Ga. — The straight-through crop flow and unique kernel processor of the new Hesston Silapro™ 7500 forage harvesters are designed to deliver great capacity, efficiency and feed quality with tractors from 90 to 300 hp.

All crop entering the pull-type Silapro 7500 harvester is cut, processed and blown in a direct line. This reduces power requirements and ensures a smooth, uninterrupted flow of silage directly to the back of the wagon.

"While the straight-flow design is common in many high-capacity, self-propelled units," reports Eric Raby, Hesston general marketing manager, "its benefits have not been widely available in pull-type harvesters. These include a big appetite, less plugging, and the ability to easily fill the back of a wagon with the most stubborn haylage — all with a small tractor."

The optional kernel processor features a 6-inch-diameter top roll and a 10-inch bottom roll that both rotate at 4,700 rpm. This creates a 60 percent difference in surface speed that cracks more kernels and uses less power than processors that use extreme pressure to crush the crop

"By design, kernel processors that rely on pressure create tremendous stress on bearings and other components," points out Raby, "and are a common source of plugging and crop-flow restriction. The 7500's rollers, by contrast can be set further apart and are mounted in-line between the cutting cylinder and blower where they do not appreciably interfere with crop flow or capacity.

The cutting cylinder is 22 inches (560 mm) in diameter and 24 inches (690 mm) wide with up to 12 full-width, tungsten-carbide-edged, helical knives delivering cut lengths of ¼ inch (6.3 mm) to 1½ inches (38 mm). Standard features include one-bolt shear-bar adjustment; slip-clutch overload protection; integral manual knife sharpener; cab-controlled hydraulic header lift and tongue swing; and cab-controlled electric spout and chute.

Header choices include 7-foot (2.1-meter) pickup, 2-row corn head for 28- to 36-inch (710- to 915-mm) rows, and 3-row corn head for 30-inch (760-mm) rows. Popular options include metal detector; rope or electric wagon disconnect; tandem axles; 50-gallon (190-liter) water tank; rear spotlight; vertical and horizontal spout extensions; and 230-degree spout rotation.

Maryland DHIA Report

The August Dairy Herd Improvement information for dairy herds from the DHI processing center in Provo, Utah. The list includes herds from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The information is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd based on Energy Corrected Milk (ECM). ECM combines milk production and components.

The ECM formula is: (7.2 x lbs. protein) + (12.95 x lbs. fat) + (.327 x lbs. milk). To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of ECM per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test. Also listed are the top 10 herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top seven herds for Ayrshires.

Co-ops Pledge Continued Commitment To Producers

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — After discontinuing merger discussions earlier this month, Advantage Dairy Group representatives promised to continue working together to benefit members of the five cooperatives in the group.

Four of the five Advantage Dairy Group cooperatives — Land O'Lakes, Inc.; Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc.; Lone Star Milk Producers, Inc.; and Arkansas Dairy Cooperative Association — in August had approved the signing of letters of intent to develop a merger plan.

Representatives cited a significant level of concern regarding the merger in feedback from members of the Maryland and Virginia cooperative as reason for discontinuing the merger discussions.

"The feedback we were receiving from Maryland and Virginia members indicated it would be counterproductive to continue merger discussions," Land O'Lakes President and Chief Executive Officer John E. Gherty said.

Officials of the four cooperatives voiced a commitment to continuing the the work of Advantage Dairy Group.

"We will continue to explore ways our cooperatives can work together to benefit members," said Maryland and Virginia General Manager Robert Shore.

Dairylea, DFA Voice Concerns Regarding Proposed EPA Regulations

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Dairylea Cooperative Inc. and Dairy Farmers of America's Northeast Council (DFA) recently took advantage of opportunities to voice concerns over proposed changes to the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System Permit Regulations and Effluent Limitation Guidelines and Standards for Concentrated Animal Feeding Operations (CAFOs).

Dairylea and DFA's Northeast Council joined the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives (NCFC) and National Milk Producers (NMP) in submitting comments to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) outlining their concerns that if enacted the increased federal regulation of animal feeding operations (AFOs) will place significant burdens on farmers.

The organizations continue to work together to provide their members with representation on legislative issues at all levels.

"These new regulations put the burden of proof and the burden of cost on America's already financially-taxed agricultural operators/farmers," said Dairylea's President Clyde Rutherford. "We would like to see legislative policy that provides for expanded technical and financial assistance when more stringent regulations are to be enacted."

The proposed changes to CAFO policy would be the first made since the passage of the Clean Water Act in the early 1970s. Among the key changes are modifying the definition of a CAFO, elimination of the 25-year/24-hour storm permit exemption, land application of manure and assessment of direct hydrological connection to surface water.

Dairylea and DFA's Northeast Council believe that the proposed legislation exceeds congressional authority as outlined in the Clean Water Act (CWA) and is not justified by reliable water quality data.

"The regulations currently proposed by the EPA have exceeded the intent of the CWA and are not needed," said Lew Gardner, DFA's Northeast Council chairman.

"The EPA needs to conduct further research to collect reliable water quality data and to more accurately identify the economic costs associated with implementation of the proposed regulations."

Gardner added that the cooperatives support retaining the current method of defining a CAFO and full implementation of current rules before expanding the scope.

"Our members and other operators have made substantial investments in environmental protection over the past decades," said Gardner.

"Many have done so through voluntary, incentive-based programs. These successes can be attributed to regulations currently enforced."

The EPA will consider the input received during its comment period and is to release final regulations on December 15, 2002.

"We are grateful for the opportunity to comment on this important legislative matter," said Rutherford.

Peck Bull Enters Progeny Test Program

SHEBOYGAN FALLS, Wis. — Trans-World Genetics, Ltd. announces the release of semen from Welcome GIAN-ET, an elite pedigreed Holstein sire bred by William Peck Sons of Schuylerville, N.Y.

151H0377 GIAN is the son of Welcome Duster Gebo-ET, an 85-point 2-year-old who produced over 26,700 pounds of milk, 4.2 percent butterfat and 3.4 percent protein at the age of one year, 11 months. As a daughter of a Duster, a sire known for outstanding productive life, Gebo combines outstanding production, components and solid type. Gebo's dam is the Dam-of-Merit Converse daughter from the popular "G" maternal family at Welcome Holsteins.

GIAN is sired by Just-Do-It Patriot-ET, a plus-components Luke son that sires both production and type. Being one of the few Patriot sons in AI, GIAN's pedigree offers a unique and complimentary combination of genetics for lifetime production, profitability and good commercial dairy cattle.

With an aAa score of 2 (Tall)-3 (Open)-4 (Strong), GIAN should sire cattle with the strong dairy frames, outstanding feet and legs, and very pleasing udder quality.

Semen and additional information on GIAN and numerous other elite sires available from Trans-World Genetics can be obtained by calling 1-800-525-2953.

Somatic Cell Counts And Profitability

Vinton E. Smith
Capital Region Dairy Agent

Milk quality is a very important aspect of a successful management plan on all dairy farms. The somatic cell count (SCC) level in your milk is one of the key measures of quality that dairy plants use to determine the overall quality of milk you produce. Lowering the SCC in your herd can lead to tremendous improvement in profitability of your dairy business in two ways. First, by becoming eligible for quality premiums and secondly by increasing production per cow as a result of better management and improved udder health.

The most successful dairies now and in the future will strive for an average SCC that is less than 200,000 cells per milliliter. This will help to ensure improved profitability and long-term success of their dairy business.

Milk quality premiums can become a significant portion of a dairy producer's milk check each month. Quality premiums from local dairy cooperatives and dairy plants range from nothing for lower quality milk to as much as $.50 per cwt. for very high quality milk. A 100 cow dairy producing just 18,000 pounds of milk can receive as much as $9,000 more in quality premiums each year. That can make a very big difference to the bottom line on many dairies here in the Capital Region of Pennsylvania.

There is even a greater financial incentive for improving your dairy cow management and lowering your SCC. That incentive is an increase in production per cow and improved udder health. These improvements will lead to even greater increases in income and a greater potential for a much more profitable dairy business.

There are many management factors that impact milk production and income on a dairy farm. The SCC is just one key factor.

Short checklist of procedures that lower SCC:

- Teat dip all cows.
- Dry cow therapy for all quarters of all cows turned dry.
- Have milking equipment checked by a qualified serviceman twice a year.
- Review milking practices and hygiene with a specialist. Don't use sponges, cloths, or water hoses to wash udders.
- Keep cow udders clean between each milking — free stalls, bedded areas, lots and pastures should be clean and dry. Fence off mud holes, swamps and ponds; fill holes at the gates and exits with gravel. Bed frequently to keep udders dry and clean.

- Avoid injury to udders especially teat ends.
- Reduce milk machine fall offs, squawks, and avoid machine stripping.
- Cull chronic problem cows that don't respond to treatment.
- Isolate high cell count cows in a hospital group, or milk high cell count cows last in stall barns. Alternatively, use a separate unit for infected cows.
- Identify the predominant organisms causing the herd problem by culturing a bulk tank sample and 10 or more problem cows (LS 7-9).

Large-Volume Drenching: A Common Practice For Cows

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

DENVER (Lancaster Co.) — Dr. Steve Foulke of the Agricultural Veterinary Association here practices large-volume drenching on dairy cows almost daily.

Foulke said he has been administering the nutrient- and bacteria-rich drenches ever since he started as a vet 11 years ago, but advances in the last two or three years have made the job easier and more common.

A large-volume drench for a dairy cow usually consists of a five- to seven-gallon slurry, including alfalfa meal, vitamins, minerals, and rumen bacteria. It is administered to a stressed and/or dehydrated cow by means of a pump attached to a tube that is inserted through the mouth and down the esophagus to the rumen.

"Basically, it gives (the cow) an instant meal," Foulke said.

Positive health effects include rehydration and the rapid introduction of nutrients and essential bacteria.

Another benefit is that the sheer volume of fluid creates a "mild distension of the rumen that causes it to start contracting like it should," Foulke said.

The recent availability of drench mixes has made the job of drenching a lot easier.

Prior to prepackaged drench mixes, vets had to mix their own drenching concoctions. Part of that task included drawing rumen juice from a healthy cow to provide bacteria for the drench.

Drench mixes now on the market include the necessary rumen bacteria cultures as well as an array of nutrients, vitamins, and minerals.

Foulke encourages herd managers to learn drenching procedures themselves. "We train a lot of farmers to do this," he said.

For managers of larger herds of about 200 cows or more, he recommends purchasing their own drenching equipment.

"It pays for itself" in a short period of time, he said.

'State Of The Ag Industry Outlook' Reports Continued Recovery Of Farm Equipment Sales

CHICAGO, Ill. — Based on results from the Equipment Manufacturers Institute's (EMI) "State of the Ag Industry Mid-Year Outlook," the forecast for the U.S. retail sales of farm tractors, self-propelled combines, farm field machinery and farmstead equipment continues to show signs of recovery for the remainder of this year. The outlook for 2002 also looks promising in most of the farm equipment categories, stated Linda Jansen, chairman of EMI's Agricultural Statistics Committee, who presented the findings at the Institute's Mini-Ag Conference conducted July 17 in Rosemont, Ill.

Forecast for the farmstead equipment was mixed. Sales of dairy mechanization equipment, which were predicted to decrease by 8.0 percent in EMI's January State of the Ag Industry Outlook, are now projected to have a slight increase in sales of 1.0 percent compared to 2000. Forecast for 2002 are predicted to remain flat. Milking machines, on the other hand, indicated a sharp decrease in sales of 10.8 percent for 2001, and a complete turnaround in 2002 with an 8.0 percent increase.

The survey also asked respondents what factors they thought would influence future sales of new equipment. High on the positive list for 2001 were beef and hog prices, interest rates, and credit availability. Beef prices, interest rates and credit availability were also the key influences for 2002 along with replacement demand on farm equipment. Over the years, 20 factors from financial concerns, crops, crop prices, livestock prices, and farm equipment have emerged as key influences on new equipment sales.

The results of this survey are based on the responses from 47 key EMI agricultural industry member companies that manufacture farm field and farmstead type equipment. These companies account for more than two-thirds of the total related products sold by the industry. The report provides industry average sales forecasts for 2001 versus 2000 and 2002 versus 2001 in the various product categories.

Printed copies of the 2001 "State of the Ag Industry Mid-Year Outlook" are available from the Equipment Manufacturers Institute for $25 each. To order, contact the EMI office at (312) 321-1470. The outlook, along with additional information about the institute, can be found on EMI's Website, http://www.emi.org.

Foot And Mouth Disease Update: Down But Not Out

Robert J. Van Saun
Penn State University

Based on a lack of news reports and newspaper headlines, one would think that the foot and mouth disease (FMD) outbreak in the United Kingdom was over. Some of the British news Websites are three or more days behind on information. Most news stories concern litigation issues surrounding how the outbreak was handled. One Website has received awards for its coverage of the disaster. Is the British outbreak over? Not by any means. Over the past two weeks, there have been three new cases per day on average. Although this is much lower than at the height of the outbreak, there still are some high hurdles to clear. Current predictions suggest it will be early next year before the outbreak is considered controlled.

The current FMD outbreak in Britain has been one of the worst in modern history. As of the first week in July, there have been 1,832 confirmed cases with 8,610 infected premises. Total animals identified for slaughter has now reached 3,516,000. The slaughtered animals include 550,000 cattle; 2,820,000 sheep; 129,000 pigs; and 2,000 goats. Although estimates are considered inaccurate, the British Agriculture Ministry estimates 15,000 animals await slaughter and 28,000 await disposal. It is hard to imagine the agricultural devastation that has taken place in this country as a result of this disease.

Although it seemed like Great Britain was the focal point for FMD, it was not the only country battling a current outbreak.

Information provided by the World Organization for Animal Health, 25 different countries other than the UK and Europe had a recognized outbreak of FMD since the beginning of 2000. At present, there are only three continents (North America, Australia, and Antarctica) that are not infected with FMD. All other continents have endemic problems with FMD in various countries.

What is more disconcerting is how many countries in South America currently have FMD outbreaks. Columbia and Brazil, both countries that use a vaccination prevention policy, had recent small outbreaks. Argentina, a large beef exporting country, is currently experiencing an outbreak exceeding 1,429 cases as of June 2001. Another South American country, Uruguay, has had 1,596 cases through June 2001. Uruguay has practiced a vaccination policy to control the outbreak and legally maintain some FMD free zones.

More disconcerting than the potential closeness of these outbreaks to our shores is the fact that a recent commercial venture was attempting to import up to 30,000 head of dairy heifers from Uruguay to dairies in Oregon and Pennsylvania earlier last year. The reality is that FMD will always be potentially knocking at our door. Even after the current headlines fade, we must not become complacent with our attitudes toward FMD or any other disease. We must focus on prevention (i.e., biosecurity protocols), because we cannot afford the devastation wrought by a disease outbreak — foreign or domestic.

Penn State Dairymen's Club Solicits Service Award Nominations

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Dairymen's Club is soliciting nominations for their annual service award. The honor is rotated through three industry segments — producers, industry representatives, and educators. This year the club will recognize an educator in Pennsylvania who has supported the Pennsylvania dairy industry and/or Penn State agricultural programs. The nominee could be an extension agent, university employee or ag educator in Pennsylvania.

This year will mark the 10th award. Last year's award went to Obie Snider, a dairy producer who has been active in many organizations, including the Penn State Board of Trustees. Previous winners include Robert Patton (Monsanto), William Conyngham (Hillside Farm), Larry Specht (Penn State), Dean Amick (Pa. DHIA), Sam Williams (Bryncoed Farm), Steve Spencer (Penn State), Duane Norman (USDA), Jay Houser (Penn-Del Farm), and Larry Muller (Penn State).

The winner will be recognized at the Penn State Dairymen's Club annual meeting on Friday, Nov. 9 at 6:30 p.m. in State College. To make a reservation for the dinner meeting, contact Beth Raney at 405 Ag Admin., University Park, PA 16802, phone (814) 863-2525, or send e-mail to bnrl@psu.edu.

All nominations of dairy producers should be submitted to Jayne Sebright at P.O. Box 529 East Berlin, PA 17316 or send via e-mail to rjsebright@supernet.com. Deadline for nominations is Oct. 12. There is no specific format for nominations. However, items that may be discussed are leadership in the agricultural community, personal involvement in the dairy industry, and personal achievement and contributions to local organizations and youth.

The Penn State Dairymen's Club is a non-profit support group whose mission is to enhance activities between the dairy industry and the Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences. New members are always welcome. Contact Beth Raney at 405 Ag Admin., University Park, PA 16802, phone (814) 863-2525.

Juniors Prove Future Is In Good Hands

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa — Attendees to the 2001 National Junior Holstein Convention witnessed a group whose enthusiasm and accomplishments guarantee a bright future for the U.S. dairy industry. Four hundred junior members gathered in Cedar Rapids, Iowa to participate in a variety of activities and to meet other youth from around the country.

Twelve Distinguished Junior Member (DJM) semi-finalists participated in the interview portion of the DJM contest and helped in the administration of the week's activities. Their responsibilities throughout the week included helping with the Dairy Bowl, Dairy Jeopardy, and Public Speaking Contests. To be named a National DJM is the highest honor that can be bestowed upon a Junior member.

This year's six finalists were Matthew Alvernaz, Livingston, Calif.; Brian Call, South Charleston, Ohio; Nathan Dorshorst, Junction City, Wis.; Kara Hale, Cloverdale, Ore.; Kelly Sheehan, Rochester, Minn. and Laurie Winkelman, Watertown, Wis.

Fierce competition permeated the Holstein Foundation's 2001 Dairy Bowl Contest as 16 junior teams and 15 senior teams battled for the national championship. In the junior division it was the hometown team of Laura Leazer, James Bolin, Michael Stewart, and Tim Rauen that took the honors. Coached by Heidi deGier and Marilyn Steffens, the Iowa junior team won in a rematch against the Illinois team of Emily Holmes, Julie Drendel, John Mitchell, and Kyle Koester. Illinois was coached by Glen Meier.

Another rematch marked the final round in the senior division as the Illinois "Dirk's Angels" beat out the Pennsylvania team for the championship. The Illinois team, also coached by Glen Meier, consisted of Andy "Bosley" Lenkaitis, Jackie Florent, Molly Florent, and Lorilee Schultz. The Pennsylvania team was made up of Ben Cloninger, Debbie McAllister, Keri Connelly and Emily Cloninger, and was coached by Robert Cloninger.

The second annual Dairy Jeopardy Contest, sponsored by the Holstein Foundation, drew large crowds as Iowa again proved the hometown advantage pays off. Kurt Wolf of Epworth, Iowa, beat tough competition in the finals to take first-place honors. Second place went to Jason Miley of Ohio and Robby Thommen of California and Michael Krause of Wisconsin tied for third place out of 47 competitors.
